Rolling Meadows police Friday night confiscated an allegedly pornographic film and arrested the manager of the Meadows Theatre, 3265 Kirchoff Rd. in the first test of the city's obscenity law.

Four plainclothes detectives bought tickets to the adult version of the classic fairy tale "Cinderella" and talked in whispers as they watched the movie from the back of the theater.

About 15 minutes from the end of the film, they donned badges, and Det. Charles Smith informed the ticket taker that the showing would have to be stopped. They then placed theater manager Bill Farber under arrest.

Smith then agreed to allow the showing to be completed so Farber would not have to refund the money of about 50 patrons.

"Cinderella" was the first showing of an X-rated movie at the Meadows Theatre since early May. Until May the theater had offered a steady diet of adult movies, but changed to PG and R-rated fare because of a developing campaign to outlaw pornography in the city.

A three-month-long anti-obscenity movement followed, which included a widespread petition drive and involved the city's four churches. It culminated in the passage in June of a detailed obscenity law. The law was passed against the advice of City Atty. Donald Rose who said pending legislation in Springfield might invalidate the law.

But theater owner Stanford Kohlberg returned to adult films in defiance of the law, apparently because the theater was doing poorly with general audience pictures.

"BUSINESS IS double when we have the X-rated," said Kim Kohlberg, Stanford's daughter, who works as a ticket taker at the theater.

The law makes it illegal to sell, distribute, display or advertise obscene material and defines material as obscene if, taken as a whole, it appeals to prurient interests and has no serious social, literary, political or scientific merit. The ordinance includes a list of 25 sexual acts and bodily parts, which, if displayed in a lewd manner, are considered obscene.

Farber talked with police earlier Friday and was warned that police would view the film. The theater's

Vietnamese give U.S. remains of 22 MIA's

HANOI, Vietnam (UPI) — Vietnamese officials Friday delivered 22 small boxes, each containing the remains of an American killed in Vietnam, to U.S. officials. The boxes were flown to Clark Air Base in the Philippines.

Frank A. Sieverts, the State Dept.'s deputy coordinator for POW's and MIA's, said progress had been made in accounting for 2,500 Americans still listed as missing in Indochina.

He said the Vietnamese definitely would continue to search for missing Americans.

BUT VO HOANG, the Vietnamese foreign ministry official in charge of MIAs, said the Vietnamese had encountered problems in trying to locate missing Americans.

"The war has been over so long it is difficult to find people who can remember. Also, our people do not understand why we should be looking for dead Americans," Vo Hoang said through an interpreter.

"The questions of normalization of U.S.-Vietnam relations and U.S. aid to Vietnam did not come up," said Sieverts, who headed the 10-member State-Defense Dept. team. "Our talks with the Vietnamese were limited to the MIA problems."

THE STATE Dept. says 1,300 MIA's are known to have died in the conflict, but about 700 have not been accounted for.

The transport plane will remain overnight in the Philippines and will continue early Saturday to Honolulu, where the U.S. Military Central Identification Laboratory will attempt to identify the remains.

The names of the latest Americans returned were not released with the exception of a civilian, Tucker Gougelmann, whose family lives in New York City.

Gougelmann, reportedly a CIA agent early in the war, returned to Saigon of his own accord in April 1975. He died in June 1976 at the age of 57 of what the Vietnamese said was natural causes, State Dept. sources said.

The 22 bodies returned Friday brought the total remains handed over to the United States by the Vietnamese to 61.

Hijack victims still hostage

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Japanese terrorists freed another of the hostages held aboard a hijacked jet early today but said they would not free all their prisoners lest "imperialist and Zionist enemies" feel free to storm the plane.

As the latest hostage was released, a Japanese airliner took off from Tokyo for an eight-hour flight to Dacca carrying $6 million ransom and six of the nine jailed Japanese Red Army comrades whose freedom the hijackers demanded.

The Japanese government said in Tokyo it got word the Japanese Red Army hijackers had extended their 5 p.m. Friday deadline for killing the hostages.

In any case, the terrorists let the deadline pass without taking any action.

THE HIJACKERS freed a Pakistani identified as Abdul Malek Khan, 38, who was suffering from a fever but kept 141 other hostages aboard the Japan Air Lines DC8 that they seized Wednesday.

They warned that failure to meet the demands would mean a repetition of the 1972 Lod airport massacre in which Red Army terrorists killed 26 persons.

Former California legislative majority leader Walter Karabian, one of the hostages, urged by radio hookup from the plane that the United States try to get Japan to accept the hijackers' demands.

Bangladesh Air Vice Marshal Abdul Gaffur Mahmood was negotiating with the hijackers from atop the airport control tower in a 12-foot-by-20-foot room filled with communications gear.

THE HIJACKERS operating the plane's radio told Mahmood the Red Army would not release all of those aboard the plane

"We must get to where we are going," the hijacker said. "It is very dangerous. We have imperialist and Zionist enemies. They could shoot down our plane and crew. They can't shoot us down if our passengers are on board."

The hijackers, armed with pistols, grenades and plastic explosives, commandeered the Paris-to-Tokyo flight Wednesday, shortly after it left Bombay, India and forced it to land in Dacca.

They released five persons Thursday and four Friday. Two Americans were among those freed Thursday and nine Americans were still on board.

Appeals court to hear parks annex battle

An Oct. 11 court date has been set for the Illinois Appellate Court to hear oral arguments in the 3-year-old battle by a group of Wheeling Township residents to void the annexation of their neighborhood by the Arlington Heights Park District.

Members of the Lynnwood Homeowners Assn. have appealed a ruling made in February 1976 by a district court judge upholding the park district's 1974 annexation of an unincorporated area bounded by Wilke Road, Palatine Road, Harvard Avenue and Thomas Street.

The park board annexed the area northwest of Arlington Heights under a state law authorizing park districts to annex land bounding park property by a lake, river, railroad or highway.

Residents of the Lynnwood area contend that the park district's interpretation of Chicago Avenue as a "highway" was improper.

THE INVOLUNTARY annexation affected about 105 families, of which about 90 per cent are contributing to the cost of the lengthy court fight, Raymond Young, president of the Lynnwood Homeowners Assn., said.

The group of homeowners already has spent about $4,000, Young said.

Young is hopeful that the recent passage of legislation in the Illinois General Assembly will assist the Lynnwood group's case.

The new law regarding park district annexation powers, was signed this week by Gov. James R. Thompson.

The legislation, which was introduced by State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, after the Joe, 14, is nobody's fool but 'that's the way it is'

John Lampinen

Byline report

For the first three years of Joe's life, his father was bedridden with bone cancer.

The disease started at the knee, where Joseph Borowski Sr. had been injured years earlier while in the service, and the doctors didn't figure he would live more than a year.

But Joe's dad fooled them. His legs were amputated. He lived 3½ years longer though he was in constant pain and too weak to lift his head off his pillow.

Now, young Joe is 14.

HE IS A QUIET boy who refuses to answer to Joey or Joseph. He spends most of his time alone in his room, listening to the radio. He cannot read or write. He does, however, like to draw.

Most of the time, his pictures depict disasters. But he draws other things with his pencil. He used to have a flair for drawing pictures of persons without legs.

He is emotionally disturbed. His father's suffering, the psychiatrists say, is the main reason.

His mother, Rita LaLoggia of Schaumburg, says Joe also is "a misplaced person."

AND THAT IS WHY she was down at the Bismarck Hotel in Chicago Friday morning picketing an appearance by Gov. James R. Thompson.

Thompson was giving an address on "Management of Human Services." Mrs. LaLoggia says that because of a Thompson administration-imposed freeze on funds for private residential care, Joe cannot get the help he needs.

She has been battling for months to get funding to place Joe at Willowglen Academy in Milwaukee. There are few avenues left, however, and she says picketing Thompson was something she had to do.

"I can't quit. If everybody quits, nothing will be done," Mrs. LaLoggia said. "The squeaky wheel gets the oil. He's talking about human services and that means my child."

SHE NEVER HAS had much cause for hope while raising Joe.

For years, everyone assumed he was mentally retarded. But 4½ years ago, tests administered at Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 showed he had a fairly high level of intelligence. So Mrs. LaLoggia

Life support unplugged

Judge OKs 'brain death' decision

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A judge threw out Wisconsin's definition of death Friday and told doctors to unplug a life support system for a young mental patient they said had died from irreversible brain damage.

Dane County Judge Robert R. Pekowski said the state's common law definition of death — absence of a heart beat or breath — was "inadequate and inappropriate."

Pekowsky accepted the medical definition of "brain death" and told doctors to stop the system maintaining pulse and respiration of the anonymous 18-year-old patient.

Pekowsky said the youth's parents had sought the decison and attorneys appointed on his behalf said they would not appeal. Pekowsky ordered an autopsy at the request of the district attorney.

AFTER BEING committed to Mendota State Hospital on his 18th birthday, the youth suffered heart failure and irreversible brain damage. Doctors wanted to unplug his life support machine last week, but Pekowsky issued a temporary restraining order.

Pekowsky said he understood Wisconsin doctors had used the "brain death" definition for 10 to 20 years though the old definition never had been challenged by the legislature or courts.

"I will accept and adopt 'the irreversible cessation of total brain function' as a definition of death, thus abrogating the common law definition as it applies to this case," Pekowsky said. "I am convinced that the determination, under this definition, is a medical determination, such a determination to be made according to the usual standards of medicine.

THE TESTIMONY in this record supports without contradiction a finding of irreversible cessation of total brain function under these standards. The subject is therefore legally dead."

Robert R. Pekowsky

Pekowsky's decision set no time for unplugging the system, but he said "there will be a carefully supervised removal."

The patient's parents filed an affidavit Thursday stating they believed their son was dead and the life support sysem should be stopped. The judge had presided over proceedings when the youth was committed.

"I was impressed with them then and even more impressed with them now," Pekowsky said. "These people have tremendous strength. And they are indeed thankful that it's over."

Judge OKs 'brain death' decision

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A judge threw out Wisconsin's definition of death Friday and told doctors to unplug a life support system for a young mental patient they said had died from irreversible brain damage.

Dane County Judge Robert R. Pekowski said the state's common law definition of death — absence of a heart beat or breath — was "inadequate and inappropriate."

Pekowsky accepted the medical definition of "brain death" and told doctors to stop the system maintaining pulse and respiration of the anonymous 18-year-old patient.

Pekowsky said the youth's parents had sought the decison and attorneys appointed on his behalf said they would not appeal. Pekowsky ordered an autopsy at the request of the district attorney.

AFTER BEING committed to Mendota State Hospital on his 18th birthday, the youth suffered heart failure and irreversible brain damage. Doctors wanted to unplug his life support machine last week, but Pekowsky issued a temporary restraining order.

Pekowsky said he understood Wisconsin doctors had used the "brain death" definition for 10 to 20 years though the old definition never had been challenged by the legislature or courts.

"I will accept and adopt 'the irreversible cessation of total brain function' as a definition of death, thus abrogating the common law definition as it applies to this case," Pekowsky said. "I am convinced that the determination, under this definition, is a medical determination, such a determination to be made according to the usual standards of medicine.

THE TESTIMONY in this record supports without contradiction a finding of irreversible cessation of total brain function under these standards. The subject is therefore legally dead."

Robert R. Pekowsky

Pekowsky's decision set no time for unplugging the system, but he said "there will be a carefully supervised removal."

The patient's parents filed an affidavit Thursday stating they believed their son was dead and the life support sysem should be stopped. The judge had presided over proceedings when the youth was committed.

"I was impressed with them then and even more impressed with them now," Pekowsky said. "These people have tremendous strength. And they are indeed thankful that it's over."

Death of youth no game to family, but they find solace in pinball gift

Johnnie May knew he was dying. His heart was weak. His breath was short. His small frame was frail and thin.

No matter how many times the 11-year-old Buffalo Grove boy checked into the hospital for observation and oxygen supplies, he never let his deteriorating condition get him down. He loved people. He loved life. He loved God. And perhaps more than anything, he loved to play pinball.

JOHNNIE DIED Sept. 14 of cystic fibrosis, but not before Bill Herman and several other downtown Mount Prospect merchants saw to it that one of the boy's most precious dreams came true.

Herman, manager of the Hotter Than Mother's Music pinball arcade, 2 E. Northwest Hwy., waged a three-week fund-raising campaign so Johnnie could play pinball in his home, 359 Lincoln Ter.

"We set up a Johnnie May Day," Herman said. "We sold $3 tickets which entitled the bearer to $5 worth of pinball. Everyone bought them, even the businessmen who wouldn't use them. On the weekends we set up bake sales. All of the profits went toward buying the machine. We collected $1,100."

Herman met Johnnie at the pinball arcade last spring. The boy's mother, Laverne, took him there often to play the machines.

"I didn't know the boy was sick at all," Herman said. "One evening Mrs. May came in and asked to buy a pinball game. I thought it was just another mother trying to spoil her kid. Then she told me she wanted to get something for him. His doctors told the family not to fly him to Disney World. His heart was too weak."

JOHNNIE MAY

Mrs. May thought she could buy the game for her son for about $200. She had no idea pinball machines cost between $900 and $1,500.

"We usually aren't in the charity business," Herman said. "But I knew the money was going to a good cause. It really wasn't difficult to run something like that."

CONTRIBUTIONS came from all over the downtown Mount Prospect area — Meeske's food mart, Keefer's Pharmacy, the Colonial Standard service station, Yankee Doodle Dandy restaurant, Mark Twain printing service, Louis Velasco's barber shop and Pip Postal printing service.

Though he was physically weak, Johnnie remained emotionally strong.

"He was totally aware of his condition," Herman said. "But he came in every other day during the three-week promotion. In fact, two weeks before he died, he bought me a pinball wizard cigaret lighter, though I don't smoke."

Mrs. May said Johnnie never asked for or expected much, but "no matter what you gave him he got so excited about it. We tried to give him the things he wanted. I thought it (the "Sure Shot" pinball game) meant so much to John. He played with it all hours of the day and used to wax it and shine it up all the time."

ON A RECENT family outing to the Great America theme park in Gurnee, Johnnie wasn't interested in winning stuffed animals. His mother said he didn't care much for the rides, either. It was the pinball arcade that hypnotized him. And he spent the entire day playing the flippers.

Today, Johnnie's machine stands idle in the May home. Occasionally his older sisters, Rhonda and Terry, try their luck at it. "It's still here," said the boy's father, John. "We intend to keep it. He had a lot of little friends that still come around."

May said he lets the neighborhood kids come by on the weekends to play pinball. Mrs. May cherishes her son's memory through the machine and said she will find it hard to part with it. "If there's another sick child somewhere that enjoys that, maybe I'd give it to him," she said.

Byline report

IT'S QUIET AROUND the May.. household. The lights don't flash and the bells don't ring as often as they once did. But the family is not lonely. The grief faded several years ago when Johnnie himself, coping with the end, prepared his loved ones for his death.

"Four years ago he really realized he was getting weaker," Mrs. May said. "He said it would be an experience when he died and how beautiful he knew heaven was. He told us not to worry about him. He was sick every day of his life but always had a smile on his face.

"Even though he loved living and wasn't afraid to die, he looked forward to it. I always wanted the faith John had. I feel now I have it. He prepared us. Money can't buy what peace I have," she said.

Mrs. May said she is grateful to Herman and everyone who helped make Johnnie's final days comfortable. "I'm sorry I can't pay him back in any way. We truly love the Bill Herman family," she said.

As for the pinball machine, she says, "I like the sound of it. Every time we're near it I feel his presence. It was so much a part of him that it is precious to us."

Hijacker seized after throwing grenade; one killed

by RAFAELA SEPPALA

PARIS (UPI) — A deranged hijacker set off a hand grenade in a jet holding 98 persons Friday night as police firing tear-gas grenades stormed the plane. Officers seized the air pirate, but one passenger died and five were wounded.

Police said they attacked because "the lives of the passengers demanded action." They ripped open the doors of the plane shooting tear-gas as the hijacker hurled his grenade.

Officials said the police fired no bullets.

The 43-year-old hijacker, who was declared mentally incompetent after he shot his father to death as a teenager, had demanded access to two of the three largest commercial radio stations in France to broadcast a political message.

THE HIJACKER, identified as Jacques Robert, had been jailed three years ago for holding up the staff of the third station at gunpoint.

Robert also demanded fuel for his commandeered French Air Inter Caravelle jet, whose tanks ran dry shortly after he brought the plane back to paris on a flight orginally bound for Lyon.

Police told the gunman both of his demands would not be honored until he released all aboard the craft.

"Police had to intervene to end this hijacking," Prefect Jean Perier said. "We waited 8½ hours and only made the decision to move in after long attempts to negotiate . . . the lives of the passengers demanded action."

As the police team ripped open the doors of the plane, Perier said, "the hijacker threw a grenade that hit the top of a door and exploded, wounding the people who were standing there."

ONE MAN suffered fatal injuries, a second was seriously injured and three others were hurt by shrapnel. The hijacker had earlier shot a stewardess in the arm, but she was reported in good condition.

The dead man reportedly was an employe of the Air Inter airline who was traveling as a passenger. Officials also said a number of other passengers were hit by shrapnel fragments, but they did not need hospital treatment.

There were 91 other passengers and six crewmen aboard the Caravelle with Robert as police moved in.

He had previously released the wounded stewardess and seven passengers, including one infant and one passenger who became ill, and an eighth passenger ran to safety when the hijacker's attention was diverted.

"SUDDENLY ALL four side doors of the plane were ripped open from the outside and we knew the police were attacking," said passenger Maurice Tapie, 37. "The hijacker turned and threw his grenade toward the cockpit where it exploded."

"One of the tear-gas grenades hit the hijacker square in the face," passenger Jean Martignoni said. When Robert arrived in handcuffs at police headquarters he had a badly scratched cheek.

Police said Robert had been on probation since being released last March from prison, where he had served three months of a six-month term for theft.

Robert told police he wanted to broadcast a 12-minute message over Radio Europe No. 1 and Radio Monte Carlo, possibly similar to an incoherent statement in favor of liberty and against strikes that he aired three years ago over the commandeered microphon at Radio Luxembourg.

A reporter for that station spoke to Robert during the Orly Airport siege and quoted the gunman as saying: "In 1974 I had a small pistol. Today I have a big one. Stay out of this."

State rests in TV intoxication case

'Youth admitted slaying woman'

MIAMI (UPI) — The state rested its case in the "television intoxication" murder trial of Ronny Zamora Friday with testimony the youth admitted killing an elderly neighbor after letting her have a last look at photos of her husband.

Prosecutor Tom Headley, who opened the state's case against the 15-year-old defendant Wednesday, closed with testimony by Sgt. Paul Rantanan.

Rantanan testified Zamora came to the Miami Beach police station the night of June 8 and told him he killed 82-year-old Eliner Haggart after she caught him and a companion, Darrell Agrella, robbing her home.

AFTER A BRIEF recess, Zamora's attorney began the defense, based on the youth's claim to be "addicted" to TV violence and a victim of "involuntary subliminal television intoxication."

Former Miami Beach officer James Harkins, the only defense witness to testify Friday, said he was called to the Zamora home June 8 and told of the murder.

"My son killed the woman next door," he quoted the youth's father as saying.

Harkins, a friend of the family, said Ronny Zamora at first claimed a man had forced him to shoot Mrs. Haggart, then said he had shot her accidentally.

THE EX-OFFICER said he advised the boy to go with his parents to the police station and get a lawyer.

Defense attorney Ellis Rubin contends Zamora was a "television addict" who couldn't distinguish between the fantasy of TV violence and the reality of his actions when he killed Mrs. Haggart.

Rantanan took the stand after two of Ronny's pals, Timothy Cahill and David Picciolo, said the defendant "acted normal" and watched only one TV program — a basketball game — during a two-day trip to Disney World after the slaying.

He said Zamora admitted breaking into Mrs. Haggart's home because "he needed some money to go to a dance."

RANTANAN SAID Zamora admitted dragging Mrs. Haggart into her house and making her sit on the living room floor when she surprised him inside her home.

"He said he told her he had not stolen anything and attempted to persuade her not to call police," the sergeant quoted Zamora as saying.

Rantanan said Mrs. Haggart asked Zamora to make her a drink, but didn't like the way he made it, "so he mixed another and did it several times until he got the drink right."

"He said she was sipping the drink and said her late husband was a military man. She asked him to bring her a photograph album to show pictures of her late husband and talked at length about their life together," Rantanan testified.

"During the time he was mixing the drink, he was having another conversation with Darrell Agrella and said: 'you know what we will have to do if she says she is going to call the police.' And Darrell said, 'you mean kill her?' Ronnie said, 'yes.' "

RANTANAN TOLD the court Zamora said he talked to Mrs. Haggart for an hour and a half, and "it was rather friendly and he was convinced he had talked her out of calling the police."

"He stood up and said: 'Mrs. Haggart, you aren't going to call the police are you,' and she said, 'but I have to call police."

Rantanan said Zamora then told him:

"I took the pillow, wrapped the gun in the pillow and shot her. The pillow didn't stop the sound very well. She fell over. I knew she was dead."

THE TRIAL BEFORE Circuit Judge Paul Baker is being televised and rebroadcast in the evenings by a local education television station under a year-long experiment authorized by Florida's Supreme Court.

Cahill and Picciolo told the nine-man, three-woman jury Zamora provided both the car and money, which the state claims were stolen from Mrs. Haggart, for the two-day trip to Disney World.

The teen-age witnesses, who all wore styled long hair and three-piece suits with open collar shirts, said they didn't begin to suspect Zamora had killed Mrs. Haggart until several days after they returned to Miami Beach.

Senate still deadlocked in filibuster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A proposal to phase out controls on natural gas prices survived a test vote in a filibuster-weary Senate Friday, but opponents immediately resumed delaying tactics.

Backers of the deregulation plan by Sens. James Pearson, R-Kan., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., defeated an attempt to kill the bill by a vote of 50 attempt to kill the bill by a vote of 50 to 44.

That kept the legislation alive and left the Senate frozen into a double fiibuster mounted by opposing sides of the drawn-out natural gas debate.

Asked after the vote whether his compromise forces have a change to stop those who favor deregulation, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said, "I don't think we can."

"THE PROPER form for this is the (House-Senate) conference," Jackson said, meaning his forces will get their best chance to thwart gas price deregulation when the two chambers try to resolve the many differences between the energy bills each passes.

The House earlier approved President Carter's proposal of increasing the price of new natural gas to $1.75 per 1,000 cubic feet and then letting it rise gradually. That bill does not provide for deregulation.

The deregulation plan would put newly produced gas under a ceiling of approximately $2.50 per 1,000 cubic feet, compared with the current $1.45, and would lift that ceiling in two years on gas from onshore wells. New offshore gas would be freed in five years.

The test vote followed futile, day-long efforts by the Senate leadership to get rid of the ammunition — hundreds of delaying amendments — both sides were using in the two-way filibuster and move the chamber toward a vote on the main legislation.

ELEVEN TIMES Democratic Leader Robert Byrd tried to get a Senate agreement to consider certain serious amendments, and 11 times a senator objected.

Byrd slapped a stack of amendments the size of the Washington phone book down on his desk and gave up the attempt.

The Senate was spinning its wheels just as it had been for several days, droning through one delaying amendment after another so neither side — pro or anti-deregulation of natural gas — could get its favored bill to the floor.

BYRD BEGAN the breakthrough attempt at 3:35 p.m., when the weary Senate was considering — and the presiding officer was ruling out of order — amendments at a one-a-minute clip.

After six hours of various meetings among senators, some bipartisan, some among Democrats, some among Republicans, Byrd announced he had promised some senators to try for a time limit.

"I hold in my hand the amendments that remained to be called up," Byrd said, waving a two-inch-thick stack with a rubber band around it.

He asked for unanimous consent for a 4:30 p.m. "up or down vote" on the major amendment, the deregulation proposal by Bentsen and Pearson.

"I object," said Sen. Russell Long, D-La., leader of one filibuster for deregulation.

BYRD ASKED about a 5 p.m. vote.

"I object." Again Long.

Long suggested a vote all at one time on 50 amendments Long considered dilatory.

"I object," said James Abourezk, D-S.D., who has been leading the filibuster against deregulation.

And so it went.

Byrd gave up and the Senate droned on.

At issue for the nation in all this was the price of gas, the size of utility bills and whether federal price ceilings will disappear in the near future. Also at issue, for the senators involved, were political reputations and an exhausting test of wills and influence.

Hijacker seized after throwing grenade; one killed

by RAFAELA SEPPALA

PARIS (UPI) — A deranged hijacker set off a hand grenade in a jet holding 98 persons Friday night as police firing tear-gas grenades stormed the plane. Officers seized the air pirate, but one passenger died and five were wounded.

Police said they attacked because "the lives of the passengers demanded action." They ripped open the doors of the plane shooting tear-gas as the hijacker hurled his grenade.

Officials said the police fired no bullets.

The 43-year-old hijacker, who was declared mentally incompetent after he shot his father to death as a teenager, had demanded access to two of the three largest commercial radio stations in France to broadcast a political message.

THE HIJACKER, identified as Jacques Robert, had been jailed three years ago for holding up the staff of the third station at gunpoint.

Robert also demanded fuel for his commandeered French Air Inter Caravelle jet, whose tanks ran dry shortly after he brought the plane back to paris on a flight orginally bound for Lyon.

Police told the gunman both of his demands would not be honored until he released all aboard the craft.

"Police had to intervene to end this hijacking," Prefect Jean Perier said. "We waited 8½ hours and only made the decision to move in after long attempts to negotiate . . . the lives of the passengers demanded action."

As the police team ripped open the doors of the plane, Perier said, "the hijacker threw a grenade that hit the top of a door and exploded, wounding the people who were standing there."

ONE MAN suffered fatal injuries, a second was seriously injured and three others were hurt by shrapnel. The hijacker had earlier shot a stewardess in the arm, but she was reported in good condition.

The dead man reportedly was an employe of the Air Inter airline who was traveling as a passenger. Officials also said a number of other passengers were hit by shrapnel fragments, but they did not need hospital treatment.

There were 91 other passengers and six crewmen aboard the Caravelle with Robert as police moved in.

He had previously released the wounded stewardess and seven passengers, including one infant and one passenger who became ill, and an eighth passenger ran to safety when the hijacker's attention was diverted.

"SUDDENLY ALL four side doors of the plane were ripped open from the outside and we knew the police were attacking," said passenger Maurice Tapie, 37. "The hijacker turned and threw his grenade toward the cockpit where it exploded."

"One of the tear-gas grenades hit the hijacker square in the face," passenger Jean Martignoni said. When Robert arrived in handcuffs at police headquarters he had a badly scratched cheek.

Police said Robert had been on probation since being released last March from prison, where he had served three months of a six-month term for theft.

Robert told police he wanted to broadcast a 12-minute message over Radio Europe No. 1 and Radio Monte Carlo, possibly similar to an incoherent statement in favor of liberty and against strikes that he aired three years ago over the commandeered microphon at Radio Luxembourg.

A reporter for that station spoke to Robert during the Orly Airport siege and quoted the gunman as saying: "In 1974 I had a small pistol. Today I have a big one. Stay out of this."

State rests in TV intoxication case

'Youth admitted slaying woman'

MIAMI (UPI) — The state rested its case in the "television intoxication" murder trial of Ronny Zamora Friday with testimony the youth admitted killing an elderly neighbor after letting her have a last look at photos of her husband.

Prosecutor Tom Headley, who opened the state's case against the 15-year-old defendant Wednesday, closed with testimony by Sgt. Paul Rantanan.

Rantanan testified Zamora came to the Miami Beach police station the night of June 8 and told him he killed 82-year-old Eliner Haggart after she caught him and a companion, Darrell Agrella, robbing her home.

AFTER A BRIEF recess, Zamora's attorney began the defense, based on the youth's claim to be "addicted" to TV violence and a victim of "involuntary subliminal television intoxication."

Former Miami Beach officer James Harkins, the only defense witness to testify Friday, said he was called to the Zamora home June 8 and told of the murder.

"My son killed the woman next door," he quoted the youth's father as saying.

Harkins, a friend of the family, said Ronny Zamora at first claimed a man had forced him to shoot Mrs. Haggart, then said he had shot her accidentally.

THE EX-OFFICER said he advised the boy to go with his parents to the police station and get a lawyer.

Defense attorney Ellis Rubin contends Zamora was a "television addict" who couldn't distinguish between the fantasy of TV violence and the reality of his actions when he killed Mrs. Haggart.

Rantanan took the stand after two of Ronny's pals, Timothy Cahill and David Picciolo, said the defendant "acted normal" and watched only one TV program — a basketball game — during a two-day trip to Disney World after the slaying.

He said Zamora admitted breaking into Mrs. Haggart's home because "he needed some money to go to a dance."

RANTANAN SAID Zamora admitted dragging Mrs. Haggart into her house and making her sit on the living room floor when she surprised him inside her home.

"He said he told her he had not stolen anything and attempted to persuade her not to call police," the sergeant quoted Zamora as saying.

Rantanan said Mrs. Haggart asked Zamora to make her a drink, but didn't like the way he made it, "so he mixed another and did it several times until he got the drink right."

"He said she was sipping the drink and said her late husband was a military man. She asked him to bring her a photograph album to show pictures of her late husband and talked at length about their life together," Rantanan testified.

"During the time he was mixing the drink, he was having another conversation with Darrell Agrella and said: 'you know what we will have to do if she says she is going to call the police.' And Darrell said, 'you mean kill her?' Ronnie said, 'yes.' "

RANTANAN TOLD the court Zamora said he talked to Mrs. Haggart for an hour and a half, and "it was rather friendly and he was convinced he had talked her out of calling the police."

"He stood up and said: 'Mrs. Haggart, you aren't going to call the police are you,' and she said, 'but I have to call police."

Rantanan said Zamora then told him:

"I took the pillow, wrapped the gun in the pillow and shot her. The pillow didn't stop the sound very well. She fell over. I knew she was dead."

THE TRIAL BEFORE Circuit Judge Paul Baker is being televised and rebroadcast in the evenings by a local education television station under a year-long experiment authorized by Florida's Supreme Court.

Cahill and Picciolo told the nine-man, three-woman jury Zamora provided both the car and money, which the state claims were stolen from Mrs. Haggart, for the two-day trip to Disney World.

The teen-age witnesses, who all wore styled long hair and three-piece suits with open collar shirts, said they didn't begin to suspect Zamora had killed Mrs. Haggart until several days after they returned to Miami Beach.

Senate still deadlocked in filibuster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A proposal to phase out controls on natural gas prices survived a test vote in a filibuster-weary Senate Friday, but opponents immediately resumed delaying tactics.

Backers of the deregulation plan by Sens. James Pearson, R-Kan., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., defeated an attempt to kill the bill by a vote of 50 attempt to kill the bill by a vote of 50 to 44.

That kept the legislation alive and left the Senate frozen into a double filibuster mounted by opposing sides of the drawn-out natural gas debate.

Asked after the vote whether his compromise forces have a change to stop those who favor deregulation, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said, "I don't think we can."

"THE PROPER form for this is the (House-Senate) conference," Jackson said, meaning his forces will get their best chance to thwart gas price deregulation when the two chambers try to resolve the many differences between the energy bills each passes.

The House earlier approved President Carter's proposal of increasing the price of new natural gas to $1.75 per 1,000 cubic feet and then letting it rise gradually. That bill does not provide for deregulation.

The deregulation plan would put newly produced gas under a ceiling of approximately $2.50 per 1,000 cubic feet, compared with the current $1.45, and would lift that ceiling in two years on gas from onshore wells. New offshore gas would be freed in five years.

The test vote followed futile, daylong efforts by the Senate leadership to get rid of the ammunition — hundreds of delaying amendments — both sides were using in the two-way filibuster and move the chamber toward a vote on the main legislation.

ELEVEN TIMES Democratic Leader Robert Byrd tried to get a Senate agreement to consider certain serious amendments, and 11 times a senator objected.

Byrd slapped a stack of amendments the size of the Washington phone book down on his desk and gave up the attempt.

The Senate was spinning its wheels just as it had been for several days, droning through one delaying amendment after another so neither side — pro or anti-deregulation of natural gas — could get its favored bill to the floor.

BYRD BEGAN the breakthrough attempt at 3:35 p.m., when the weary Senate was considering — and the presiding officer was ruling out of order — amendments at a one-a-minute clip.

After six hours of various meetings among senators, some bipartisan, some among Democrats, some among Republicans, Byrd announced he had promised some senators to try for a time limit.

"I hold in my hand the amendments that remained to be called up," Byrd said, waving a two-inch-thick stack with a rubber band around it.

He asked for unanimous consent for a 4:30 p.m. "up or down vote" on the major amendment, the deregulation proposal by Bentsen and Pearson.

"I object," said Sen. Russell Long, D-La., leader of one filibuster for deregulation.

BYRD ASKED about a 5 p.m. vote.

"I object." Again Long.

Long suggested a vote all at one time on 50 amendments Long considered dilatory.

"I object," said James Abourezk, D-S.D., who has been leading the filibuster against deregulation.

And so it went.

Byrd gave up and the Senate droned on.

At issue for the nation in all this was the price of gas, the size of utility bills and whether federal price ceilings will disappear in the near future. Also at issue, for the senators involved, were political reputations and an exhausting test of wills and influence.

Get the message? Smoking stinks

The Illinois Division of the American Cancer Society Friday announced a new tactic to get teen-age girls to stop smoking. It will tell them they stink. The television, radio, newspaper and youth group campaign is expected to go national when it is presented to the full society for approval in November, Cele Gagan, public information officer of the Illinois Division, said. The idea, she said, is that while warnings of cancer caused by cigarettes have not stopped teen-age girls from smoking, a warning that tobacco breath makes them less kissable might.

"We're not abandoning the medical approach, but we're trying the cosmetic approach in this case," she said. Next month, the program's television messages will show the woe that can befall a pretty girls when she smokes. Flowers will wilt as she passes and even skunks will take off. Only pigs will take a fancy to her. Certainly not good-looking athletic boys who don't smoke. The theme of the campaign is "smoking stinks."

11 arrested on drug charges

At least 11 Springfield residents were arrested Friday and more arrests were expected on drug charges following an eight-month Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement investigation. Among those arrested were repeat offenders and some of the major drug dealers in central Illinois, department spokesman Les Pauly said. The arrests, made by department investigators, state police, Springfield policemen and Sangamon County Sheriff's deputies, were based on suppressed grand indictments, Pauly said, on charges including delivery of controlled substances. He said a law enforcement department undercover agent purchased such substances as heroin, cocaine, PCP and LSD.

State developing fiscal guidelines for officials

Local governments soon will be able to use an "early warning system" to find out whether they are in good financial shape or heading towards financial disaster.

The warning system, a set of guidelines being developed by the state comptroller's office, is based on statistics that have been collected for years.

"These data can provide some useful information," said Vito Bianco, deputy comptroller, noting that until now the information just sat on the shelf.

Michael Bakalis

Bianco and others from the comptroller's office outlined the early warning system at an all-day seminar on local government finances at Harper College Friday.

STATE COMPTROLLER Michael J. Bakalis said the seminar, one of five being conducted throughout the state, is designed to help the local taxing bodies get through some rough times.

Bakalis said he has found many local officials are strugging with finances without having any solid guideposts.

"There is uncertainty about what people want and what they need," he said.

About 80 school, park and municipal officials turned out for the seminar, which dealt with such topics as audits, debt, grant management and internal organization. Speakers included persons from both the public and private sector.

Noting that the state and local government have "a much closer relationship than ever before," Bakalis said such seminars will develop better communication beteen the two.

"I JUST DON'T think it exists very often and I think it should," he said.

To open the seminar, Bakalis outlined the results of a recent public opinion poll that showed persons generally are confused about the role of state government.

Respondents said they were concerned about lack of jobs, rising taxes, crime and the condition of the streets. They said, however, they thought the state should spend money on education and street repair.

"They do not see that the state should be spending money on the things that are important to them," Bakalis said.

He said it is important to keep these attitudes in mind when developing a fiscal program.

Apologies douse cross-burning hurt

David Ryan's neighbors walked past the ugly black scar on the lawn and knocked on his door.

We're sorry this happened, they said. Is there anything we can do? they asked.

By mid-afternoon Friday, more than 40 persons had called or visited the Ryans, the only black family in Hanover Park's Longmeadows South neighborhood and the target of a cross-burning Wednesday night.

POLICE STILL are looking for the vandals they say are responsible for burning the cross-shaped scar into the lawn at Ryan's home at 1150 Countryside Dr. Since he moved to the neighborhood two weeks ago, Ryan said vandals also have vomited on his car and thrown bottles at his garage.

Friday's visits and phone calls, he says, have helped.

"Everybody in the eighborhood has been calling and coming over," he said. "They were pretty upset about this happening to another family on the block. So I guess they had a meeting and came over to apologize and to do what they could."

lashed out at the neighborhood, calling it "the unfriendliest neighborhood I've ever been in."

"I'VE GOT A clearer understanding of what this neighborhood is like," he said Friday. "I don't want to put this neighborhood in a bad light."

One of the callers was Phyliss Romeo, who lives on the other side of town at 1765 Redwood Ave. "I was just very upset that this had happened," she said. "I just wanted them to know that there aren't only rotten people in the world."

They Ryans' children got a similar response from their classmates, said Keshina Ryan.

"This is a very nice place to be," she added. "The people have come forward and shown me that they are nice people.

Candlewood tenants face lawsuit

Two tenants of the Candlewood Apartments, Rand and Willow roads, Arlington Heights are being sued for rent they withheld after going all summer without air conditioning.

Summons were served Friday on Mr. and Mrs. John Lynch and Mr. and Mrs. Todd Hetzel, ordering them to appear in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court Oct. 11.

Both tenants had their September rent checks returned when they deducted $116 for the 58 days in July and August when they had no air conditioning.

Draper & Kramer, Inc., managers of the apartment complex, had offered a deduction of $1 per day.

The Lynchs and Hetzels were among the tenants of Building 8 at Candlewood who formed a tenants' union in June because of the problems with the air conditioning unit in the building.

The unit worked only four days this summer, tenants said.

There have been problems with the air conditioning unit in Building 8 for at least three years, Daniel Tarry, environmental health officer for the Village of Arlington Heights, said.

"Last year it was really horrendous," Tarry said. "The village has no ordinances regarding air conditioning, but when there is no heat we try to get on them right away," he said.

A new heating and air conditioning unit is now being installed in the basement of Building 8 and should be operating before the end of next week, a Draper & Kramer representative said Friday.

Pancake breakfast at school today

The Buffalo Grove High School Choral Guild is sponsoring a pancake breakfast from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the school cafeteria, 1101 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove. Proceeds will be used for scholarships and related activities.

Tickets may be purchased at the door. The cost is $2 for adults, $1.50 for children less than 12 and free for preschoolers. Drawings for door prizes will be hourly.

Appeals court to hear parks annex battle

Lynnwood situation was brought to her attention, clarifies the definition of "highway."

"With the new legislation, a park district definitely cannot use a residential street as a 'highway,' " Mrs. Macdonald said. "The new law makes it impossible to bend the intent of the law."

THE PARK DISTRICT association of Illinois supported the new legislation, Mrs. Macdonald said. "They agreed that the intent of the original legislation was not for residential streets to be considered highways," she said.

Attorneys for the Lynnwood association and the park district could not be reached for comment Friday.

Park district officials have supported their annexation of the Lynnwood area, saying residents of that area use Arlington Heights parks. Young disagrees.

"We never use them. Our homes are built on minimum one-half acre lots, so our children don't need to go to parks to play," Young said.

"The people here don't want to be annexed. The park district has nothing to offer us, except higher taxes," he said.

200 ill from gas leak in Philadelphia

As much as four tons of deadly chlorine gas escaped early Friday from a small section of broken pipe at a water treatment plant in northwest Philadelphia, sickening nearly 200 persons. The gas cloud that blanketed several blocks surrounding the plant forced the evacuation of several hundred families and the hospitalization of at least 11 persons. "What happened was that a small section of pipe broke in the manifold connecting four cylinders of chlorine," said Water Commissioner Carmen F. Guarino. "We know the source of the leak," he added, "but we don't know what made the pipe break."

Lake of lava threatens village

A 25-foot-high pool of steaming lava from erupting Kilauea Volcano slowly grew into a molten lake above the Hawaiian village of Kalapana Friday. It was expected to overflow and surge toward 18 houses and two churches directly in its path. Scientists said a depression, fast filling with lava, had slowed the flow's progress one mile from the town, but it still was aimed at the homes in Kalapana and probably would reach them sometime today. Civil defense and National Guard teams evacuated families, animals and household belongings. They also searched for five teen-age hikers who wandered into the rugged lava area Thursday night and disappeared, but they turned up safe Friday.

GOP panel opposes canal pact

The Republican National Committee Friday opposed the Panama Canal treaty and condemned President Carter's foreign policy as "inconsistent and dangerously weak." The committee approved a resolution rejecting the treaty by voice vote, with what appeared to be about a dozen members of the 160-plus member committee voting against it. The proposal, which paid high tribute to the "consistency and strength" of former President Gerald Ford's foreign policy, but which did not mention his endorsement of the Panama treaty, was approved after a short but spirited debate.

2nd diamond case investigated

New York Police said Friday they were investigating a possible connection between the slaying-robbery of gem broker Pinchos Jaroslawicz and the July disappearance of another diamond merchant. Abraham Shafizadeh, 31, who worked near Jaroslawicz in Manhattan's close-knit Diamond district, disappeared last July 28 while carrying $300,000 in gems to Puerto Rico. Jaroslawicz' body was found Wednesday bound in a fetal position, wrapped in a plastic bag and stuffed in a box in the office of gem cutter Shlomo Tal. Tal, 31, told police he was kidnaped Sunday by two men five days after he watched them kill and then rob Jaroslawicz of an estimated $1 million in gems.

Soviet supersonic flight set Nov. 1

The Soviet Union's trouble-plagued supersonic airliner, the TU-144, finally will go into regular passenger service Nov. 1 — some six years behind schedule. The Soviet Ministry of Civil Aviation Friday certified the "Concordski" for regular passenger service beginning Nov. 1 on the 2,500-mile run between Moscow and Alma Ata, the capital of Soviet Kazakhstan. Tass said the supersonic airliner would cover the route in an hour and 55 minutes — compared with the four hours it takes the Ilyushin 62 jetliners Aeroflot now uses on the run.

Drinking party causes furor

Reports that young West German officers symbolically burned Jews and exchanged Nazi salutes at a drinking party created a furor Friday at the Defense Ministry, which promised a full investigation. Naval Capt. Kurt Fischer told reporters the officers might be cashiered if they were involved in an anti-Semitic, pro-Nazi incident. He said drunkenness would be no excuse. Lt. Gen. Ruediger von Reichert, deputy commander of the armed forces, arrived in Munich Friday and began an investigation at the Bundeswehr (armed forces) Military College where the drinking party was held Feb. 16, Fischer said.

Ethiopian trade leader killed

The head of Ethiopia's trade union organization was assassinated by "reactionaries" on his way home from work, Radio Addis Ababa said Friday. In another development, a group of armed men forced their way into the Italian embassy in the Ethiopian capital, pistol-whipped two staff members and fled into the night. The Addis Ababa broadcast, monitored in Nairobi, said Temesgen Madebo, 40, was shot after leaving his office at the All-Ethiopian Trade Unions Thursday night. He died a short while later in a military hospital.

Pope: no plans for resigning as church head

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI Friday opened the fifth World Synod of Bishops by announcing he had no intention of stepping down as leader of the world's 541 million Roman Catholics.

In his inaugural speech, the fragile, 80-year-old pontiff welcomed the bishops as "beloved sons" and thanked them for the warm greetings sent on his 80th birthday Monday.

"From this event in our life," said the pontiff, referring to his birthday, "for all the time that God may wish to allow us, we have the firm resolution to dedicate all our strength for the good of the church."

Pope Paul VI

The Vatican strongly has denied recurring press speculation that the pontiff soon would resign and that synod participants would hold private consultations on a successor to the papacy.

THE PONTIFF told synod participants that while modern man may think himself an athiest, he actually is exploring the mysteries of the cosmos in search of God.

Speaking in Latin in the Sistine Chapel before Michelangelo's towering fresco of the Final Judgment, the pontiff said this century of doubt and dangers is "a privileged time for proclaiming the Gospel."

The pope celebrated mass in the ornate chapel with 204 bishops from all continents who convened in Rome to debate better ways of teaching the catechism to young people.

Pope Paul, who was disturbed by liberal views expressed in past synods, personally selected the relatively innocuous theme for the present gathering, discarding suggestions for a debate on youth and the family in the modern world.

BUT PARTICIPANTS said these more controversial themes were certain to be raised during the four-week debate — "inevitably or indirectly."

"In a nonsuperficial perspective, the present time is not to be considered atheistic but rather one of faith, the time of our own faith, which is the true one," the Pope said. "The time in which we live is a privileged time for proclaiming the Gospel."

The Pope told the bishops theirs was "a great, perilous and difficult office."

Pope Paul established the synod, an advisory body that now meets at three-year intervals, in 1967.

200 ill from gas leak in Philadelphia

As much as four tons of deadly chlorine gas escaped early Friday from a small section of broken pipe at a water treatment plant in northwest Philadelphia, sickening nearly 200 persons. The gas cloud that blanketed several blocks surrounding the plant forced the evacuation of several hundred families and the hospitalization of at least 11 persons. "What happened was that a small section of pipe broke in the manifold connecting four cylinders of chlorine," said Water Commissioner Carmen F. Guarino. "We know the source of the leak," he added, "but we don't know what made the pipe break."

Lake of lava threatens village

A 25-foot-high pool of steaming lava from erupting Kilauea Volcano slowly grew into a molten lake above the Hawaiian village of Kalapana Friday. It was expected to overflow and surge toward 18 houses and two churches directly in its path. Scientists said a depression, fast filling with lava, had slowed the flow's progress one mile from the town, but it still was aimed at the homes in Kalapana and probably would reach them sometime today. Civil defense and National Guard teams evacuated families, animals and household belongings. They also searched for five teen-age hikers who wandered into the rugged lava area Thursday night and disappeared, but they turned up safe Friday.

GOP panel opposes canal pact

The Republican National Committee Friday opposed the Panama Canal treaty and condemned President Carter's foreign policy as "inconsistent and dangerously weak." The committee approved a resolution rejecting the treaty by voice vote, with what appeared to be about a dozen members of the 160-plus member committee voting against it. The proposal, which paid high tribute to the "consistency and strength" of former President Gerald Ford's foreign policy, but which did not mention his endorsement of the Panama treaty, was approved after a short but spirited debate.

2nd diamond case investigated

New York Police said Friday they were investigating a possible connection between the slaying-robbery of gem broker Pinchos Jaroslawicz and the July disappearance of another diamond merchant. Abraham Shafizadeh, 31, who worked near Jaroslawicz in Manhattan's close-knit Diamond district, disappeared last July 28 while carrying $300,000 in gems to Puerto Rico. Jaroslawicz' body was found Wednesday bound in a fetal position, wrapped in a plastic bag and stuffed in a box in the office of gem cutter Shlomo Tal. Tal, 31, told police he was kidnaped Sunday by two men five days after he watched them kill and then rob Jaroslawicz of an estimated $1 million in gems.

Soviet supersonic flight set Nov. 1

The Soviet Union's trouble-plagued supersonic airliner, the TU-144, finally will go into regular passenger service Nov. 1 — some six years behind schedule. The Soviet Ministry of Civil Aviation Friday certified the "Concordski" for regular passenger service beginning Nov. 1 on the 2,500-mile run between Moscow and Alma Ata, the capital of Soviet Kazakhstan. Tass said the supersonic airliner would cover the route in an hour and 55 minutes — compared with the four hours it takes the Ilyushin 62 jetliners Aeroflot now uses on the run.

Drinking party causes furor

Reports that young West German officers symbolically burned Jews and exchanged Nazi salutes at a drinking party created a furor Friday at the Defense Ministry, which promised a full investigation. Naval Capt. Kurt Fischer told reporters the officers might be cashiered if they were involved in an anti-Semitic, pro-Nazi incident. He said drunkenness would be no excuse. Lt. Gen. Ruediger von Reichert, deputy commander of the armed forces, arrived in Munich Friday and began an investigation at the Bundeswehr (armed forces) Military College where the drinking party was held Feb. 16, Fischer said.

Ethiopian trade leader killed

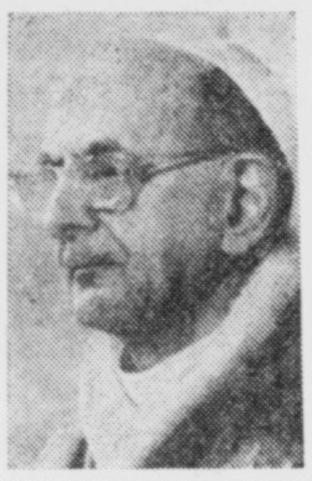
The head of Ethiopia's trade union organization was assassinated by "reactionaries" on his way home from work, Radio Addis Ababa said Friday. In another development, a group of armed men forced their way into the Italian embassy in the Ethiopian capital, pistol-whipped two staff members and fled into the night. The Addis Ababa broadcast, monitored in Nairobi, said Temesgen Madebo, 40, was shot after leaving his office at the All-Ethiopian Trade Unions Thursday night. He died a short while later in a military hospital.

Pope: no plans for resigning as church head

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI Friday opened the fifth World Synod of Bishops by announcing he had no intention of stepping down as leader of the world's 541 million Roman Catholics.

In his inaugural speech, the fragile, 80-year-old pontiff welcomed the bishops as "beloved sons" and thanked them for the warm greetings sent on his 80th birthday Monday.

"From this event in our life," said the pontiff, referring to his birthday, "for all the time that God may wish to allow us, we have the firm resolution to dedicate all our strength for the good of the church."



Pope Paul VI

The Vatican strongly has denied recurring press speculation that the pontiff soon would resign and that synod participants would hold private consultations on a successor to the papacy.

THE PONTIFF told synod participants that while modern man may think himself an athiest, he actually is exploring the mysteries of the cosmos in search of God.

Speaking in Latin in the Sistine Chapel before Michelangelo's towering fresco of the Final Judgment, the pontiff said this century of doubt and dangers is "a privileged time for proclaiming the Gospel."

The pope celebrated mass in the ornate chapel with 204 bishops from all continents who convened in Rome to debate better ways of teaching the catechism to young people.

Pope Paul, who was disturbed by liberal views expressed in past synods, personally selected the relatively innocuous theme for the present gathering, discarding suggestions for a debate on youth and the family in the modern world.

BUT PARTICIPANTS said these more controversial themes were certain to be raised during the four-week debate — "inevitably or indirectly."

"In a nonsuperficial perspective, the present time is not to be considered atheistic but rather one of faith, the time of our own faith, which is the true one," the Pope said. "The time in which we live is a privileged time for proclaiming the Gospel."

The Pope told the bishops theirs was "a great, perilous and difficult office."

Pope Paul established the synod, an advisory body that now meets at three-year intervals, in 1967.

Barker admitted arcade murder, state's attorney says at hearing

James E. Barker Jr. admitted to his parents and police that he shot to death a 21-year-old Prospect Heights man, an assistant state's attorney testified Friday.

Collin Simpson, Cook County assistant state's attorney who questioned Barker, 17, after his arrest for a shooting spree at a Mount Prospect pinball gallery Aug. 9, said Barker admitted to Simpson, and later his parents, that he had committed the shootings.

"I asked him why," Simpson said. "He (Barker) said life was just too dull, he wanted to put some excitement into it. He said he was surprised the body of Mr. (Otto) Meisenheimer did not go 'splat' when the bullets struck the body of Mr. Meisenheimer."

SIMPSON TESTIFIED in the Chicago courtroom of Judge Jose R. Vazquez at a hearing to determine whether Barker, of 1270 Wheeling Rd., Mount Prospect, is mentally competent to stand trial for the murder of Meisenheimer, of 107 E. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights, and the wounding of four other persons.

Barker Aug. 9 allegedly took a .22-caliber revolver and a box of ammunition into the Just Games arcade, 403 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, and opened fire. He surrendered when police arrived.

Defense attorneys for Barker say their client is the victim of amnesia, and earlier produced a doctor who testified Barker cannot remember the 19-hour period during which the shootings occurred.

To back up their claim, Barker's lawyers Friday said results of an EEG examination showed apparent abnormalities in the youth's brain waves, an indication of possible mental illness.

However, prosecutors have produced four witnesses who said Barker clearly recalled and admitted to them the shootings.

VAZQUEZ GAVE defense attorneys until Oct. 18 to produce the doctor that administered the brain-wave examination to Barker last week.

If Vazquez rules for the prosecutors, the state will seek to have Barker tried for murder as an adult. Barker was 16, a juvenile, at the time of the shootings.

Simpson was the last witness the state produced to show Barker admitted his role in the shootings.

Simpson said he spoke to Barker at the Mount Prospect police station immediately after his arrest.

Barker described to him how he had gone to Wisconsin three or four days before the shootings and purchased a $10 handgun and a box of ammunition from a couple who had given him a ride in their car, Simpson said.

James E. Barker

BARKER ALSO told how he allegedly murdered Meisenheimer and wounded four other persons, Simpson said.

Simpson said Barker repeated the same story to his parents after they arrived at the police station. He said police had a tape recording to prove it.

Charles Loverde, one of Barker's two defense attorneys, objected to Simpson's testimony, saying Barker was too young to knowingly waive his right to silence and speak with police and assistant state's attorneys.

"He (Simpson) had absolutely no right to talk to that child," Loverde said. "He bombarded him for six to seven hours, with questions he should not have asked."

The next hearing on Barker's competency will be 2:30 p.m. Oct. 13 in Vazquez' courtroom at the Cook County Juvenile Courts Building, Ogden Avenue and Oakley Boulevard, Chicago.

Barker is being held at the Audy Juvenile Home, Chicago.

Gas price sign law goes into effect today

Motorists can put away their magnifying glasses today if they are out shopping for a tankful of gasoline.

A new state law requiring that gas station price signs must show the full pump price takes effect today.

Gone are the days when the base price towered four feet tall with the additional taxes appearing in near microscopic type below.

THE NEW LAW is especially welcome in Rolling Meadows, where service station operators have complianed that a 2½-year-old city ordinance requiring full pricing put them at a competitive disadvantage with neighboring stations in other communities that did not require full pricing.

"We never really cared what the law was just as long as everybody had to play by the same rules. Thank God the state has finally decided to agree with us," said Don Langton, owner of a Standard station at Euclid Avenue and Hicks Road, Rolling Meadows.

"I think full pricing will take a lot of the baloney out of price advertising. But I'll tell you one thing, you're going to see a lot fewer price signs displayed," he said.

For years, Illinois gas stations have played games with price signs, said Langton, a service station operator for the past 17 years.

"A LOT OF PEOPLE just never bothered to look at the pump price once they pulled in," he explained. Other drivers who may have been surprised by the difference between the sign and pump price just found it too inconvenient to drive away once they had pulled into a station.

Langton said he has not had a price sign at his station since Rolling Meadows passed its full pricing ordinance in June, 1975.

Eric Christiansen, owner of the Standard station at 1801 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, also took down his price sign after the city ordinance was enacted, but says he may now put the sign back up.

"The state law should eliminate some of the friction on the border (between towns)," he said Friday. "I have enough competition without being put at a disadvantage because of a sign law."

Christiansen said he knows some of the stations around him are able to sell gas at a lower price. But the new full-pricing law "helps to narrow the gap a little," he said.

GOV. JAMES R. Thompson meets with protesters who picketed his appearance in Chicago Friday morning. The protesters were demanding that Thompson rescind a state freeze on funding for mentally handicapped individuals who need private residential care. About 25 persons were involved in the protest.

Joe's mother still looking for some aid took him to a psychiatrist.

The psychiatrist said Joe was emotionally disturbed, not retarded, and told Mrs. LaLoggia that there was a 70 per cent chance that he could help him.

Four years later, however, the psychiatrist said there was nothing more that he could do and recommended that Joe be placed in a residential treatment center.

SHE CONTACTED Chicago's Read Zone Center, and officials there recommended that they place Joe at Willowglen.

Willowglen charges $1,850. That's a lot of money, more than the LaLoggias can afford, but it's not high compared to others in the residential treatment business. State institutions in Illinois charge between $1,237 and $8,760 per month, Mrs. LaLoggia says, and they don't offer the help that Joe needs.

So she filled out an application for a state grant. That was Aug. 23, after Thompson's freeze already had taken effect, and the state said no, Willowglen was too expensive.

"SINCE THEN, I have been going out of my mind trying to find the right person to find out what to do," Mrs. LaLoggia says. "It seems like they're trying to keep open the state institutions.

"No matter who I talk to, they say, 'That's the way it is.' All these crusaders are going to run out there, and then they come back and say, 'That's the way it is.' "

Now, she sends Joe each day to an agency in Mount Prospect. It functions primarily for youngsters with disciplinary problems and the director told Mrs. LaLoggia that Joe does not really belong there.

It is not that she has great dreams for him. She hopes only that some day Joe will be able to work at a menial job and live by himself.

MEANWHILE Joe stays in his room and plays the radio and draws with his pencil.

And Mrs. LaLoggia takes the train into Chicago to wave signs at the governor.

"I'm working under a pressure of time," she says. "There's only one school and only one bed, and if that is taken, they won't be able to take him until June."

Hodgkin's Disease outlook better

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most young adults who get Hodgkin's Disease, once an almost inevitably fatal cancer, now are living disease-free for more than five years with many likely to live out normal lifetimes, doctors reported Friday.

The cancer specialists said progress in the past 15 years in using radiation and anticancer drugs to deal with Hodgkin's Disease represents one of the most spectacular advances of the past decade in the war against cancer.

"We don't understand this disease at all," said Dr. Samuel Hellman of the Harvard Medical School. "We don't know how it's caused. We have no idea how it spreads. But despite that, we have reasonably effective ways of curing it.

HODGKIN'S DISEASE, a malignancy of the lymph system, is rare among the population as a whole, but it is considered relatively common among the age group it most often strikes — men and women between 20 and 40. About 8,000 new cases are expected this year in the United States.

Dr. Mortimer Lacher, of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, said at a national conference on the disease that eight of 10 Hodgkin's Disease patients now are surviving five years or more with many expected to be cured.

By cure, Lacher explained that he tells his patients that the possibility of a relapse always is present, but he said most are expected to live as long as their peers.

"Whether their life is changed by Hodgkin's Disease or not, they're really cured," he said.

"It's a rather spectacular and pleasant experience to have lived through this age of development."

LACHER SAID there still are problems with Hodgkin's Disease, however, and the most serious is the fact that two of every 10 patients are dying "no matter what we do." Specialists now are devoting more effort to finding out why.

Another problem is what he called the "complications of survival." Some patients develop cancers of other organs as a result of the radiation and anticancer drugs.

One reason for the complications, said Dr. Saul Rosenberg of the Stanford University School of Medicine, is that probably half of Hodgkin's Disease patients are being overtreated, with doctors not knowing which patients don't need all the treatment.

Legion outbreaks to be investigated

ATLANTA (UPI) — The national Center for Disease Control centered its investigation of Legionnaires' disease on clusters of cases in three states Friday, searching for a common source of the infection that kills 15 per cent of its victims.

Outbreaks of the pneumonia-like illness, usually marked by rapidly rising fever, have occurred in hospitals at Columbus, Ohio, Burlington, Vt., and Kingsport, Tenn.

Nine cases and one death were reported in Columbus, seven cases and three deaths in Burlington, and three confirmed or suspected cases and one death in Kingsport, Tenn., with one other suspected case in Knoxville, Tenn.

Local bands to compete in festival

Wheeling High School's 10th annual Chicagoland Marching Band Festival will be at 7 p.m. today at the Wheeling High School stadium, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

Ten Illinois high school show bands will compete for Grand Champion honors, including bands from Rolling Meadows High School in Rolling Meadows, Fremd High School in Palatine, Prospect High School in Mount Prospect, Schaumburg High School in Schaumburg and Lake Park High School in Roselle.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for students. Proceeds will go to the Wheeling Wildcat Marching Band for expenses incurred during the year.

Although the Wheeling band is hosting the competition and cannot compete for the title, the band members will perform while the judges tabulate the scores.

The Wheeling band has performed for three U.S. Presidents visiting Chicago, Gerald Ford, Richard Nixon and Lyndon Johnson. The band, under director Jack Williamson, has won honors in contests in Canada and Mexico as well as in more than 40 other contests.

Masked by mud, the show goes on at Arlington Park

It was a season when jockeys gained five pounds during a race and when silks turned into sludge.

An abnormal abount of rain "whet" the appetite of the thoroughbred racing fan during the 103-day meeting at Arlington Park.

Even track announcer Phil Georgeff probably had trouble remembering whether the stucco-like figures were spinning or splashing out of the turn and down the puddled stretch.

Some horses are born mudders, bred from parents who excelled in the slop. Others will stop dead in their tracks when their feet get wet.

It was up to the handicappers to figure out which was which, usually while balancing an umbrella, a pencil and the Daily Racing Form. Nobody, though, complains about cashing soggy tickets.

THEATRE

"CINDERELLA," an X-rated movie, opened-and-closed-Friday at the Meadows Theater in apparent violation of Rolling Meadows obscenity law.

X-rated film shut by cops

owners decided to show an edited version of the film to avoid arrest.

But Smith told theater employes that "certain parts of the movie violate our ordinance." He listed "fondling, simulated sex acts, lesbian play and masturbation" as examples.

STANFORD KOHLBERG, owner of the theater will be arrested later, Smith said. Farber was arrested because he was responsible for showing the film.

Kohlberg refused to comment.

Farber was taken in a police van to the police station, 3600 Kirchoff Rd. where he posted $35 bail and was released.

Copies of the film were turned over to a Cook County Circuit Court judge.

The management had to refund money to about 30 persons who arrived lated and were not permitted to view the beginning of the next showing. Employes turned away several patrons who arrived for the 8:45 p.m. showing. They later arranged to have the James Bond thriller, "The Spy Who Loved Me" brought to the theater.

Most of the patrons were amused and surprised by the arrest. A middle-aged woman, who refused to give her name, was angered.

"THAT'S JUST great," she said. "They're trading sex and love for violence. I'm just crazy about violence."

"This is one of the funniest things that's ever happened to me," another woman said.

Police Chief Lewis Case, who arrived with Capt. Ralph Evans and four other policemen as the arrest were being made, congratulated Smith for "nice work" and asked if minors were arrested. None were. When employes told him another movie was being brought in, Case said, "Make it something nice to match our community."

Case said police had warrants for the arrests early Friday morning.

SOME OF THE city's aldermen noticed the theater marquee Friday morning and also were disturbed by the previous week's R-rated movies, "The Happy Hooker Goes to Washington" and "Swedish Love Girls." Ald. Billy McMinn, 2nd, talked to City Mgr. Thomas Palmer about it.

"I was concerned that they might be violations of our ordinance," he said. Ald. Lorraine Godawa, 3rd, who headed the obscenity movement also planned to do something about the movies. Friday morning she said she hoped something could be worked out between city officials and theater owners.

"If he (Kohlberg) can be reasoned with, we'll certainly try that first," she said. "A court case would be our last resort."

Mrs. Godawa was unavailable for comment after the arrest Friday night.

Senate panel OKs retirement bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Human Resources Committee Friday approved a bill to raise the mandatory retirement age for millions of Americans from 65 to 70.

On the urging of President Carter, however, the panel delayed the effective date until Jan. 1, 1979.

The House recently passed a similar bill 359 to 4, but it would take effect six months after enactment.

IN A LETTER to Senate committee chairman Harrison Williams, D-N.J., Carter said the longer period is needed to "permit employers and employes to plan for a smooth transition" and allow time for evaluation of the impact.

A 1976 law already prohibits private employers and state and local governments from discrimination based on age against persons between 40 and 65. Both the House and Senate bills would raise the age to 70.

With some exceptions, this would mean that agreements between employers and employes calling for mandatory retirement under age 70 no longer would be valid.

No one knows exactly how widespread these mandatory retirement agreements are. In one national poll, more than a third of retirees over 65 said their retirement was automatic because of age. Sixty-five is the most common compulsory retirement age in private enterprise.

IN ANY CASE, the number of Americans to be affected runs into the millions.

The Senate bill would not take effect until 1980 in the case of many compulsory retirement programs negotiated between management and labor, in order to give them more time to negotiate new ones.

It also would permit fixed retirement ages less than 70 for jobs where age is an important factor, such as law enforcement and air traffic control.

Unlike the House version, the Senate bill would leave the allowable mandatory retirement age at 65 for college and university professors on full tenure; tenured elementary and secondary school teachers unless state law allows them to work to age 70; and business executives with pensions worth more than $20,000, which generally means those now earning over $38,000 a year.

THE SENATE bill would not change the present mandatory retirement age of 70 for most federal employes, whereas the House version would entirely remove that ceiling.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., principal author of the House bill, urged a letter-writing campaign against what he called the "fruitless delay and arbitrary exemptions" in the Senate committee version.

"Competence, not age, ought to determine whether a person is hired, promoted or retired in a job," he said.

With the Senate bogged down in its energy fillibuster, it appears unlikely the retirement bill will reach the floor there until next year.

Getting hitched not so easy now

and DAVID FIELDS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Starting Saturday, getting married in Illinois will put a bigger bite on your pocketbook and your patience. But getting a divorce should be less traumatic.

Under two new laws signed recently by Gov. James R. Thompson and effective Oct. 1, marriage license application fees go from $10 to $15 and "quickie" marriages are eliminated by requiring a three-day wait between the time a liciense is bought and the wedding ceremony.

The waiting-period provision is included in the state's first comprehensive divorce reform since 1874. Other changes include elimination of jury trials and the need to detail charges in divorce cases. Child custody and property settlement procedures also are simplified.

ALTHOUGH MOST county clerks contacted by UPI seemed happy with the marriage liciense fee hike, clerks in counties bordering other states expressed fear of losing revenues because of the three-day wait.

Illinois' "no-wait" law has been a money-maker for border counties over the years. Thousands of impatient couples cross the state line every year to get married because they have to wait at least three days in their home states bordering Illinois.

Gallatin County Deputy Clerk Evadeen Mills said about 650 licenses, most to Indiana and Kentucky couples, are granted in Shawneetown every year. "We'll be lucky to have 30 a year now. I think we're going to lose a lot of revenue.

"We liked the $15 part but not the three-day part of the new laws," she said.

ACROSS THE state in Quincy, Adams County Clerk Lois E. Miller agreed. "This will be a loss of revenue for Adams County. A lot of people from Missouri and Iowa come over here."

Carl Schoenhard, Joe Davies County clerk, said about 50 per cent of the approximately 500 licenses granted in Galena each year are to Iowa and Wisconsin couples. "They'll stay in their home state now, I imagine," he said.

St. Clair Cunty Clerk C. Barney Metz said he is more concerned with providing convenience than any potential revenue loss. "We're only a 20-minute drive from downtown St. Louis and we have a tremendous amount of people from over there. We liked it because people could have one-stop service."

Metz said he used to see many wedding gowns and tuxedos. "I don't guess we'll see any at all now."

SANGAMON County Clerk Gary Tumulty also said he would miss seeing the bridal attire on wedding day. "Many couples would have arrangements made with a minister or a judge and be married right by the fountain and bridge next to the county building," Tumulty said.

His office is extending its hours on Wednesday evenings to accommodate persons wanting Saturday weddings. "Most weddings seem to take place on Saturday," he explained.

THEATRE

"CINDERELLA," an X-rated movie, opened-and-closed-Friday at the Meadows Theater in apparent violation of Rolling Meadows obscenity law.

owners decided to show an edited version of the film to avoid arrest.

But Smith told theater employes that "certain parts of the movie violate our ordinance." He listed "fondling, simulated sex acts, lesbian play and masturbation" as examples.

STANFORD KOHLBERG, owner of the theater will be arrested later, Smith said. Farber was arrested because he was responsible for showing the film.

Kohlberg refused to comment.

Farber was taken in a police van to the police station, 3600 Kirchoff Rd. where he posted $35 bail and was released.

Copies of the film were turned over to a Cook County Circuit Court judge.

The management had to refund money to about 30 persons who arrived lated and were not permitted to view the beginning of the next showing. Employes turned away several patrons who arrived for the 8:45 p.m. showing. They later arranged to have the James Bond thriller, "The Spy Who Loved Me" brought to the theater.

Most of the patrons were amused and surprised by the arrest. A middle-aged woman, who refused to give her name, was angered.

"THAT'S JUST great," she said. "They're trading sex and love for violence. I'm just crazy about violence."

"This is one of the funniest things that's ever happened to me," another woman said.

Police Chief Lewis Case, who arrived with Capt. Ralph Evans and four other policemen as the arrest were being made, congratulated Smith for "nice work" and asked if minors were arrested. None were. When employes told him another movie was being brought in, Case said, "Make it something nice to match our community."

Case said police had warrants for the arrests early Friday morning.

SOME OF THE city's aldermen noticed the theater marquee Friday morning and also were disturbed by the previous week's R-rated movies, "The Happy Hooker Goes to Washington" and "Swedish Love Girls." Ald. Billy McMinn, 2nd, talked to City Mgr. Thomas Palmer about it.

"I was concerned that they might be violations of our ordinance," he said. Ald. Lorraine Godawa, 3rd, who headed the obscenity movement also planned to do something about the movies. Friday morning she said she hoped something could be worked out between city officials and theater owners.

"If he (Kohlberg) can be reasoned with, we'll certainly try that first," she said. "A court case would be our last resort."

Mrs. Godawa was unavailable for comment after the arrest Friday night.

Senate panel OKs retirement bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Human Resources Committee Friday approved a bill to raise the mandatory retirement age for millions of Americans from 65 to 70.

On the urging of President Carter, however, the panel delayed the effective date until Jan. 1, 1979.

The House recently passed a similar bill 359 to 4, but it would take effect six months after enactment.

IN A LETTER to Senate committee chairman Harrison Williams, D-N.J., Carter said the longer period is needed to "permit employers and employes to plan for a smooth transition" and allow time for evaluation of the impact.

A 1976 law already prohibits private employers and state and local governments from discrimination based on age against persons between 40 and 65. Both the House and Senate bills would raise the age to 70.

With some exceptions, this would mean that agreements between employers and employes calling for mandatory retirement under age 70 no longer would be valid.

No one knows exactly how widespread these mandatory retirement agreements are. In one national poll, more than a third of retirees over 65 said their retirement was automatic because of age. Sixty-five is the most common compulsory retirement age in private enterprise.

IN ANY CASE, the number of Americans to be affected runs into the millions.

The Senate bill would not take effect until 1980 in the case of many compulsory retirement programs negotiated between management and labor, in order to give them more time to negotiate new ones.

It also would permit fixed retirement ages less than 70 for jobs where age is an important factor, such as law enforcement and air traffic control.

Unlike the House version, the Senate bill would leave the allowable mandatory retirement age at 65 for college and university professors on full tenure; tenured elementary and secondary school teachers unless state law allows them to work to age 70; and business executives with pensions worth more than $20,000, which generally means those now earning over $38,000 a year.

THE SENATE bill would not change the present mandatory retirement age of 70 for most federal employes, whereas the House version would entirely remove that ceiling.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., principal author of the House bill, urged a letter-writing campaign against what he called the "fruitless delay and arbitrary exemptions" in the Senate committee version.

"Competence, not age, ought to determine whether a person is hired, promoted or retired in a job," he said.

With the Senate bogged down in its energy fillibuster, it appears unlikely the retirement bill will reach the floor there until next year.

Getting hitched not so easy now

and DAVID FIELDS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Starting Saturday, getting married in Illinois will put a bigger bite on your pocketbook and your patience. But getting a divorce should be less traumatic.

Under two new laws signed recently by Gov. James R. Thompson and effective Oct. 1, marriage license application fees go from $10 to $15 and "quickie" marriages are eliminated by requiring a three-day wait between the time a liciense is bought and the wedding ceremony.

The waiting-period provision is included in the state's first comprehensive divorce reform since 1874. Other changes include elimination of jury trials and the need to detail charges in divorce cases. Child custody and property settlement procedures also are simplified.

ALTHOUGH MOST county clerks contacted by UPI seemed happy with the marriage liciense fee hike, clerks in counties bordering other states expressed fear of losing revenues because of the three-day wait.

Illinois' "no-wait" law has been a money-maker for border counties over the years. Thousands of impatient couples cross the state line every year to get married because they have to wait at least three days in their home states bordering Illinois.

Gallatin County Deputy Clerk Evadeen Mills said about 650 licenses, most to Indiana and Kentucky couples, are granted in Shawneetown every year. "We'll be lucky to have 30 a year now. I think we're going to lose a lot of revenue.

"We liked the $15 part but not the three-day part of the new laws," she said.

ACROSS THE state in Quincy, Adams County Clerk Lois E. Miller agreed. "This will be a loss of revenue for Adams County. A lot of people from Missouri and Iowa come over here."

Carl Schoenhard, Joe Davies County clerk, said about 50 per cent of the approximately 500 licenses granted in Galena each year are to Iowa and Wisconsin couples. "They'll stay in their home state now, I imagine," he said.

St. Clair Cunty Clerk C. Barney Metz said he is more concerned with providing convenience than any potential revenue loss. "We're only a 20-minute drive from downtown St. Louis and we have a tremendous amount of people from over there. We liked it because people could have one-stop service."

Metz said he used to see many wedding gowns and tuxedos. "I don't guess we'll see any at all now."

SANGAMON County Clerk Gary Tumulty also said he would miss seeing the bridal attire on wedding day. "Many couples would have arrangements made with a minister or a judge and be married right by the fountain and bridge next to the county building," Tumulty said.

His office is extending its hours on Wednesday evenings to accommodate persons wanting Saturday weddings. "Most weddings seem to take place on Saturday," he explained.

Worship by blacks reflects culture

David E. Anderson

World of religion

It is a common sense truism to say that worship, the public expression of religious faith, is influenced and shaped by the social and cultural conditions which the believers experience outside the house of worship.

This truism seems particularly true for the black worship experience in the United States — an experience that developed out of the condition of slavery and the yearning to be free — and that sharply separates it from the white worship experience.

"When the white preacher, as a tool of the slave master, stressed the will and providence of God as a sanction for slavery, the African in America heard the clear call of a righteous God for justice, equality and freedom," said the Rev. William B. McClain, pastor of Union United Methodist Church, Boston, Mass., and an instructor in black theology and church history at Boston College.

"IT WAS IN this context that the black worship experience was born," he added.

McClain's remark opened a paper he delivered at an ecumenical conference on Worship and Spirituality in the Black Perspective that was sponsored by the National Office for Black Catholics.

One of McClain's most fascinating points — and one which should be of interest to whites caught up in new styles of worship — is the role of "community" in the black worship experience. In most white liturgical traditions in the past, the focus, even during worship services, has been on the individual.

He used the civil rights movement of the 1960s, the street demonstrations and marches, to make his point.

"BUT ALWAYS they were in the streets because they had first gathered in the church," he said. "In the gathering of the community as the church they had engaged in songs of praise and protest, they had entreated the God of history to be their guide, they had heard sermons and testimonies that related the gospel to their own unjust social situation and has been challenged to do something about, to act."

McClain used this foundation to examine some of the accents of the black worship experience that make it different from that of whites.

Of music, for instance, he noted, that it "is as close to the faith community's assembly as breathing is to life."

In a reference to the biblical Psalmist's cry of "how can I sing the Lord's song in a strange land," McClain said that black music has "kept black folk from sliding down the steep and slippery steps of death and suicide."

"Let our rituals reflect a people in pursuit of their liberation and conscious of what God means in that struggle," he said.

Haralan Popov
His testimony of
"13 YEARS IN COMMUNIST PRISONS"
Hear a Christian Leader from behind the Iron Curtain

Haralan Popov is one of the most outstanding Christian leaders to have emerged from behind the iron curtain. Rev. Popov, who has survived more than 13 years of torture and imprisonment in communist labor camps, is on a round-the-world tour fighting to help other Christians in communist countries.

During his childhood and youth he was a confirmed atheist, but he turned to God and gave his life to God's service. He became pastor of the largest Protestant Church in Bulgaria. Because he was a widely known Christian leader, Pastor Popov came to the attention of the Communists when they seized power in Bulgaria in 1948.

Rev. Popov spent years in cells packed so tightly that some men had to sleep in shifts, while others stood pressed against the walls. Prisoners ate rats and crawling insects to remain alive.

For seven months Rev. Popov was kept in a dungeon cell at the secret police headquarters for a "softening up" process. He was given only seven beans a day in warm water; beaten on his head and body; forced to STAND FACING A WALL DAY AND NIGHT WITHOUT SLEEP, one time for fifteen days . . . then kicked and beaten when he fell. He was not allowed to wash his body during the entire seven months while the communists prepared a major "showtrial." "I broke — we all broke," says Rev. Popov. "The pain and torture was indescribable."

For nine months, Rev. Popov was placed in a deep pit, along with a hundred other prisoners. The walls and roof were sealed with clay. There was only one tiny door and almost no air coming in. Often he could only breathe by burying his face in the damp moist sand floor and breathing the oxygen trapped in the sand. Men fought desperately with each other to get near the door for the little air that seeped through. Rev. Popov became pastor and chaplain to these hundred dying men and helped them survive their inhuman ordeal by his example of love, kindness, and spiritual ministry. Rev. Popov's full story is movingly told in his book Tortured For His Faith, the Zondervan best-seller.

After thirteen years of indescribable suffering, repeated beatings, and torture for his irrepressible ministry in prison, Rev. Popov was released and banned from ever preaching again.

But in freedom he never forgot the people he left behind. Now, from his "base" in the free world, Rev. Haralan Popov is vastly increasing his ministry to the people of Bulgaria and other communist lands. Because of this missionary activity the communists have fought Rev. Popov and his brother, Ladin Popov, by printing articles and producing three T.V. films trying to discredit them and their work. The Popov's headquarters are in Glendale, California.

Hear Rev. Popov speak on Sunday, October 2nd at 11:00 A.M. in the Palatine Park District Building in Birchwood Park (on Illinois Street). Sponsored by the Galilean Ministry. 537-5822 or 428-2771.

Congress must vote coherent energy policy

There is more at stake in the current Senate debate on deregulation of natural gas prices than a few hours of missed sleep by some senators or even the future cost of natural gas.

The crux of the issue is whether the nation's lawmakers are willing to draft a comprehensive energy policy that will begin to steer us away from our addiction to foreign oil.

U.S. Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, an admitted pro-administration partisan in the energy debate, said in Chicago recently that the United States is courting social and political unrest of a kind unknown since the Great Depression of the 1930's by ignoring our energy problems.

The United States has learned nothing from the Arab oil embargo of 1973, which Schlesinger calls an undiscerned Pearl Harbor. We are now importing very near 50 per cent of all the oil we use in this country.

It would be business and politics as usual to continue down this path until sometime in the 1980's when, Schlesinger predicts, the true dimensions of the problem will cripple the economy to the point it can no longer be ignored.

There are those who will dismiss Schlesinger as a mere prophet of gloom and doom, a Jeremiah who will go away if we ignore him.

But no. Our energy problems are real, if invisible. And after years of paying lip service to energy plans, it is time for the Congress to enact an energy policy along the lines proposed by President Carter and passed by the House.

There is room for compromise on the final form of that policy, just as compromise on natural gas price de-regulation is possible in the Senate.

The taxation of energy, in its various forms, proposed by the President as a way of encouraging conservation, seems a sensible approach to cutting demand and shifting industry away from oil and gas to coal which this country has in abundance.

Adjustments can and will be made in our energy plans as time and experience warrant. But the country has to get started in a serious way to facing up to the energy challenge.

Clinic deserves support

Residents of Bartlett, Streamwood and Hanover Park stand to receive major benefits from a proposal to build a satellite clinic of Elgin's Sherman Hospital in the area.

What is needed is for local officials to fall in behind Bartlett Village Pres. Richard Beltz in support of the facility.

Bartlett has taken the lead in discussions with the hospital, and Beltz and other officials currently are looking for a site for the building.

Also needed will be a major fund raising effort, since the hospital has said it will build only if the local communities can generate part of the funds.

The clinic will provide treatment for minor emergency cases, will provide X-ray equipment and a laboratory. Doctors also will be able to perform minor surgical procedures there.

The clinic could be expected to relieve some of the load on Sherman Hospital's emergency room and would provide a convenient outlet for medical care to area residents.

Such clinics are encouraged by state medical planners as one way of curbing rising hospital costs.

Altogether the proposal sounds like a positive community project that will provide service to area residents.

Bartlett, Streamwood and Hanover Park residents should work together to make the proposal a reality.

Paul Greenberg

At the age of 84, Arnosht Kolman's personal history is typical of political man in the Twentieth Century, European species: Party membership, war, imprisonment, the loss of a sibling each to Hitler and Stalin, power, purge, rehabilitation, power again and ifnally renunciation of the party and a request for political asylum. Just your average 58-year party career.

What's not average, and what is striking, is the sheer longevity of Comrade Kolman's career and that he should make his break at the age of 84. His open letter explaining that decision has been printed in the Times of London.

It was the strangulation of the Prague Spring in 1968 that finally did it for Arnosht Kolman, just as it was the Nazi-Soviet Pact or the Moscow Trials that did it for others decades before.

HIS LONG recitation of other Soviet wrongs may strike the Western reader as matter-of-fact in both senses, being both unassailable and undramatic: "The Soviet Union lacks the most elementary democratic rights. Instead of free elections, there is voting for candidates imposed from above; there is no public political life; strikes are forbidden and the trade unions are subservient to state interests; politcal discussions are forbidden and everything is covered by universal censors; information is subjected to the interests of lying propaganda . . ." So what else is new?

Comrade Kolman's is a list that would routinely earn him the title of Traitor if he had stayed in the Soviet Union and will predictably earn him that of reactionary in the West. Which says something about the West's appreciation of its own freedoms. Many of those fortunate enough to live in the West can be remarkably tolerant of Communism, and remarkably hard on those who have got out and cannot get over the horrors they have left behind.

Even now Comrade Koman concedes that Communism has made remarkable material advances. It's just that he is no longer willing to pay the price in freedom: "I am not going to deny the successes of the Soviet Union," he writes, "in ending illiteracy, in the fields of education, science, technology and in securing a better standard of living for a considerable section of the population. But man does not live by bread alone."

IT'S A DUBIOUS but common tendency that Comrade Kolman exhibits, a tendency to compare Soviet society (in 1977) with Czarist Russia (last seen in 1917) and conclude that clearly the Soviets have made great strides. It's an historical illusion that does not take into account the intervening years and the (high) possibility that a czarist or democratic Russia might have made as great or greater progress.

Even before the First World War, Russian society was approaching the point of economic take-off. And of course the Russians already had a long history of eminence in science and mathematics, not to mention the arts. With some degree of freedom, they might have achieved a material progress that would have outdistanced Soviet society today by far. But even now, Comrade Kolman does not make the connection between political and economic freedom, or see that it is possible, perhaps even likely, that both must prosper or neither will.

PERHAPS THE MOST striking thing about his letter, however, is that toward the end the political man departs from his talk about democratic rights, free trade unions, and the whole catalogue of politics, and makes a plea not so much for humane politics as simply for humanity: "A human being," he writes, "must be able to say aloud what he thinks, read what his fancy takes him to, choose his places of abode freely and go wherever he wants to go. But we are once again afraid; just as under Stalin, we hide our manuscripts, stop trusting one another, write meaningless letters for fear of the censors, and sever links with friends."

Here is a party member for the last 58 years who even now explains his reasons for originally joining the party in the tinkertoy phrases of political idology: "I joined its ranks in order to fight for social justice, for a happy future for mankind." Yet at the end he speaks of man having the right to read what his fancy takes him to, of having the right to go wherever he wants, of preserving qualities no more political than trust and friendship.

Arnosht Kolman's letter represents a victory, at 84, not so much of duty or principle or revelation, as of humanity. More than the lengthy and perfectly valid political reasons for his leaving the party, it is the humanization of Comrade Kolman that impresses. The most hopeful thing about this letter is not its pulling out the usual stops. But its recognition of the power of sheer human cussedness, of irrepressible human fancy. And what that foretells for any tyranny.

She explains private school boom

I took great interest in your Sept. 27 article regarding increased enrollments in parochial schools. While it's true that many parents are looking for the 'three r's' and stricter discipline, I believe the problem is much more complex. Since we feel that our neighborhood grade school (Ridge) provides a superior education and offers many extras, we never expected to be looking into private schools. However, there are many situations in the junior highs and high schools in Arlington Heights that disturb us.

The real crisis in public school education is education. Ten years ago educators and students promoted the notion that 17 and 18 year olds are "mature human beings" capable of assuming greater responsibility for their own education. English requirements in the high schools and junior highs became lax, and the open campus was born. Experimentation has shown that the open campus (where students are free to leave the school for part of the day) has become an escape for students who want to reject school. Teachers say that students do not make constructive use of their time, but prefer to carouse around, take a job or go home. Boredom has become a teenager's biggest enemy!

University officials blame lax high school requirements and increased use of work programs for poor college preparation, as they establish "catch up" programs for incoming freshmen who cannot pass English composition. The same students who claimed they wanted to be responsible for their own course decisions blame the high school for their deficiences after graduation. During a spring conference with her son's high school English teacher, my neighbor was told "we can always tell the students who attended Thomas Junior High because they can't write!" And so we have a high school teacher who blames the junior high, while a junior high teacher will blame the board of education for not making curriculum changes, and the board of education will claim they are giving the parents what they want! Well, it's not what this parent wants. If it requires a private or parochial school to provide a quality education for our three children, then we will try to find some way to pay for it.

'Conservatives GOP hope for future'

Your recent editorial, "GOP Must Heed Leader's Warning" was, in my view, contradictory. It seems to me that good political leaders must be able to point to some victories at the polls as well as legislative battles in the Congress.

But under past Republican "leadership" the party finds itself with but 20 per cent of the voter constituency; holding only 145 of the 435 House seats; only 37 out of 100 Senate seats; and controlling only 10 per cent of the state legislatures and 24 per cent of the State Houses. Some leadership.

I strongly agree with your contention, though, that this nation needs a strong two-party system. But only when it provides voters with clear cut alternatives of governmental philosophy. But those alternatives have been nearly non-existent for the past several decades. As a result, we find ourselves burdening future generations with astronomical debt, with an appeasement-type, no-win foreign policy and a government overloaded with arrogant, self-serving individuals who can demand 43 per cent of our GNP to maintain themselves in their folly. And they're getting away with it.

But there is still hope . . . for the nation and for the Republican Party. Because outside of the so-called "leadership" of the GOP, there are Republicans with alternatives, like Phil Crane and Ronald Reagan, and others, who are knowledgable, articulate, and persuasive. And above all, believable. Under their kind of leadership conservatism, which is at the very core of the Republican Party, is being re-established throughout the nation.

Even some of our slow-to-learn liberal candidates, whose education has cost all of us so dearly, are now espousing conservative philosophy as another election approaches.

A flail goes with this gift

by DICK WEST
(The Lighter Side)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Satchel Paige coined his immortal maxim "Don't look back, something might be gaining on you," he perhaps had Christmas in mind.

Just as surely as God made little green gift catalogs, another Yule season is sneaking up on us. Already you can hear the familiar crackle and rustle of order forms amid the junk mail.

Thanks to this early Xmas warning system, it's sometimes possible to get a line on new sociological trends before the rest of the hoi polloi becomes aware of them. For what that might be worth.

THE FIRST GIFT suggestion my eye fell upon in the 1977 Christmas catalogs was a $4,000 fuit of armor.

". . . authentic replica of armor used in Western Europe in 1500," says the blurb. ". . . tailored in seven major sections, made of steel with brass applique decoration and lined with strong fabric.

"Weighs about 75 lbs.. has about 150 separate handmade components (including some 100 moving parts) and is riveted throughout to allow for complete articulation." And that ain't all.

ALONG WITH THE armor, and at no extra charge, the lucky devil on your gift list receivees a broadsword and a flail. The latter, in event you aren't up on medieval weapons, is identified as a ball and chain mace.

In modern times, suits of armor have been used primarily as the answer to a particularly vexing decor problem in the library or drawing room. But such is not the purpose here.

Although it comes complete with a wooden display stand, this suit is meant to be more than a dust-catcher. It obviously is intended to be worn.

The catalog describes it as a "full size made-to-measure" outfit that requires "12 different body measurements" for an exact fit. (There's nothing more uncomfortable than clanking around in a suit of armor that is too short in the crotch, or something.)

FURTHERMORE, THE illustration in the catalog clearly shows a man's face peering through the helmet aperture.

And would it need "100 moving parts" with rivets that "allow for complete articulation" if it were just part of the furniture?

No. This suit is geared for action.

But what, besides an occasional costume party, might be the occasion for articulating in armor?

Congress must vote coherent energy policy

There is more at stake in the current Senate debate on deregulation of natural gas prices than a few hours of missed sleep by some senators or even the future cost of natural gas.

The crux of the issue is whether the nation's lawmakers are willing to draft a comprehensive energy policy that will begin to steer us away from our addiction to foreign oil.

U.S. Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, an admitted pro-administration partisan in the energy debate, said in Chicago recently that the United States is courting social and political unrest of a kind unknown since the Great Depression of the 1930's by ignoring our energy problems.

The United States has learned nothing from the Arab oil embargo of 1973, which Schlesinger calls an undiscerned Pearl Harbor. We are now importing very near 50 per cent of all the oil we use in this country.

It would be business and politics as usual to continue down this path until sometime in the 1980's when, Schlesinger predicts, the true dimensions of the problem will cripple the economy to the point it can no longer be ignored.

There are those who will dismiss Schlesinger as a mere prophet of gloom and doom, a Jeremiah who will go away if we ignore him.

But no. Our energy problems are real, if invisible. And after years of paying lip service to energy plans, it is time for the Congress to enact an energy policy along the lines proposed by President Carter and passed by the House.

There is room for compromise on the final form of that policy, just as compromise on natural gas price de-regulation is possible in the Senate.

The taxation of energy, in its various forms, proposed by the President as a way of encouraging conservation, seems a sensible approach to cutting demand and shifting industry away from oil and gas to coal which this country has in abundance.

Adjustments can and will be made in our energy plans as time and experience warrant. But the country has to get started in a serious way to facing up to the energy challenge.

Clinic deserves support

Residents of Bartlett, Streamwood and Hanover Park stand to receive major benefits from a proposal to build a satellite clinic of Elgin's Sherman Hospital in the area.

What is needed is for local officials to fall in behind Bartlett Village Pres. Richard Beltz in support of the facility.

Bartlett has taken the lead in discussions with the hospital, and Beltz and other officials currently are looking for a site for the building.

Also needed will be a major fund raising effort, since the hospital has said it will build only if the local communities can generate part of the funds.

The clinic will provide treatment for minor emergency cases, will provide X-ray equipment and a laboratory. Doctors also will be able to perform minor surgical procedures there.

The clinic could be expected to relieve some of the load on Sherman Hospital's emergency room and would provide a convenient outlet for medical care to area residents.

Such clinics are encouraged by state medical planners as one way of curbing rising hospital costs.

Altogether the proposal sounds like a positive community project that will provide service to area residents.

Bartlett, Streamwood and Hanover Park residents should work together to make the proposal a reality.

Paul Greenberg

At the age of 84, Arnosht Kolman's personal history is typical of political man in the Twentieth Century, European species: Party membership, war, imprisonment, the loss of a sibling each to Hitler and Stalin, power, purge, rehabilitation, power again and ifnally renunciation of the party and a request for political asylum. Just your average 58-year party career.

What's not average, and what is striking, is the sheer longevity of Comrade Kolman's career and that he should make his break at the age of 84. His open letter explaining that decision has been printed in the Times of London.

It was the strangulation of the Prague Spring in 1968 that finally did it for Arnosht Kolman, just as it was the Nazi-Soviet Pact or the Moscow Trials that did it for others decades before.

HIS LONG recitation of other Soviet wrongs may strike the Western reader as matter-of-fact in both senses, being both unassailable and undramatic: "The Soviet Union lacks the most elementary democratic rights. Instead of free elections, there is voting for candidates imposed from above; there is no public political life; strikes are forbidden and the trade unions are subservient to state interests; politcal discussions are forbidden and everything is covered by universal censors; information is subjected to the interests of lying propaganda . . ." So what else is new?

Comrade Kolman's is a list that would routinely earn him the title of Traitor if he had stayed in the Soviet Union and will predictably earn him that of reactionary in the West. Which says something about the West's appreciation of its own freedoms. Many of those fortunate enough to live in the West can be remarkably tolerant of Communism, and remarkably hard on those who have got out and cannot get over the horrors they have left behind.

Even now Comrade Koman concedes that Communism has made remarkable material advances. It's just that he is no longer willing to pay the price in freedom: "I am not going to deny the successes of the Soviet Union," he writes, "in ending illiteracy, in the fields of education, science, technology and in securing a better standard of living for a considerable section of the population. But man does not live by bread alone."

IT'S A DUBIOUS but common tendency that Comrade Kolman exhibits, a tendency to compare Soviet society (in 1977) with Czarist Russia (last seen in 1917) and conclude that clearly the Soviets have made great strides. It's an historical illusion that does not take into account the intervening years and the (high) possibility that a czarist or democratic Russia might have made as great or greater progress.

Even before the First World War, Russian society was approaching the point of economic take-off. And of course the Russians already had a long history of eminence in science and mathematics, not to mention the arts. With some degree of freedom, they might have achieved a material progress that would have outdistanced Soviet society today by far. But even now, Comrade Kolman does not make the connection between political and economic freedom, or see that it is possible, perhaps even likely, that both must prosper or neither will.

PERHAPS THE MOST striking thing about his letter, however, is that toward the end the political man departs from his talk about democratic rights, free trade unions, and the whole catalogue of politics, and makes a plea not so much for humane politics as simply for humanity: "A human being," he writes, "must be able to say aloud what he thinks, read what his fancy takes him to, choose his places of abode freely and go wherever he wants to go. But we are once again afraid; just as under Stalin, we hide our manuscripts, stop trusting one another, write meaningless letters for fear of the censors, and sever links with friends."

Here is a party member for the last 58 years who even now explains his reasons for originally joining the party in the tinkertoy phrases of political idology: "I joined its ranks in order to fight for social justice, for a happy future for mankind." Yet at the end he speaks of man having the right to read what his fancy takes him to, of having the right to go wherever he wants, of preserving qualities no more political than trust and friendship.

Arnosht Kolman's letter represents a victory, at 84, not so much of duty or principle or revelation, as of humanity. More than the lengthy and perfectly valid political reasons for his leaving the party, it is the humanization of Comrade Kolman that impresses. The most hopeful thing about this letter is not its pulling out the usual stops. But its recognition of the power of sheer human cussedness, of irrepressible human fancy. And what that foretells for any tyranny.

A flail goes with this gift

by DICK WEST
(The Lighter Side)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Satchel Paige coined his immortal maxim "Don't look back, something might be gaining on you," he perhaps had Christmas in mind.

Just as surely as God made little green gift catalogs, another Yule season is sneaking up on us. Already you can hear the familiar crackle and rustle of order forms amid the junk mail.

Thanks to this early Xmas warning system, it's sometimes possible to get a line on new sociological trends before the rest of the hoi polloi becomes aware of them. For what that might be worth.

THE FIRST GIFT suggestion my eye fell upon in the 1977 Christmas catalogs was a $4,000 fuit of armor.

". . . authentic replica of armor used in Western Europe in 1500," says the blurb. ". . . tailored in seven major sections, made of steel with brass applique decoration and lined with strong fabric.

"Weighs about 75 lbs.. has about 150 separate handmade components (including some 100 moving parts) and is riveted throughout to allow for complete articulation." And that ain't all.

ALONG WITH THE armor, and at no extra charge, the lucky devil on your gift list receivees a broadsword and a flail. The latter, in event you aren't up on medieval weapons, is identified as a ball and chain mace.

In modern times, suits of armor have been used primarily as the answer to a particularly vexing decor problem in the library or drawing room. But such is not the purpose here.

Although it comes complete with a wooden display stand, this suit is meant to be more than a dust-catcher. It obviously is intended to be worn.

The catalog describes it as a "full size made-to-measure" outfit that requires "12 different body measurements" for an exact fit. (There's nothing more uncomfortable than clanking around in a suit of armor that is too short in the crotch, or something.)

FURTHERMORE, THE illustration in the catalog clearly shows a man's face peering through the helmet aperture.

And would it need "100 moving parts" with rivets that "allow for complete articulation" if it were just part of the furniture?

No. This suit is geared for action.

But what, besides an occasional costume party, might be the occasion for articulating in armor?

She explains private school boom

I took great interest in your Sept. 27 article regarding increased enrollments in parochial schools. While it's true that many parents are looking for the 'three r's' and stricter discipline, I believe the problem is much more complex. Since we feel that our neighborhood grade school (Ridge) provides a superior education and offers many extras, we never expected to be looking into private schools. However, there are many situations in the junior highs and high schools in Arlington Heights that disturb us.

The real crisis in public school education is education. Ten years ago educators and students promoted the notion that 17 and 18 year olds are "mature human beings" capable of assuming greater responsibility for their own education. English requirements in the high schools and junior highs became lax, and the open campus was born. Experimentation has shown that the open campus (where students are free to leave the school for part of the day) has become an escape for students who want to reject school. Teachers say that students do not make constructive use of their time, but prefer to carouse around, take a job or go home. Boredom has become a teenager's biggest enemy!

University officials blame lax high school requirements and increased use of work programs for poor college preparation, as they establish "catch up" programs for incoming freshmen who cannot pass English composition. The same students who claimed they wanted to be responsible for their own course decisions blame the high school for their deficiences after graduation. During a spring conference with her son's high school English teacher, my neighbor was told "we can always tell the students who attended Thomas Junior High because they can't write!" And so we have a high school teacher who blames the junior high, while a junior high teacher will blame the board of education for not making curriculum changes, and the board of education will claim they are giving the parents what they want! Well, it's not what this parent wants. If it requires a private or parochial school to provide a quality education for our three children, then we will try to find some way to pay for it.

'Conservatives GOP hope for future'

Your recent editorial, "GOP Must Heed Leader's Warning" was, in my view, contradictory. It seems to me that good political leaders must be able to point to some victories at the polls as well as legislative battles in the Congress.

But under past Republican "leadership" the party finds itself with but 20 per cent of the voter constituency; holding only 145 of the 435 House seats; only 37 out of 100 Senate seats; and controlling only 10 per cent of the state legislatures and 24 per cent of the State Houses. Some leadership.

I strongly agree with your contention, though, that this nation needs a strong two-party system. But only when it provides voters with clear cut alternatives of governmental philosophy. But those alternatives have been nearly non-existent for the past several decades. As a result, we find ourselves burdening future generations with astronomical debt, with an appeasement-type, no-win foreign policy and a government overloaded with arrogant, self-serving individuals who can demand 43 per cent of our GNP to maintain themselves in their folly. And they're getting away with it.

But there is still hope . . . for the nation and for the Republican Party. Because outside of the so-called "leadership" of the GOP, there are Republicans with alternatives, like Phil Crane and Ronald Reagan, and others, who are knowledgable, articulate, and persuasive. And above all, believable. Under their kind of leadership conservatism, which is at the very core of the Republican Party, is being re-established throughout the nation.

Even some of our slow-to-learn liberal candidates, whose education has cost all of us so dearly, are now espousing conservative philosophy as another election approaches.

Maturing right of privacy issue fuels conflict with press freedom

by PETER C. STUART

Washington — Is it any business of the press — or the public — that various U.S. presidents from Thomas Jefferson to Grover Cleveland to John F. Kennedy may have had extramarital liaisons?

That a vicepresidential nominee underwent electroshock therapy for mental depression?

That an ex-Marine who helped foil an attempted assassination of then-President Gerald Ford was a leader of San Francisco's gay community?

THAT A CHAIRMAN of the congressional committee that writes most of the nation's tax laws was an alcoholic?

From the ink-smudged handbills of Jeffersonian America to the color television documentaries of the electronic age the press has assumed that many such personal matters are legitimate news. And so, apparently, has a public of eager readers and viewers.

But that assumption is increasingly being challenged, as the right of privacy begins to elbow for constitutional territory with the freedom of the press.

Watchdog groups of journalists and lawyers — two professions known for their mutual suspicion — agree that the up-and-coming "right to be left alone" may confront the hoary "right to know" with its stiffest single legal threat.

RECENT TWISTS IN the litigative and legislative trails suggest that they may be right.

Presidents and their families have agonized in private over press revelations about their personal lives for nearly two centuries — Jefferson anguished in a private letter in 1802 over the "sluices of calumny" unleashed by newspaper allegations about his relationship with Monticello slave Sally Hemings, but maintained a public silence.

But recent public people — as diverse as socialite Mary Alice Firestone and "human cannonball" Hugo Zacchini — are suing to protect their privacy — and winning. (Mrs. Firestone won from the U.S. Supreme Court in a libel case last year an exception for herself, and presumably other socially prominent persons, from classification as "public figures" open to wide latitude of press coverage. Zacchini won a Supreme Court claim in June that his privacy, or "professional property," had been violated when an Ohio television station filmed his act at a county fair and aired it on its evening news program.

AS THE AMERICAN press basks in the glow of public appreciation for peeling away layers of secrecy to expose attempted cover-ups in the Watergate investigation, alleged South Korean influence-buying in Congress, and the questionable finances of former Budget Director Bert Lance, federal and state governments are moving toward establishing a "right of confidentiality" in various forms for public officials and private citizens.

Although press disclosures about the medical history of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri cost him the 1968 Democratic vice presidential nomination and won the reporters of the story a Pulitzer Prize, such medical records — among other types of long-accessible documents — are increasingly being sealed.

The constitutional guarantee that absorbs the brunt of these recent developments is the one that the Founding Fathers chose to inscribe in the Constitution's Bill of Rights: "Congress shall make no law . . .abridging the freedom of spech, or of the press."

Through the years the First Amendment has come to mean that the press can comment freely, even inaccurately (short of "actual malice"), on public figures; reveal information that the government wishes to keep secret; conduct its own investigations of misdeeds, independent of the courts and other official probers.

AS A RESULT, THE American press, as the British newsmagazine the Economist recently observed with undisguised envy, "has more effective freedom today than the press of any other country."

The right of privacy, in many ways, is a "kid sister" to press freedom, watched over by many of the leading exponents of a free press — the late Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, the American Civil liberties Union, former Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and congressmen such as Rep. Edward I. Koch, D-N.Y., and Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio.

The ancestry of the right of privacy as an idea goes back only to 1890 (a law review article co-authored by Mr. Brandeis), as a federal judicial concept only to 1928 (a Supreme Court dissent by him), and as a prevailing constitutional doctrine just to 1965.

Like press freedom, the scope of the still-young right of privacy in the United States is believed to be unprecedented elsewhere. Britain, the cradle of many American legal rights, has no general right of privacy even against electronic eavesdropping.

BUT THE CONSTITUTIONAL maturing of the right of privacy in this country brings it increasingly into filial conflict with the older freedom of the press. The chief areas of contention are:

- Court decisions that threaten to crimp investigative and aggressive journalism. Invasion of privacy has been cited by state and federal courts in recent years to bar reporters from overstepping the law in exposing wrong-doing.
- Laws restricting access to previously public records, and even permitting their destruction. Some criminal justice information that had been open now is "off limits" in at least six states.

Legislation pending in Congress would broaden restrictions to a wide range of "personal information" in the files of state and local governments now considered public records — educational, financial, criminal, employment, and medical data of the sort that has been made public about Sen. Eagleton and former Budget Director Lance.

- Abuse of the nation's major privacy law, the Privacy Act of 1974, to conceal information rightfully available to the public and press. Journalists complain that federal officials tend to "misinterpret" and "overreact" to the law, which restricts the government's gathering and dissemination of information about private citizens.
- A quantum jump in the clout and scope of the right of privacy, as recently proposed by the federal Privacy Protection Study Commission and implementing legislation.

The 2-year-old commission issued in July a series of recommendations that, it says, "go beyond the openness and fairness concerns" to create "enforceable expectations of confidentiality." A package of 10 bills has been introduced in Congress to enact the proposals into law.

Press groups still are evaluating the 654-page report and bundle of bills, but one specialist on legislative issues affecting the press decries the "micro-privacy approach."

Surveying the outbreak of border skirmishes now spreading along the constitutional boundary separating press freedom and individual privacy, representatives of the news media employ such terms as "concern," "dangerous," and "alarm."

It is a concern that is recognized, if not necessarily shared, by the privacy commission. It insists that its recommendations "with one exception (medical records) do not limit or affect the ability of the press to request or obtain information."

The commission takes care to pay tribute to "the free flow of truthful information" and "the persuasive power of an active press."

Bloom's Lance coverup was Washington wisdom

Watch on Washington

It is unfortunate that Robert Bloom's craven efforts to curry favor with the Carter administration are too typical of the bowing and scraping of subordinate officials to the power of the presidency.

And, while Bloom did not win the hoped-for promotion from deputy comptroller of the currency to comptroller, he probably was better off than if he had not hidden the derogatory reports on Bert Lance from the Senate Government Affairs Committee at the time of Lance's original confirmation hearings.

Bloom's actions must be viewed in the context of the normal system of rewards and punishments in Washington.

ON THAT BASIS, few rewards and every type of conceivable punishment were likely if Bloom had rejected suggestions that he withhold details of an overdraft problem from the Federal Bureau of Investigation and from the Senate Government Affairs Committee that was conducting an investigation of Lance in connection with his nomination as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

By contrast, Bloom now admits he hoped that his cooperation on the cover up of the seriousness of the overdraft problems at the First National Bank of Calhoun would be beneficial to his career.

There has been much justified finger-pointing at Bloom following his shameful admission that he took part in the whitewash of Lance's record because of hopes for promotion.

But, in fact, he probably would have been regarded as a fool and an obstructionist if he had written a frank and forthright report on overdrafts by Lance, his wife and family, and included the most caustic views of various bank examiners on the manner in which the Calhoun bank was operating.

THE CASE OF AIR Force Cost Analyst A. Ernest Fitzgerald is the most dramatic example of the trouble that can plague a career government official who commits truth that displeases the political powers.

Fitzgerald told his truths on the nearly $2 billion in cost overruns on the Lockheed C-5A jet transport nearly nine years ago. For this he was castigated by then Air Force Sec. Harold Brown, and fired a year later despite a record of competence and truth.

It took Fitzgerald four years of court battles to win restoration to a Defense Dept. job. But even now Fitzgerald is not permitted to handle the big weapons systems where the most money could be saved, but is kept busy instead on time-consuming minor projects.

Is it any wonder Robert Bloom was not forthright about Lance's banking record? Is it any wonder that Fitzgerald may have moments when he questions the wisdom of giving truthful testimony if it involves exposure of corruption and mismanagement by the power in industry and government?

Quizzes keep her and kitty safety conscious at home

Dorothy Meyer

I've always been very safety conscious around the house and therefore enjoy a middling-to-good record of freedom from preventable accidents. This is due partly to my regular reading of checklists published by the National Safety Council, and partly because I do not like pain.

Neither does the cat, and though his reading is limited to the labels on his food, he apparently has learned some safety rules by osmosis while sitting on my lap as I read the NSC stuff. Having his tail stepped on also has taught him a lot — like, "Avoid getting under a woman's feet first thing in the morning when she may be vertical but not necessarily conscious."

Realizing that safety awareness is an ongoing thing, cat and I took another quiz just the other day. Of course I passed with flying colors, most of the questions being almost as old as I am — questions such as, "Do you avoid using electrical appliances in the bathroom?"

THIS ONE WAS dunned into me so forcefully and so early in my life that I was 18 years old before I realized that it was safe to take a bath with the lights turned on.)

And, "Are small throw rugs nonskid or tacked down?" (I solved that one the first year of my married life by throwing out all my throw rugs because I thought that's what you're supposed to do with them.)

And, "Do you avoid carrying loads of clothes so large that you can't see where you're going?" (This has never been a problem because I've never had that many clothes.)

There were also a few new questions that took me a little longer to answer, to wit:

QUESTION: IS YOUR ironing board rigid and well-balanced; does it have a non-combustible cover?

Answer: What's an ironing board?

Q.: Do you keep cabinet doors and drawers shut to prevent bumping into them?

A.: Just a minute, I'll go check . . . OUCH!

Q.: ARE YOU IN the habit of leaving an infant or toddler alone in the bath tub?

A.: At my age? I certainly hope not.

Q.: Do you avoid using power tools while standing on a wet surface?

A.: I avoid using power tools as though my life depended on it because if I did, it would.

THERE WAS JUST one question that stumped me — "Do you avoid carrying large packages up or down the stairs?"

I would certainly like to, but I can't figure out any other way to transport large packages.

I've tried throwing them up or down the stairs, but this is very hard on such things as a case of beer, my portable television set and the window fan. (It works okay with pillows, though.)

All in all, however, I figure that I'm as accident-proof as reasonable caution and common sense can make a person.

OOO! OOO!

I just discovered another question for the National Safety Council.

"Do you avoid spilling your coffee into an electric typewriter with a wet cat on your lap?"

AS A RESULT, THE American press, as the British newsmagazine the Economist recently observed with undisguised envy, "has more effective freedom today than the press of any other country."

The right of privacy, in many ways, is a "kid sister" to press freedom, watched over by many of the leading exponents of a free press — the late Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, the American Civil liberties Union, former Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and congressmen such as Rep. Edward I. Koch, D-N.Y., and Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio.

The ancestry of the right of privacy as an idea goes back only to 1890 (a law review article co-authored by Mr. Brandeis), as a federal judicial concept only to 1928 (a Supreme Court dissent by him), and as a prevailing constitutional doctrine just to 1965.

Like press freedom, the scope of the still-young right of privacy in the United States is believed to be unprecedented elsewhere. Britain, the cradle of many American legal rights, has no general right of privacy even against electronic eavesdropping.

BUT THE CONSTITUTIONAL maturing of the right of privacy in this country brings it increasingly into filial conflict with the older freedom of the press. The chief areas of contention are:

- Court decisions that threaten to crimp investigative and aggressive journalism. Invasion of privacy has been cited by state and federal courts in recent years to bar reporters from overstepping the law in exposing wrong-doing.
- Laws restricting access to previously public records, and even permitting their destruction. Some criminal justice information that had been open now is "off limits" in at least six states.

Legislation pending in Congress would broaden restrictions to a wide range of "personal information" in the files of state and local governments now considered public records — educational, financial, criminal, employment, and medical data of the sort that has been made public about Sen. Eagleton and former Budget Director Lance.

- Abuse of the nation's major privacy law, the Privacy Act of 1974, to conceal information rightfully available to the public and press. Journalists complain that federal officials tend to "misinterpret" and "overreact" to the law, which restricts the government's gathering and dissemination of information about private citizens.
- A quantum jump in the clout and scope of the right of privacy, as recently proposed by the federal Privacy Protection Study Commission and implementing legislation.

The 2-year-old commission issued in July a series of recommendations that, it says, "go beyond the openness and fairness concerns" to create "enforceable expectations of confidentiality." A package of 10 bills has been introduced in Congress to enact the proposals into law.

Press groups still are evaluating the 654-page report and bundle of bills, but one specialist on legislative issues affecting the press decries the "micro-privacy approach."

Surveying the outbreak of border skirmishes now spreading along the constitutional boundary separating press freedom and individual privacy, representatives of the news media employ such terms as "concern," "dangerous," and "alarm."

It is a concern that is recognized, if not necessarily shared, by the privacy commission. It insists that its recommendations "with one exception (medical records) do not limit or affect the ability of the press to request or obtain information."

The commission takes care to pay tribute to "the free flow of truthful information" and "the persuasive power of an active press."

Bloom's Lance coverup was Washington wisdom

Watch on Washington

It is unfortunate that Robert Bloom's craven efforts to curry favor with the Carter administration are too typical of the bowing and scraping of subordinate officials to the power of the presidency.

And, while Bloom did not win the hoped-for promotion from deputy comptroller of the currency to comptroller, he probably was better off than if he had not hidden the derogatory reports on Bert Lance from the Senate Government Affairs Committee at the time of Lance's original confirmation hearings.

Bloom's actions must be viewed in the context of the normal system of rewards and punishments in Washington.

ON THAT BASIS, few rewards and every type of conceivable punishment were likely if Bloom had rejected suggestions that he withhold details of an overdraft problem from the Federal Bureau of Investigation and from the Senate Government Affairs Committee that was conducting an investigation of Lance in connection with his nomination as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

By contrast, Bloom now admits he hoped that his cooperation on the cover up of the seriousness of the overdraft problems at the First National Bank of Calhoun would be beneficial to his career.

There has been much justified finger-pointing at Bloom following his shameful admission that he took part in the whitewash of Lance's record because of hopes for promotion.

But, in fact, he probably would have been regarded as a fool and an obstructionist if he had written a frank and forthright report on overdrafts by Lance, his wife and family, and included the most caustic views of various bank examiners on the manner in which the Calhoun bank was operating.

THE CASE OF AIR Force Cost Analyst A. Ernest Fitzgerald is the most dramatic example of the trouble that can plague a career government official who commits truth that displeases the political powers.

Fitzgerald told his truths on the nearly $2 billion in cost overruns on the Lockheed C-5A jet transport nearly nine years ago. For this he was castigated by then Air Force Sec. Harold Brown, and fired a year later despite a record of competence and truth.

It took Fitzgerald four years of court battles to win restoration to a Defense Dept. job. But even now Fitzgerald is not permitted to handle the big weapons systems where the most money could be saved, but is kept busy instead on time-consuming minor projects.

Is it any wonder Robert Bloom was not forthright about Lance's banking record? Is it any wonder that Fitzgerald may have moments when he questions the wisdom of giving truthful testimony if it involves exposure of corruption and mismanagement by the power in industry and government?

Quizzes keep her and kitty safety conscious at home

Dorothy Meyer

I've always been very safety conscious around the house and therefore enjoy a middling-to-good record of freedom from preventable accidents. This is due partly to my regular reading of checklists published by the National Safety Council, and partly because I do not like pain.

Neither does the cat, and though his reading is limited to the labels on his food, he apparently has learned some safety rules by osmosis while sitting on my lap as I read the NSC stuff. Having his tail stepped on also has taught him a lot — like, "Avoid getting under a woman's feet first thing in the morning when she may be vertical but not necessarily conscious."

Realizing that safety awareness is an ongoing thing, cat and I took another quiz just the other day. Of course I passed with flying colors, most of the questions being almost as old as I am — questions such as, "Do you avoid using electrical appliances in the bathroom?"

THIS ONE WAS dunned into me so forcefully and so early in my life that I was 18 years old before I realized that it was safe to take a bath with the lights turned on.)

And, "Are small throw rugs non-skid or tacked down?" (I solved that one the first year of my married life by throwing out all my throw rugs because I thought that's what you're supposed to do with them.)

And, "Do you avoid carrying loads of clothes so large that you can't see where you're going?" (This has never been a problem because I've never had that many clothes.)

There were also a few new questions that took me a little longer to answer, to wit:

QUESTION: IS YOUR ironing board rigid and well-balanced; does it have a non-combustible cover?

Answer: What's an ironing board?

Q.: Do you keep cabinet doors and drawers shut to prevent bumping into them?

A.: Just a minute, I'll go check . . . OUCH!

Q.: ARE YOU IN the habit of leaving an infant or toddler alone in the bath tub?

A.: At my age? I certainly hope not.

Q.: Do you avoid using power tools while standing on a wet surface?

A.: I avoid using power tools as though my life depended on it because if I did, it would.

THERE WAS JUST one question that stumped me — "Do you avoid carrying large packages up or down the stairs?"

I would certainly like to, but I can't figure out any other way to transport large packages.

I've tried throwing them up or down the stairs, but this is very hard on such things as a case of beer, my portable television set and the window fan. (It works okay with pillows, though.)

All in all, however, I figure that I'm as accident-proof as reasonable caution and common sense can make a person.

OOO! OOO!

I just discovered another question for the National Safety Council.

"Do you avoid spilling your coffee into an electric typewriter with a wet cat on your lap?"

Northwest suburbs sweep design awards

Gold, silver keys go to developers of outstanding housing construction

Housing in the Northwest suburbs swept the field to capture gold and silver key awards for outstanding construction in the Chicago area.

Developers in the Northwest suburbs won 19 of 46 awards given recently by the Home Builders Assn. of Greater Chicago at their Design '77 awards banquet.

The winners were selected from more than 120 entries by a panel of 60 judges consisting of architects, developers and marketing specialists in the home building industry.

WILLIAM KENNEDY, president of the home builders association, said, "I think we had a very good cross-section of housing."

"I was very impressed with the multitude of single-family housing offered in the program from all price ranges that won awards, from the more economical to the more expensive single-family homes," Kennedy said.

Kennedy predicted more entries competing under tougher rules for Design '78.

As for trends in housing, Kennedy said he observed "certainly more single-family entries than I anticipated" at this year's event.

"I think you'll see more townhouses and multi-family housing and keener competition, next year," Kennedy said.

THE 37 CATEGORIES in which awards were issued covered single-family attached, detached and custom-built housing; multi-family rental and sale housing; land-use planning; landscape and building architecture; interior design and furnishing; indoor and outdoor recreational facilities; and rehabilitated properties.

The home builders' association initiated the design awards in 1970 to recognize outstanding achievements in the industry.

In striving for objectivity in deciding the winners, judges were barred from participating in categories in which their own firms had submitted entries, and final tabulation and certification of judges criteria and score sheets were conducted by Price Waterhouse & Co., a Chicago accounting firm.

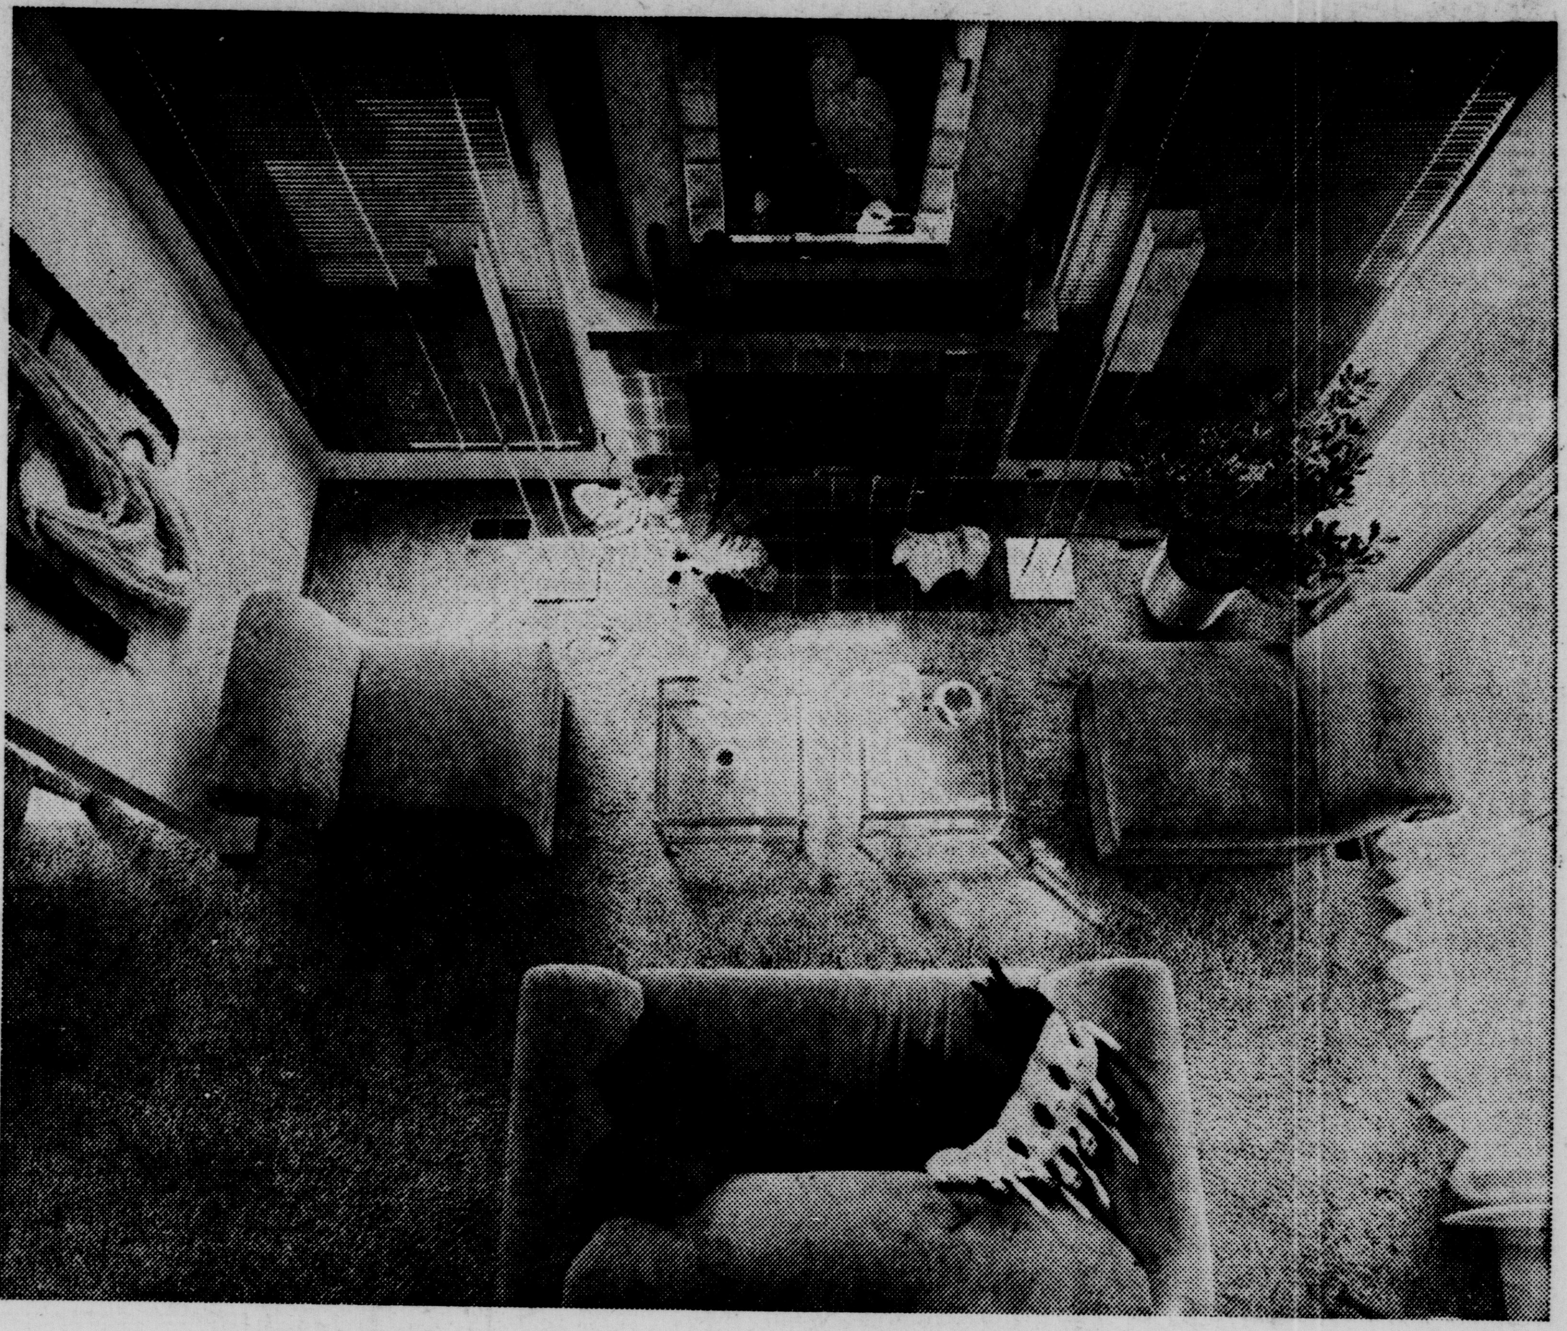
Northwest suburban winners included:

- Single-family detached division, $40,000-$50,000. Silver Key to The Amherst of the Villages of Parkwood, Elgin, U.S. Shelter Inc., builder.
- Single-family detached division, $50,000-$60,000, Silver Key to Model No. 17204 of Brook Farm, Bartlett, Inland Steel Development Corp., builder.
- Single-family detached division, $60,000-$70,000, silver key to The Sherwood Plan 301 at New England Village, Streamwood, Lexington Development Corp., builder.
- Single-family detached division, $70,000-$85,000, silver key award to Augusta 6015 of Four Colonies, Crystal Lake, Residential Development Group Inc., builder.
- Single-family detached division, $85,000-$100,000, silver key award to The Oak of Green Tree, Libertyville, Miller Builders Inc., builder.
- Single-family attached, $35,000-$45,000, gold key to Plan A at Colony Lake, Schaumburg, The Hoffman Group Inc., builder.
- Single-family attached, $45,000-$55,000, gold key to Plan C of Colony Lake, Schaumburg, The Hoffman Group Inc., builder.
- Single-family attached, $55,000-$65,000, silver key to the Brighton Townhome in Cambridge Square, Libertyville, Cambridege Homes Inc., builder.
- Single-family attached, $80,000 and over, silver key to The Edison of Lake Barrington Shores, Lake Barrington, Lake Barrington Associates, builder.
- Multi-family for sale $30,000-$40,000, gold key to Coach House B-1 at Lexington Green, Schaumburg, Lexington Development Corp., builder.
- Multi-family for sale, $40,000-$50,000, gold key to The Windsor of Lake of the Winds, Wheeling, Meister-Neiberg Co., builder.
- Multi-family for rent, two-bedroom, gold key to Plan 2-A of The Moorings at Harbor Village, Roselle, Kennedy Brothers Inc., builder.
- Land use/land planning/total environment, multi-family subdivision, gold key to The Arrowhead at Hidden Creek, Palatine, Kennedy Brothers Inc., builder.
- Land use/land planning/total environment planned unit development, with two or more housing types, gold key to Lake Barrington Shores Condo IV, Lake Barrington, Lake Barrington Associates, builder.
- Special division, architecture, silver key to Lake Barrington Shores Condo IV, Lake Barrington, Lake Barrington Associates, builder; Harry Reid, architect.
- Special division, landscape architecture, gold key to Wood Creek Courts, Lincolnshire, Blietz/Valenti Developers Inc., builder; Theodore Brickman Co., landscape architect.
- Special division, landscape architecture, silver key to Lake Barrington Shores Condo IV, Lake Barrington, Lake Barrington Associates, builder; Franz Lipp and Marvin Wehler, landscape architects.
- Special division, interior design/furnishing, silver key to Plan C at Colony Lake, Schaumburg, The Hoffman Group Inc., builder; Jean-Lee Inc., designer.
- Special division, display centers, gold key to the sales office at Lake Barrington Shores, Lake Barrington, Lake Barrington Associates, builder; Mika Design, designer.

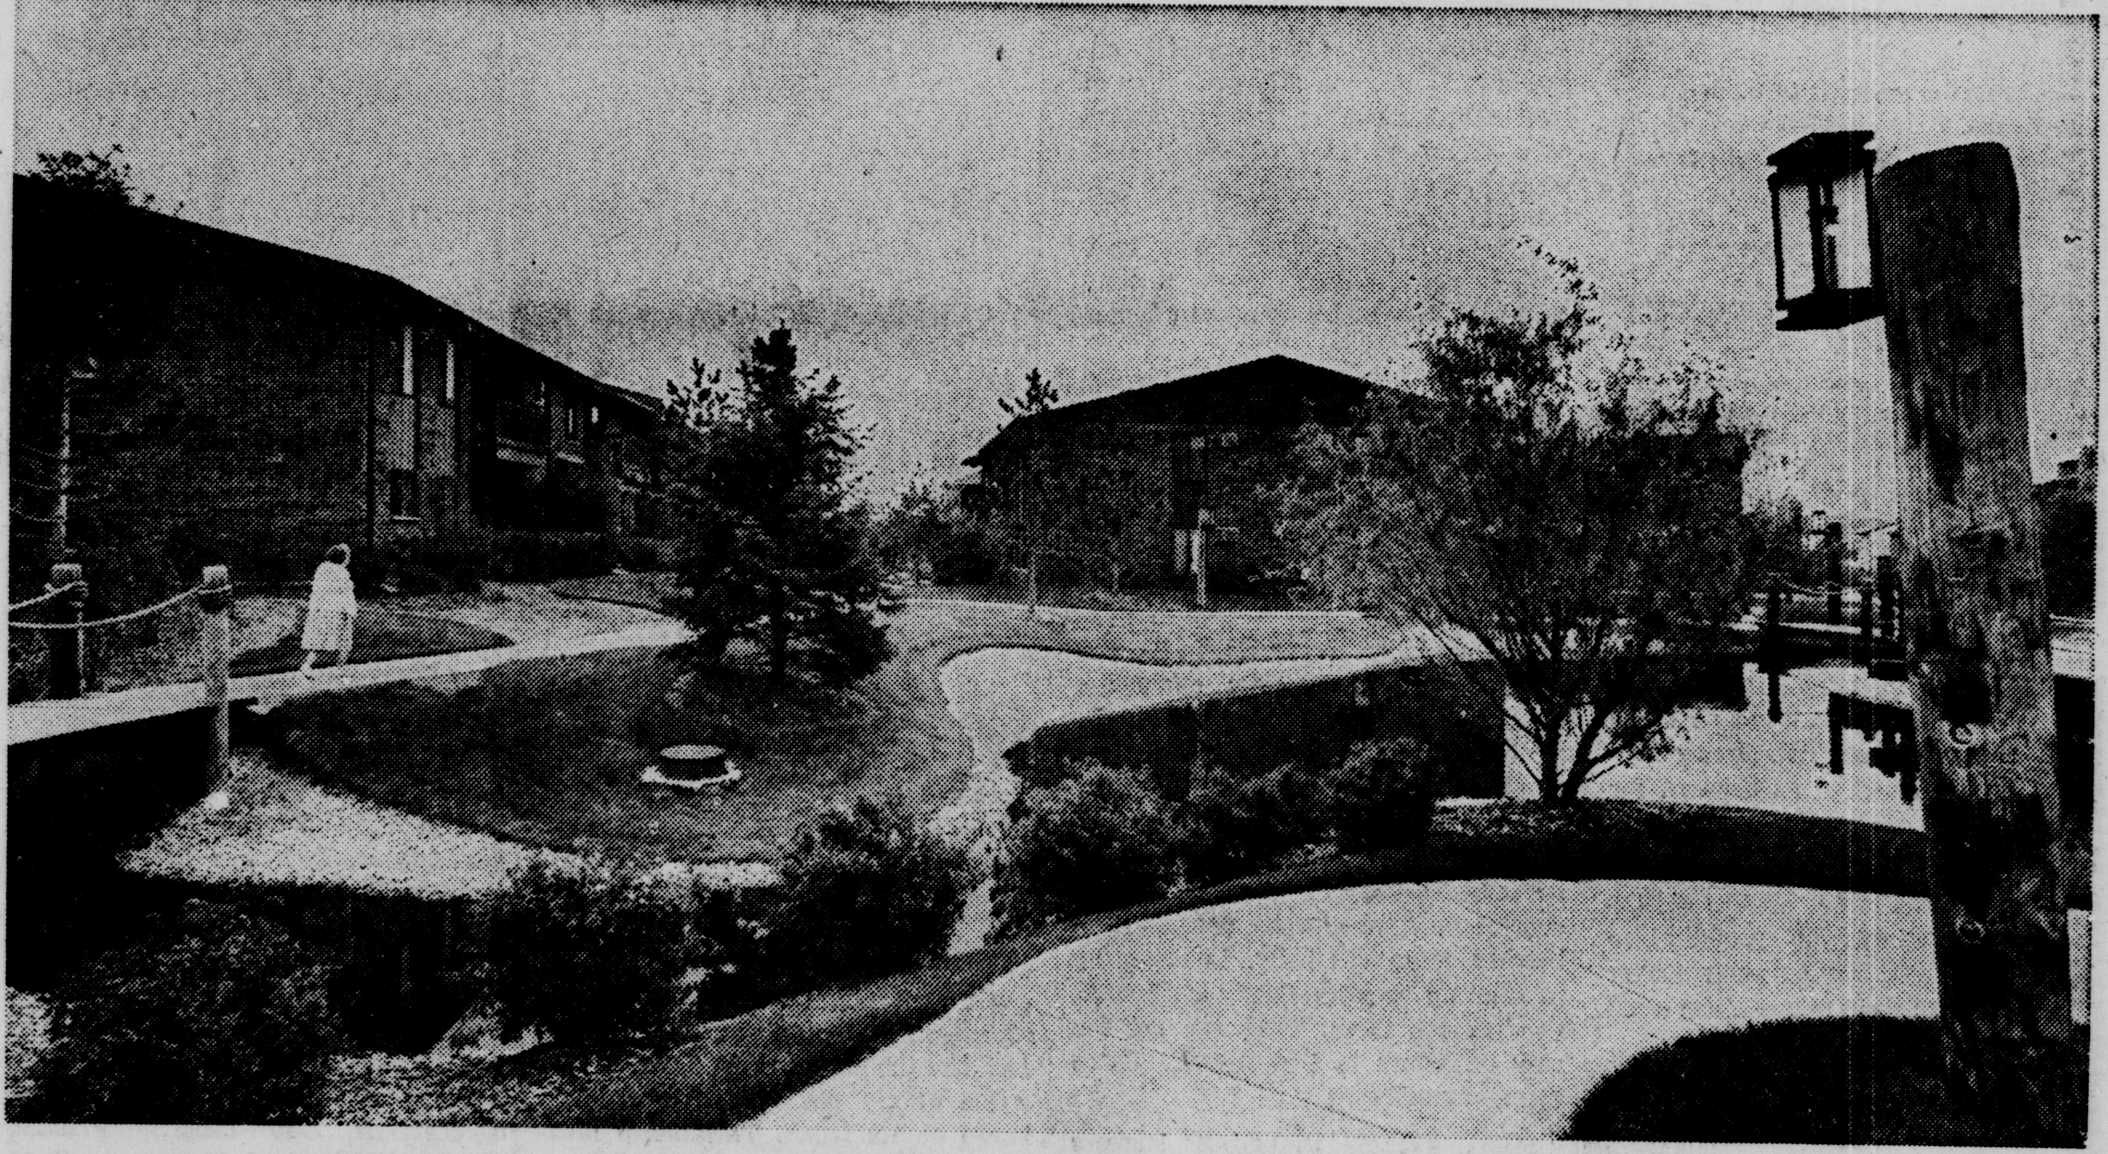
The homebuilders' association instituted at Design '77 a special award for rehabilitated properties, and gave a silver key to the New Vistas in South Shore, Chicago, Illinois Housing Development Authority, sponsor, and Chicago Area Renewal Service Corp., entrant.

Other gold and silver key winners included developments in Joliet, Glendale Heights, Naperville, Lake Forest, Wheaton, Fox Lake, Aurora, Lake Forest, Geneva, Palos Heights, Northbrook, Lisle, Country Club Hills, Gurnee and Downers Grove.

The homebuilders also presented a humanitarian award to the Chicago Area Renewal Effort Service Corp., for its work in the rehabilitation of inner-city neighborhoods.



A FEELING OF AIRY spaciousness offered by Plan C at Colony Lake, Schaumburg, produced a silver key award for interior design and furnishing for The Hoffman Group Inc., builder.



ARTFUL DESIGN INVOLVING landscaping and apartment buildings won a gold key award for Kennedy Brothers Inc., developers of the Arrowhead complex at Hidden Creek, Palatine. The Arrowhead blends together buildings, streams, lakes and dock areas.

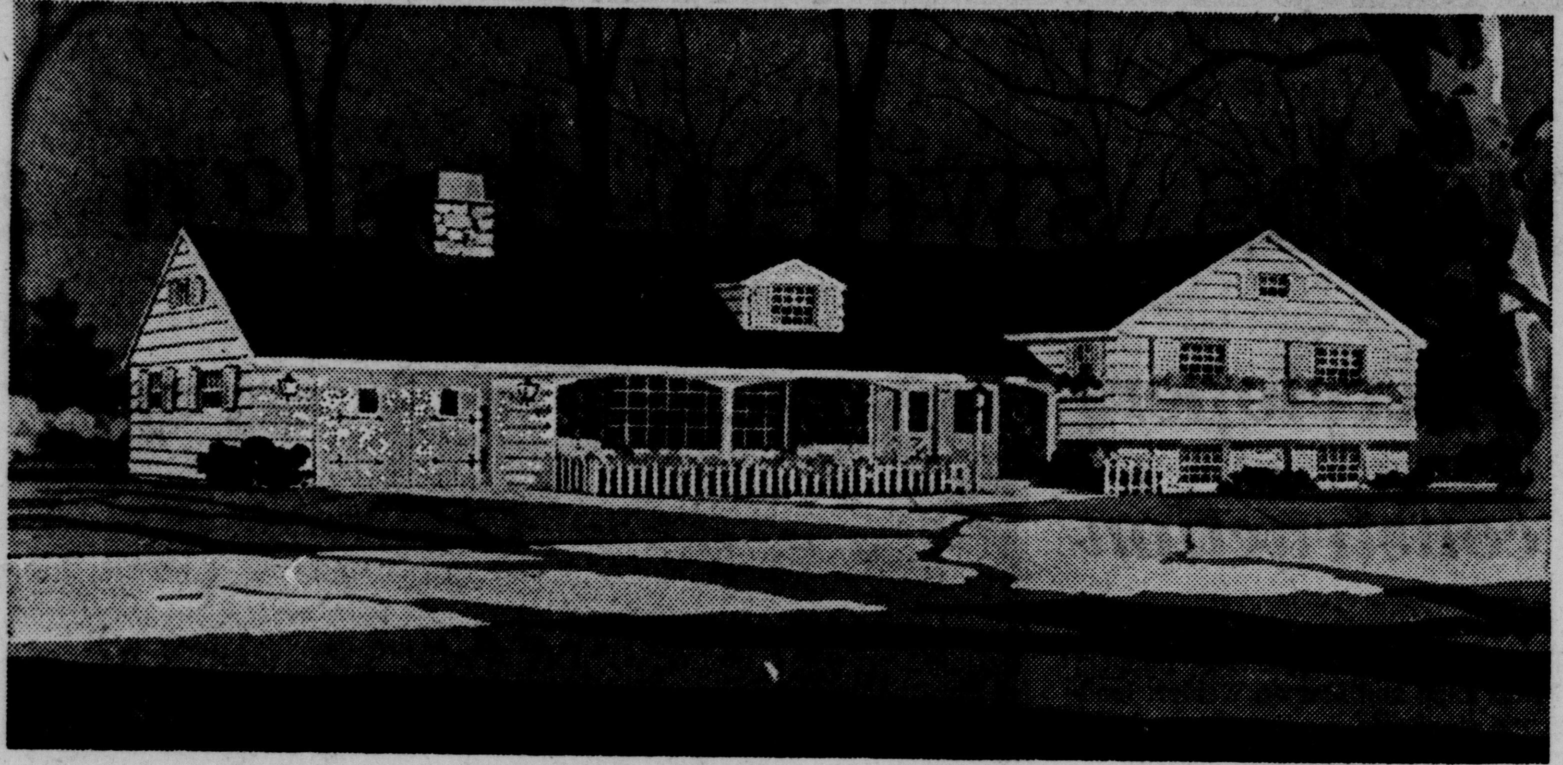
Split level offers bonus bedroom



The exterior lines of this home are as graceful and straightforward as an Old New England farm house and yet some architectural ingenuity is concealed inside.

It has five different levels, resulting in excellent zoning of formal, informal and sleeping areas. Usually, four levels are the maximum inaa split level.

Jean-Paul Saint-Michel

Home of your own

The fifth level is a real bonus for the owner of this house because it offers an expansion area which can be finished when needed to provide a fifth bedroom or studio. Located above the living room, with windows in front and back, this space compares with the second floor of a 1½ story home.

A COVERED PORCH leads into the foyer, and protects the front door from weather. On the left is the spacious living room with its large windows both front and rear. The fireplace is centrally placed at the far end. Back to the foyer and down four steps is the sunken dining room, kitchen and breakfast area, the family room and bedroom No. 4 which could be a study or office.

The rear porch is reached by way of the dining room, and a second terrace is located at the side of the house through sliding glass doors from the family room.

A bathroom with shower and vanity is located off the mud room, which has a service door to the outside. The mud room also has an opening into the family room.

Again from the foyer and up a short flight of stairs is the bedroom level with its three rooms well served by closets. The master has its own bath with shower and walk-in closet. A spacious full bathroom with double vanity is off the bedroom hall and services bedrooms No. 2 and 3 as well as the expansion room.

THE EXPANSION area is up four steps from the bedroom level. It is 18- by 14-foot and boasts a large winter/summer storage room as well as double closets.

As if this is not all, there is a large basement level located under the living room and foyer.

All this space has been carefully engineered to provide a smooth flow of traffic throughout the house by means of a series of short stairways connecting the foyer, which forms a central hub.

Exterior materials used are: horizontal wood siding, dark asphalt shingles and double-hung wood windows.

George Creed

It's your landscape

A sucker (as applied to plants) might be defined as a secondary growth rising from the lower part of a plant or from a root. Suckers sometimes are referred to as thieves, for they live off energy from the plant producing them.

However, this is not always so. Often suckers will develop around a tree stump (Fig. A). Killing such sucker growth is easy since you can use weed and brush killer chemicals. In the other examples shown you can't use chemicals because of damage to desirable parent plants. In these cases you must resort to cutting.

The lilac (Fig. B) is a shrub notorious for its habit of sending up suckers. To keep these suckers under control you have to be persistent in keeping them cut back. Lilacs seem to send up suckers almost as fast as you remove them. They are not the only offenders in this regard. There are many others.

SOME TREES DEVELOP suckers along their trunks and large branches (Fig. C). These also are called water sprouts. Usually they die as the season progresses. If they do persist, it is best to remove them, for they do the tree no good.

Occasionally a tree will send up suckers from its roots (Fig. D). Locusts, both the black and the honey, sometimes are offenders in this regard. If this occurs in a lawn area, mowing will effectively keep the suckers under control. If they grow in a shrub or flower bed, you have no other recourse but to cut them out by hand.

Incidentally, you can start a whole new plant from a rooted sucker. However, if you take a sucker from a plant that has been grafted onto a rootstock, the resulting plant may not look like the parent plant.

One of my oak trees has a large bump on its trunk. This bump measures about a foot in diameter. What caused this and will it hurt the tree?

The bump was caused by a gall injury. It will not harm your tree.

When should I prune my blue spruce tree?

In the spring when the tree has developed soft new growth.

Booklets available at cost: To receive any one of the following, write me in care of The Daily Herald, Homestyles, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and requested amount of money in coin.

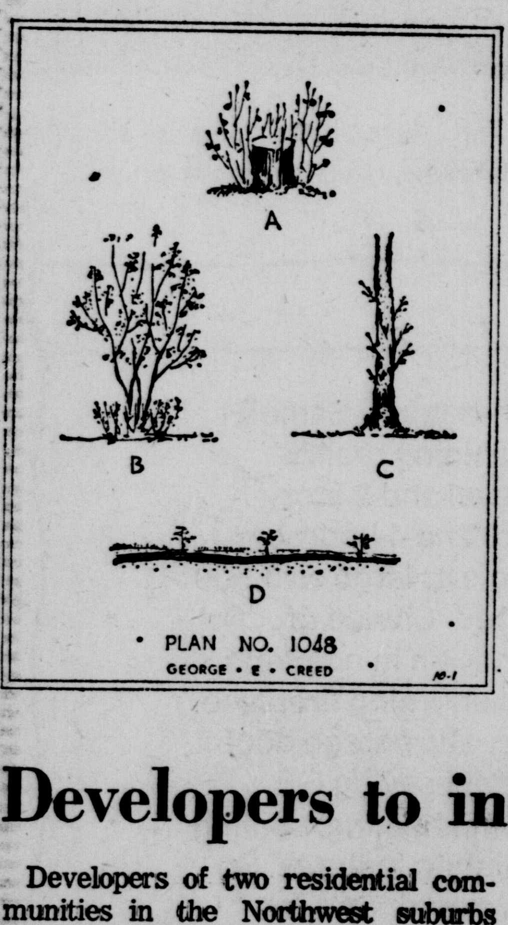
To receive all five, enclose a long, self-addressed envelope with 24 cents in stamps and 80 cents in coin.



Developers to install heat pumps

Developers of two residential communities in the Northwest suburbs have announced they will install heat pumps to conserve energy.

Heat pumps will be installed at Camelot Park Estates, on Windsor Drive north of Palatine Road in Arlington Heights; and Lake Barrington Shores, near Lake Barrington.

Both developments will use General Electric Weathertron units.

Lake Barrington, developed by Lake Barrington Associates of Chicago, is a 2-year-old community consisting of 300 townhomes and quadrominium apartment buildings. An additional 116 homes will be built.

Camelot Park Estates will be a community of 61 single-family houses, built by the Dearborn Development Co., 1309 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights.

Camelot Park Estates will consist of ranch, split-level and two-story 3- and 4-bedroom, 2½- and 3½-bath models ranging in price from $118,500 to $149,500. Information about the community can be obtained by calling the developers at 394-0010.

A heat pump works as a reversible air conditioner, extracting hot air from inside the home and discharging it outside in the summer, and extracting heat from outside and discharging it inside in the winter.

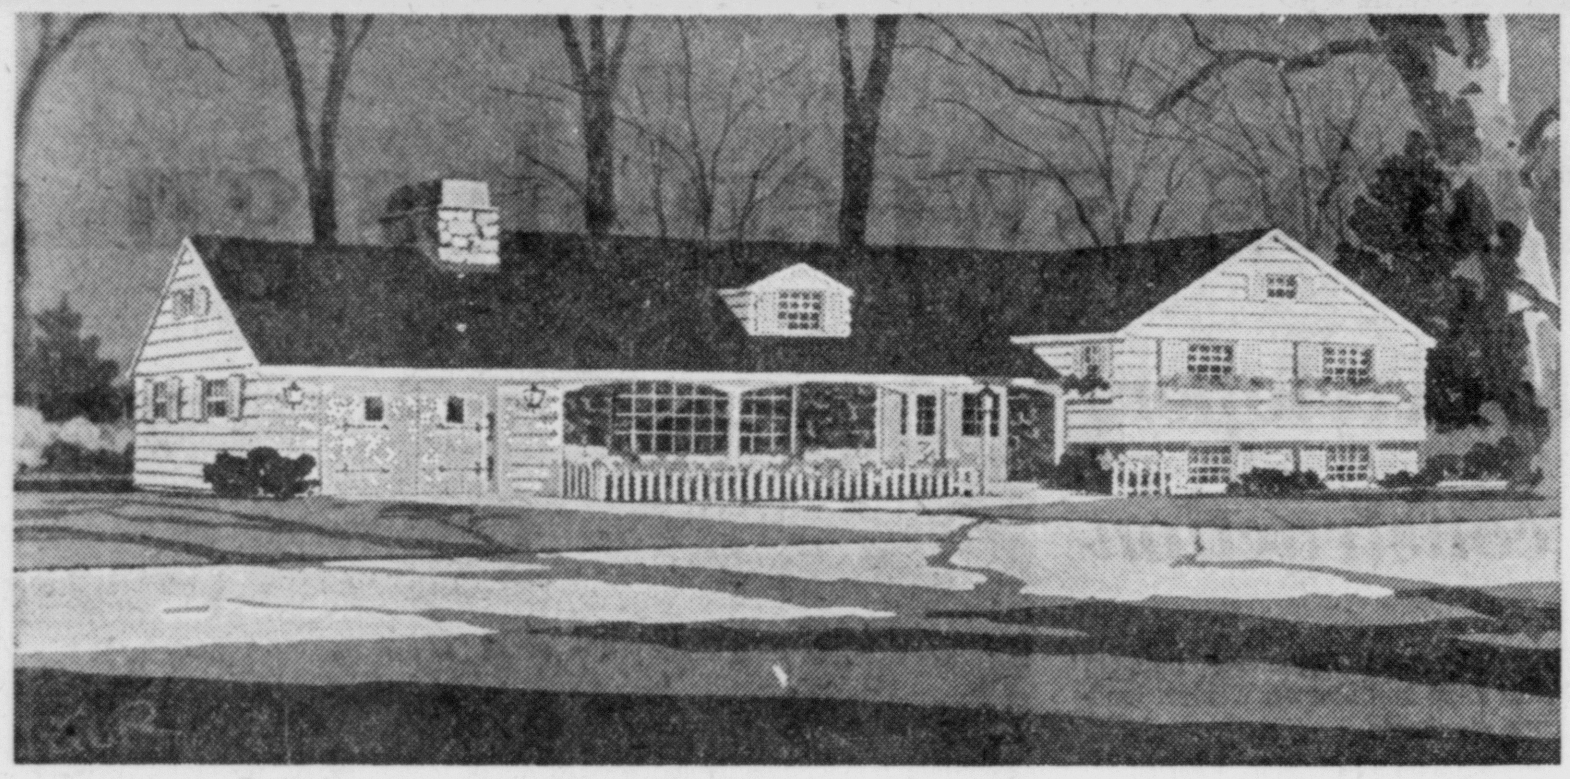
Split level offers bonus bedroom



The exterior lines of this home are as graceful and straightforward as an Old New England farm house and yet some architectural ingenuity is concealed inside.

It has five different levels, resulting in excellent zoning of formal, informal and sleeping areas. Usually, four levels are the maximum inaa split level.

Jean-Paul Saint-Michel

Home of your own

The fifth level is a real bonus for the owner of this house because it offers an expansion area which can be finished when needed to provide a fifth bedroom or studio. Located above the living room, with windows in front and back, this space compares with the second floor of a 1½ story home.

A COVERED PORCH leads into the foyer, and protects the front door from weather. On the left is the spacious living room with its large windows both front and rear. The fireplace is centrally placed at the far end. Back to the foyer and down four steps is the sunken dining room, kitchen and breakfast area, the family room and bedroom No. 4 which could be a study or office.

The rear porch is reached by way of the dining room, and a second terrace is located at the side of the house through sliding glass doors from the family room.

A bathroom with shower and vanity is located off the mud room, which has a service door to the outside. The mud room also has an opening into the family room.

Again from the foyer and up a short flight of stairs is the bedroom level with its three rooms well served by closets. The master has its own bath with shower and walk-in closet. A spacious full bathroom with double vanity is off the bedroom hall and services bedrooms No. 2 and 3 as well as the expansion room.

THE EXPANSION area is up four steps from the bedroom level. It is 18- by 14-foot and boasts a large winter/summer storage room as well as double closets.

As if this is not all, there is a large basement level located under the living room and foyer.

U.S. mobile home industry seeks to dispel prejudices

The U.S. mobile home industry is shooting for respectability.

Such was the message delivered this week in Rosemont at the Manufactured Housing Institute's 15th National Suppliers Show at the O'Hare International Trade and Exposition Center.

More than 5,000 manufacutrers and suppliers of the industry gathered at their annual, multi-million dollar marketplace to view, and barter over, the latest wares for the $3 billion mobile home trade.

James J. Myers, chairman of the show, said, "This show is designed to be a forum for the manufacturers and suppliers, to have a total interchange of ideas and needs of the industry.

"WE OFFER manufacturers a central point they can come to and see first hand the latest in products and review what the industry has to offer them," he said.

Though Myers said he did not know the exact dollar amount of sales deals struck at the show, he estimated it ran "into the tens of millions."

Makers of mobile homes, in striving to capture a share of the American home-buying public frozen out by rising real estate prices, recognize they must overcome the prejudices that have built up against the "manufactured" home — "preconceived, and basically incorrect, prejudices," Myers said.

"Fewer and fewer American wage earners can afford conventional, on-site single-family housing being offered in the conventional housing market today," Myers said.

"THEREFORE THE Manufactured Housing Institute has gasped this opportunity to improve and redesign their product so it does gain the approval of the buyer," Myers said.

"One of the trends I think is a greater interest in better design and better decor," Myers said, "more and more toward the styling found in conventional, on-site built homes."

For example, Myers said, many manufacturers now offer a choice of exteriors — a step beyond the traditional corrugated aluminum of existing mobile homes. Today the buyer can choose among metals, wood and vinyl plastic, Myers said.

Manufacturers also have improved interior options of mobile homes; one even offers bathroom ceramic tile, Myers said.

"The range of the product line has never been broader than it is today," Myers said.

PRODUCTS DISPLAYED at the show included electrical equipment, appliances, exterior and interior furnishings, flooring, roofing, safety devices, windows, doors, carpeting and heating and cooling equipment.

Evidently, major manufacturers of home appliances and components are taking interest in the growing mobile home industry, which accounted for nearly 30 per cent of the new single-family housing market, and 76 per cent of all single-family homes sold for less than $30,000 in 1976, according to MHI.

Exhibitors at this year's show included GAF Corporation, General Electric/Hotpoint, Georgia-Pacific Corporation, Monsanto Co., Reynolds Metal Co., Sears, Roebuck and Co., United States Gypsum Co., United States Steel Corporation, Westinghouse Electric and Weyerhaeuser Co.

MHI reported 246,120 shipments for sales testimated at $3.1 billion in 1976.

Next year's MHI suppliers show will be Sept. 26-28 in St. Louis.

VA to recognize HOW inspection

The Veterans Administration has instituted changes that are expected to open up more new homes for VA financing programs.

The VA has announced it will recognize a home inspection program carried out by the Home Owners Warranty Corp., Washington, D.C., and the corporation's insurance against major structural defects in lieu of requirements for VA financing.

Builders not participating in the HOW inspection system still will have to meet VA requirements to qualify for financing.

Several steps necessary for securing VA financing have been eliminated for the HOW builder, including the conditional Certificate of Reasonable Value and VA inspections.

A spokeman for HOW said his firm expects more builders may make homes available to veterans because the VA has cut required paperwork.

The HOW program is designed to protect homebuyers against defects by holding builders responsible for faulty workmanship and materials for the first year of ownership; and for defects in piping, wiring and duct work and against major structural defects during the second year.

For the next eight years, the home is protected against major structural defects through insurance underwritten by the American Bankers Insurance Co. of Florida.

PRODUCTS DISPLAYED at the show included electrical equipment, appliances, exterior and interior furnishings, flooring, roofing, safety devices, windows, doors, carpeting and heating and cooling equipment.

Evidently, major manufacturers of home appliances and components are taking interest in the growing mobile home industry, which accounted for nearly 30 per cent of the new single-family housing market, and 76 per cent of all single-family homes sold for less than $30,000 in 1976, according to MHI.

Exhibitors at this year's show included GAF Corporation, General Electric/Hotpoint, Georgia-Pacific Corporation, Monsanto Co., Reynolds Metal Co., Sears, Roebuck and Co., United States Gypsum Co., United States Steel Corporation, Westinghouse Electric and Weyerhaeuser Co.

MHI reported 246,120 shipments for sales testimated at $3.1 billion in 1976.

Next year's MHI suppliers show will be Sept. 26-28 in St. Louis.

VA to recognize HOW inspection

The Veterans Administration has instituted changes that are expected to open up more new homes for VA financing programs.

The VA has announced it will recognize a home inspection program carried out by the Home Owners Warranty Corp., Washington, D.C., and the corporation's insurance against major structural defects in lieu of requirements for VA financing.

Builders not participating in the HOW inspection system still will have to meet VA requirements to qualify for financing.

Several steps necessary for securing VA financing have been eliminated for the HOW builder, including the conditional Certificate of Reasonable Value and VA inspections.

A spokeman for HOW said his firm expects more builders may make homes available to veterans because the VA has cut required paperwork.

The HOW program is designed to protect homebuyers against defects by holding builders responsible for faulty workmanship and materials for the first year of ownership; and for defects in piping, wiring and duct work and against major structural defects during the second year.

For the next eight years, the home is protected against major structural defects through insurance underwritten by the American Bankers Insurance Co. of Florida.

PLATE GLASS ADDS something special to a wood table. The handsome fretwork of the dining table from Thomasville's Carlton Hall Collection is not hidden by a wood top.

Fine hardwood furniture worth the extra attention

Carolyn Murray

Your home

The fine hardwoods are really more resilient than we realize. They suffer nicks, kicks and a variety of other insults, yet with some tender loving care they bounce back, gleaming and catching everyone's attention.

You need not fuss like a new mother over wood furniture. But perhaps a few guidelines would help make you more comfortable with a potential family heirloom.

Understand that wood is formed from a living tree. The tree has pores and layers of tissue, with locked-in moisture and "blood" or sap. When wood is being cured for use in the construction industry or home furnishings industry, it is aged and demoisturized somewhat so it will not warp under pressure. "Green" wood still has too much independence; it warps and becomes the black sheep of the lumber yard.

EXTREMES OF temperature within a home environment can sometimes dehydrate or even overhumidify a finished piece of wood furniture. The same is true of lacquer boxes and screens and leather upholstery. So it's kinder to keep your wood treasure away from sources of too-dry or too-wet air.

For example, if there is a floor register or radiator in your living room, dining area or bedroom, try to arrange key pieces at least six feet away from the heat. If sun streams into one window, check at late afternoon or early morning to be sure it is not striking a cabinet or dining table or chairs.

In the dining room illustrated today, you see how the 18th-Century china cupboard has been sneakily tucked into the corner out of the sun's direct rays. The dining group is centered in a fairly large room, but the low-level tiebacks on the draperies make it possible to shield the windows at about 4 p.m. on a sunny summer day. All it takes is an unsnap of a snap.

THE FURNISHINGS shown here are all part of Thomasville's "Carlton Hall" collection. Superbly worked in fine cherry woods, the cabinet, chairs and octagonal table become the star of any setting. Here is a clear base of plate glass adding something special to a wood table. Why hide all that handsome fretwork in the table base with a heavy wood top?

Should such a table become marred in any way, the blemish can be disguised with furniture wax if it has not cut through the outer finish. But before doing any extensive repairs, you might wish to refer to a handy booklet called "Furniture Care," published by Johnson Wax. It describes a variety of woods and other surfaces, then recommends ways to deal with them. Naturally they mention Johnson products, but it isn't "hard sell."

Study seeks safe way to detect breast cancer

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A new study is under way here to develop a safe, fast method of breast cancer detection.

Researchers at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center already have evaluated 2,756 women in a program to check 10,000 women with an infrared scanner.

"If successful," says Dr. JoAnn D. Haberman, "this will make it possible to screen millions of women annually without using potentially harmful X-rays." Dr. Haberman is director of the study.

She said 206 cases so far have required further examination. Biopsies showed 55 were cancers and 151 were benigh.

THE NEW TECHNIQUE uses a Honeywell infrared scanner that accurately detects heat patterns on the surfaces of women's breasts that are indicative of conditions, including cancers, beneath the breasts' surface. The technique can reveal deeply buried cancer sites because the veins that develop around them come near the surface and cause a hot spot. The system also is designed to differentiate between cancers and harmless cysts.

The scanner produces a magnetic tape. A computer used in the system is programmed to separate normal and abnormal cases.

The study is cheduled for completion in late 1978. Its success depends on accurate correlation of test results with other breast cancer detection methods, including biopsy.

Frequent cleaning combats allergies

(UPI) — Spring and summer flowers can trigger sneezing, hay fever and allergies.

But Minnesota State Health Commissioner Dr. Warren R. Lawson says many allergies start at home.

To help control allergic reactions, Lawson recommends frequent cleaning of walls, floor and ceilings to remove dust. Stick to soap and water, he says, because many nonsoap cleaning products can cause reactions.

He also urges use of synthetic materials in such items as pillows, blankets and mattresses, limited use of scented products, including areosols, and avoidance of cigaret, pipe or cigar smoke.

Granny knows best: pioneering spirit lives on in home remedies

Mary B. Good

Potting shed

Canning, preserving, freezing and jelly-making in fall bring out the pioneering, squirreling instinct.

It gets one to thinking about some of the things our grandmothers did to make do. How did they survive without modern technology?

B.C. (before chemicals), Granny used oyster shells to drive away little red ants in the closet and cranny, but for the big ones, cockroaches, black hellebore roots were strewn about at night. (Too bad I didn't plant any black hellebore this year.)

Did you bring earthworms indoors with the plants you wanted to repot and save from your garden as houseplants? Granny used to stick the sulphur end of a matchstick into the soil or mix a pinch of snuff in with the potting soil.

I'VE HEARD OF rubbing the cut end of a potato on a facial wart, but how about ivy for corns? This one is so old, it's medieval, and I just can't picture anybody doing it, but it's worth a giggle. Cure for corns: Soak some young ivy leaves (not poison ivy) in vinegar for a few hours, said Granny. Then tie one of the leaves over the corn with a piece of thread. Leaves should be changed twice a day and shortly the corn can be lifted out without any pain. After the corn disappeared, Granny continued the leaf treatment a few more days to remove any remaining hardness.

A lady wrote after reading of my encounter with a swarm of hornets this summer with this cure for the next time I'm attacked by stinging insects in the garden: Rub meat tenderizer mixed with Vaseline on the bite or use a cold pack made from the paste of epsom salts and baking powder. If the stinger remains inside the skin, apply slices of raw onion to extract it.

DOES YOUR DOG have fleas? Granny got rid of them organically, by sticking a bit of raw meat on a piece of flypaper, causing the fleas to jump to their death. (What if the dog gets to the meat first? Did Granny ever think of that?)

Gardeners get lots of bruises, but have you ever heard the 19th century cure of applying molasses spread on brown paper — or a plaster of chopped parsley mixed with butter?

And speaking of plasters, how many people know how to make a mustard plaster? You never know when someone in the family might have a bad blister that needs popping. Granny mixed mustard with the white of an egg (no water) to draw the matter from the blister naturally.

DID YOU KNOW that the beauties of the East pruned their eyelashes much as we prune trees? Nipping off the split ends of the eyelashes with a scissors once a month was said to increase the length and strength of the eyelashes.

And what did Granny do without Clairol? For the hair, she put ½ ounce of quince pips into a quart of water and boiled them for an hour, stirring. She strained the water and let it stand 24 hours, then added 14 drops of almond oil. A dessert spoonful of brandy was added if the bandoline was to keep for a long time. (Maybe that's how the term "sothead" came to be.)

To take dirt stains off the hands from working in the field, Granny washed her hands with moist coffee grounds.

OLD-TIMERS KEPT lemons fresh by putting them into a jar and covering them with cold water with a saucer and rock placed over the jar to keep them under water, changing the water twice weekly. Lemons stayed fresh a long time this way, so it's said. That reminds me of my Aunt Wanda, who didn't have an icebox when I was a little girl in the '40s. Aunt Wanda kept all of her perishable food in the bathtub filled with cold water. (Don't ask me what they did when somebody wanted to take a bath. Little kids in my family didn't ask that kind of question.)

Do you get mildew as I do from leaving damp clothes in the clothes dryer? Wet the clothes again, add soap and apply salt and lemon juice to both sides of the fabric. Voila! Mildew disappears.

The thing I admire about the older folks was their sense of thrift and economy: Eat it up, use it up, make it do or do without! Are you listening, Gross National Product?

Couples choose freedom of childlessness: research

ST. PAUL (UPI)—Childlessness is chosen by large numbers of Americans today who want freedom to pursue their interests and who oppose the world's overpopulation.

A three-year demographic study of 275 couples in Minnesota found between 13 per cent and 17 per cent of the married couples in the United States are estimated to be childless, without children by an earlier marriage.

The research was conducted by Linda G. Budd and Richard N. Hey of the University of Minnesota Dept. of Family Social Science.

Preliminary findings show childless couples, on an average, are younger, have been married 6.7 years, are well educated and earn a family income of $15,000. Their average age is 29.56 years, and 67.5 per cent have at least a college degree. For 96 per cent, it is the first marriage.

MORE THAN 80 per cent of such couples generally live in the city or suburbs and come from stable homes where the mother had been a full-time housewife since her first child was born. Fifty-six per cent of those who filled in the questionnaire said they did not practice a religion. Of those who did, more than 50 per cent were Protestants.

Thirty per cent of the couples had had surgery performed on at least one spouse. Another 60 per cent reported using temporary methods of contraception such as birth control pills. Slightly more than 50 per cent of the individuals were either an only or an eldest child.

He said the single most important reason cited for childlessness was the desire for a career. Some couples also believed they could do more for society and families by remaining childless.

Couples choose freedom of childlessness: research

ST. PAUL (UPI)—Childlessness is chosen by large numbers of Americans today who want freedom to pursue their interests and who oppose the world's overpopulation.

A three-year demographic study of 275 couples in Minnesota found between 13 per cent and 17 per cent of the married couples in the United States are estimated to be childless, without children by an earlier marriage.

The research was conducted by Linda G. Budd and Richard N. Hey of the University of Minnesota Dept. of Family Social Science.

Preliminary findings show childless couples, on an average, are younger, have been married 6.7 years, are well educated and earn a family income of $15,000. Their average age is 29.56 years, and 67.5 per cent have at least a college degree. For 96 per cent, it is the first marriage.

MORE THAN 80 per cent of such couples generally live in the city or suburbs and come from stable homes where the mother had been a full-time housewife since her first child was born. Fifty-six per cent of those who filled in the questionnaire said they did not practice a religion. Of those who did, more than 50 per cent were Protestants.

Thirty per cent of the couples had had surgery performed on at least one spouse. Another 60 per cent reported using temporary methods of contraception such as birth control pills. Slightly more than 50 per cent of the individuals were either an only or an eldest child.

He said the single most important reason cited for childlessness was the desire for a career. Some couples also believed they could do more for society and families by remaining childless.

The doctor says

Depression requires professional care

Are the anti-depressant drugs merely temporary aids or do they have any long-term benefits? How does psychiatry combat depression and do you see any usefulness in biofeedback and other similar techniques? What is the difference between a manic-depressive person and a typical depressive person?

Depression is a symptom. It can be a manifestation of a neurosis or in its mildest form a change in mood. At the other end of the spectrum it can be a psychosis of major importance. There are no sharp dividing lines and the decision as to the significance of depression and what it represents depends upon the individual case and how disabling or even painful it is to the person.

Depression is part of the three major psychoses, which include the manic depressive you asked about, the involutional melancholia that affects older people and the frank psychotic depression. The psychotic depression is seen in a person who is severely disabled. He may not speak or if he does it may be very slowly and even all physical movement may be slow.

The manic depression is a psychosis that causes a person to be manic — "high" — with delusional thoughts of great things and excess activity. This phase may be preceded or followed by a depression. The cycles may be interspersed with periods of normal mood swings and normal behavior.

THE ANTI-DEPRESSANTS are temporary in the sense that they don't cure anything but enable the person to feel better and function better while the cycle is being completed. Various medicines may be used in combination with analysis or psychotherapy. Electroconvulsive therapy (ECT) often gives immediate relief. It is very useful for the severely disabled person.

I don't think much can be gained from biofeedback in treating the depressive groups. Psychotherapy that enables the person to understand and cope with the reality of his life situations, modern drugs and, if needed, ECT are usually effective.

It is important to realize that a person who has a depression needs professional help. The friendly neighbor approach just isn't advisable. The doctor responsible for the case must deal with complex problems beyond what a good friend usually can do. Just listening isn't enough.

SOME OF THESE people definitely are suicidal and they may not be able to help themselves. They need someone to protect them from themselves when they are in this vulnerable phase. Non-profsssional meddling may do more harm than good.

Depressions tend to recur. Some of them, such as manic depressions, have a tendency to occur in families as an inherited characteristic. Depressive responses can occur with some medicines and so can manic reactions. Steroid hormones may cause some people to have manic depressive responses.

Split up valuables to thwart thieves

To thwart thieves, split up the valuables you carry in your purse or pocket. If it's necessary to carry credit cards with you, place them in a separate container and in a safe cranny in your purse. Carry only essential items — a small amount of cash and a hand-printed identification card — in your wallet. Any official identification, such as a driver's license or voter registration card, could be very useful to a pickpocket.

If you must carry a lot of cash, divide it into different pockets or areas of a handbag. When cashing a check at a bank, take an envelope with you and place the money in it privately where no pickpocket or thief can see you. You can protect your valuables even better if your handbag is large enough, by putting a decoy above valuables — like a small cosmetic case that resembles a money carrier. And, for heaven's sake, keep your bag closed, and try to have a grip over the closure when in stores or other public places.

Dear Roberta: Those who often have dinner parties might find this hint useful. For years I've kept a diary of what menus were served, on what date and to whom. A glance at the guest list stops me from repeating a menu I've served the same people fairly recently. The diary also is an easy jog to the memory of past and pleasant occasions.—Mrs. T. J. Moreland

Dear Roberta: When we take the whole family for our usual weekend jaunt — to an outdoor spot like the zoo, or on a long drive — I carry along plastic bags with dampened washcloths for each child. There's sure to be some eating on the way and some cleanups to take care of. The cloths are easy to rinse at a drinking fountain or washroom.—Miriam Ballin

Dear Roberta: Rather than use instant tea, I prefer to brew tea leaves or bags and chill for iced tea in the fridge. No matter how briefly the bottle lasts, a white film forms at the bottom. Can this be prevented?—Vera Embry

Yes. Add a pinch of baking soda when you pour the tea into the glass bottle. Still, you can't leave the tea too long without a white residue forming.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Dugan

Stephanie Lee Edwards— Donald Stewart Dugan

The living room of her parents' Palatine home was the setting Aug. 20 for the marriage of Stephanie Lee Edwards to Donald Stewart Dugan. Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Edwards had set up a flower and palm-decorated altar for their daughter's marriage to the son of Mrs. Arthur Barry of Wilmette. The reception for 60 guests was held in the Edwards' garden.

The couple met at Carroll College, and a college friend, the Rev. Marilyn Hair, officiated at the 2 p.m. double-ring service.

Stephanie and Donald now are residing in Hartland, Wis., where the bride, a graduate of Palatine High, teaches in nearby Waukesha, Wis. The groom is employed in Milwaukee.

FOR HER MARRIAGE, Stephanie wore an Irish linen gown with Irish lace trim. She also wore her grandmother's pearls which also had been worn by her mother, an aunt and a cousin. She carried white orchids with ivy.

Diane Mallory, Dallas, Tex., was maid of honor, and Barbara Illian, Iowa, was bridesmaid. Both wore knit gowns in yellow and carried glamellias with ivy.

David Ingerson, Wilmette, was best man, and usher was Richard Powell, Bloomington, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Soger

Estelle Mehegan— Dennis Soger

A two-week honeymoon in Ireland followed the Aug. 20 ceremony which united Estelle Mehegan of Des Plaines and Dennis Soger of Mount Prospect. The couple exchanged vows and rings at 3 p.m. in St. Stephen Church, Des Plaines, then greeted 190 guests at a dinner dance at Camelot Restaurant before leaving on their European trip.

They now are living in Schaumburg and the bride is attending graduate school at Rosary College, River Forest. Dennis is with North American Spring & Stamping, Elk Grove Village.

Estelle is the daughter of Mrs. Darlene Mehegan and the late Edmund J. Mehegan, and Dennis' parents are the Roy Sogers. She graduated from Maine West High and St. Norbert College, De-Pere, Wis. He is a graduate of St. Viator High and attended St. Mary's College, Winona, Minn.

BLUE AND WHITE was the color scheme for the couple's wedding. Estelle wore a white polyester knit gown with accents of lace beaded in seed pearls. A lace headband held her cathedral-length lace-edged veil, and she carried a cascade of gardenias, white roses and stephanotis.

Her attendants wore blue gowns with matching chiffon capes and blue picture hats. Their bouquets were of blue and white mixed blooms. Suzi Patterson, Chicago, served as maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister Patty, Denise Mosior, Mundelein, and Mary D'Amour, Escanaba, Mich.

A reminder to brides

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones, contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

The bride who wishes her photo returned may pick it up at the Herald office at 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, or send along a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

There is no charge for publishing this news.

Fathers United Against Abortion, an organization of men who have been unable to dissuade their wives or girl friends from having an abortion, has been established in Chicago.

Victor De La Cruz is its founder and president. One goal of the organization is to establish a father's legal rights over his unborn child, he said.

Other projects include setting up a central telephone hotline for fathers to call when they want help in preventing an abortion.

Those wanting to know more about the group may write De La Cruz at P.O. Box 303, Summitt, Ill. 60501.

Working women cut some household jobs

One way for the working wife and mother to ease her day is to let household chores go undone. In a wide survey to fine how working women coped, Women's Day magazine asked one question : "What chores do you never do?" Ninety-eight per cent didn't pick up in the children's rooms. Sixty-nine per cent skipped spring cleaning. Thirty-four per cent didn't iron: the advent of permanent press had lessened that chore. One working mother from Eugene, Ore., boasted she didn't even own an iron. Bed-making: Thirty-four per cent said they didn't bother with the job daily.

APPLEHEAD WITCH

You'll need to start now to make this wrinkled old witch for Halloween. Peel an apple. Cut two shallow nickel-size circles for eye sockets. Cut a slit for a mouth. Set the apple on a sunny window sill for several weeks.

Every few days, pinch out the nose. Poke and shape the face the way you want it. When the apple is dry, it will feel like a sponge. Stick whole cloves in for eyes. Next week we'll tell you how to finish your witch.

Optimism can be fatal

Pessimistic Pete thought: "Anyone else would think of a slam. I hope I can make game." So he opened the bidding with four hearts. Everyone passed.

West opened the king of clubs. Pete thought some more. "Everything is going to be wrong. Can I make game against the bludgeonings of fate?"

Then Pete discarded a spade!

West shifted to the nine of that suit. Dummy's jack was covered by East's queen and South's ace.

Pete led a trump to dummy, ruffed the six of clubs, led a spade to the king, ruffed dummy's last spade.

Then he entered dummy with a second trump, led the queen of clubs and discarded the three of diamonds.

West was in and had no way to collect more than one further trick. A diamond lead would make Pete's king good. Any other lead would allow him to ruff in dummy and discard one diamond.

Pessimism had paid off. Any other line of play would have lost the hand.

Ask Andy

Speak up — more than 3,000 languages

The 22-volume World Book Encyclopedia, Andy's own reference library, is being sent to Sean Calvert, 10, of Portland, Maine, for his question of the month:

HOW MANY DIFFERENT LANGUAGES ARE THERE?

We don't have accurate information on how language began but there are a number of good theories. One suggests that at first language was an imitation of natural sounds, such as barks, groans and grunts. Another says it might have been sounds accompanied with gestures and other body movements. In any case, spoken language began long before we had a written language.

It might be hard to believe, but scholars say there are more than 3,000 different spoken languages now being used. And this number does not include the dialects or local forms of a language.

It is true that many of the world's languages are spoken only by small groups of people. Only 13 languages have 50 million or more speakers.

The language with the largest number of speakers is Chinese. More than 750 million people speak this language. Second on the list with 400 million speakers is English with Hindustani coming in third with about 300 million.

Rounding out the list of 13 languages with more than 50 million speakers each is (in order of rank) Spanish, Russian, German, Japanese, Indonesian, French, Italian, Portuguese, Arabic and Bengali.

Some scholars believe that all of the world's languages came from the same original tongue. They have classified family language groups, with Indo-European being the most important. More than 1.75 billion persons — or about 50 per cent of the world's entire population — speak languages in this family group.

Indo-European language family has eight branches: (1) Germanic or Teutonic, which includes English, German, Dutch-Flemish and the Scandinavian tongues of Danish, Icelandic, Norwegian and Swedish; (2) Romance including French, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian and Romanian; (3) Balto-Slavic including Russian, Ukrainian, Polish, Czech, Slovak, Serbo-Croatian, Slovenian, Bulgarian, Lithuanian and Latvian; (4) Indo-Iranian including Hindustani, Bengali, Persian and Pashto; (5) Greek; (6) Celtic including Irish, Scots Gaelic, Welsh and Breton; (7) Albanian; and (8) Armenian.

All Indo-European languages have the same original structure based on inflections. All have defined parts of speech including nouns, adjectives, pronouns and verbs.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Christine Dunlap, 13, of Santa Ynez, Calif., for her question:

WHO WAS JOHNNY APPLESEED?

A man named John Chapman, a pioneer who lived from 1774 until 1845, became a legendary part of American history. He was a religious enthusiast, military hero, plant nurseryman and herb doctor and became known as Johnny Appleseed along the Ohio River because of the ardent way he sold appleseeds and apple tree sprouts. He would accept any object or any amount of money in payment.

During the War of 1812 Chapman served as a frontier messenger. He became an herb doctor and botanist and was looked upon as an American version of a Hebrew prophet. The apple trees that came from the seeds and sprouts he sold helped to make many of the farming areas of northern Ohio and Indiana more prosperous than they had been before he made his visits.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

History lost in scramble for ratings

The television networks are rewriting history in a scramble to outdo each other in the area of docu-dramas.

No thought apparently is being given to the fact that there is at least one generation of Americans who are soaking up distorted views of historical figures and events being portrayed on television as gospel.

Today's children are growing up in a society that admits it is more entertaining to learn visually by watching television than it is to sit down with a book.

THERE IS A whole generation of young minds who may grow up thinking Richard M. Nixon looks like Jason Robards or that Lee Harvey Oswald acted the way John Pleshette portrayed him or that Joseph Kennedy Jr. enjoyed the same attention from ladies that actor Peter Strauss does today.

On one hand, the dramatization of history is a marvelous way to make important people and events come alive. And on the other hand, a reckless disregard for the facts in the making of television docu-drama is dangerous.

The same medium that provided the actual moment-by-moment coverage of the John F. Kennedy assassination in 1963 this weekend presented a garble of assassination theories and speculation in the would-be "Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald." The ABC movie is an account of what might have been, based on what did happen.

That kind of irresponsible handling of fact should not be tolerated.

ABC ONLY THREE weeks ago stooped to similar lows by presenting a 12-hour Watergate called "Washington: Behind Closed Doors" and fiercely denied any connection between the drama and the true Nixon trauma.

Yet, the characters and events were close enough to the truth that many viewers would have trouble separating fact from fiction and ABC remained insensitive to the damage being done.

Certainly, there have been some docu-dramas this season that have managed to paint more accurate pictures of people and events such as ABC's "Young Joe, the Forgotten Kennedy" and NBC's "In the Matter of Karen Ann Quinlan."

Although all three networks have planned a steady diet of docu-dramas that will span everything from the secret love of Dwight D. Eisenhower to the Aspen life and trial of singer Claudine Longet, there are definite problems with television insisting on presenting its own version of history.

THE MEDIUM HAS as much a responsibility to accuracy as do newspapers.

The American public has learned to trust television news and documentaries, all the more reason why careful measures must be taken to ensure truthful representation in dramas dealing with fact.

Possibly the biggest problems with television docu-dramas lies in the time limitations of the medium. Real life is often too complex and miltifaceted to be accurately portrayed within an hour or two-hour of a television program.

It is unfortunate that viewers have been given the burden of having to distinguish between historical fact and what the networks have fabricated and altered for the sake of ratings and time.

TV NOTES:

- Viewers aren't at all impressed with new television shows this fall as evidenced in last week's ratings. Not one new show was included in the list of the top ten rated programs, according to A. C. Neilsen, for the week of Sept. 19-25. One: ABC's movie, "The Longest Yard;" Two: "Laverne and Shirley;" Three: "Happy Days;" Four: "Charlie's Angels;" Five: "M*A*S*H;" Six: "Three's Company;" Seven: "Barney Miller;" Eight: "Little House on the Prairie;" Nine: "What's Happening;" and Ten: "Donnie and Marie."

ABC's "Soap" came in 11th last week in the ratings. Although the comedy has experienced decreased ratings nationally during the past three weeks, it scored an impressive 30.9 rating and 45 per cent Tuesday in the Chicago area.

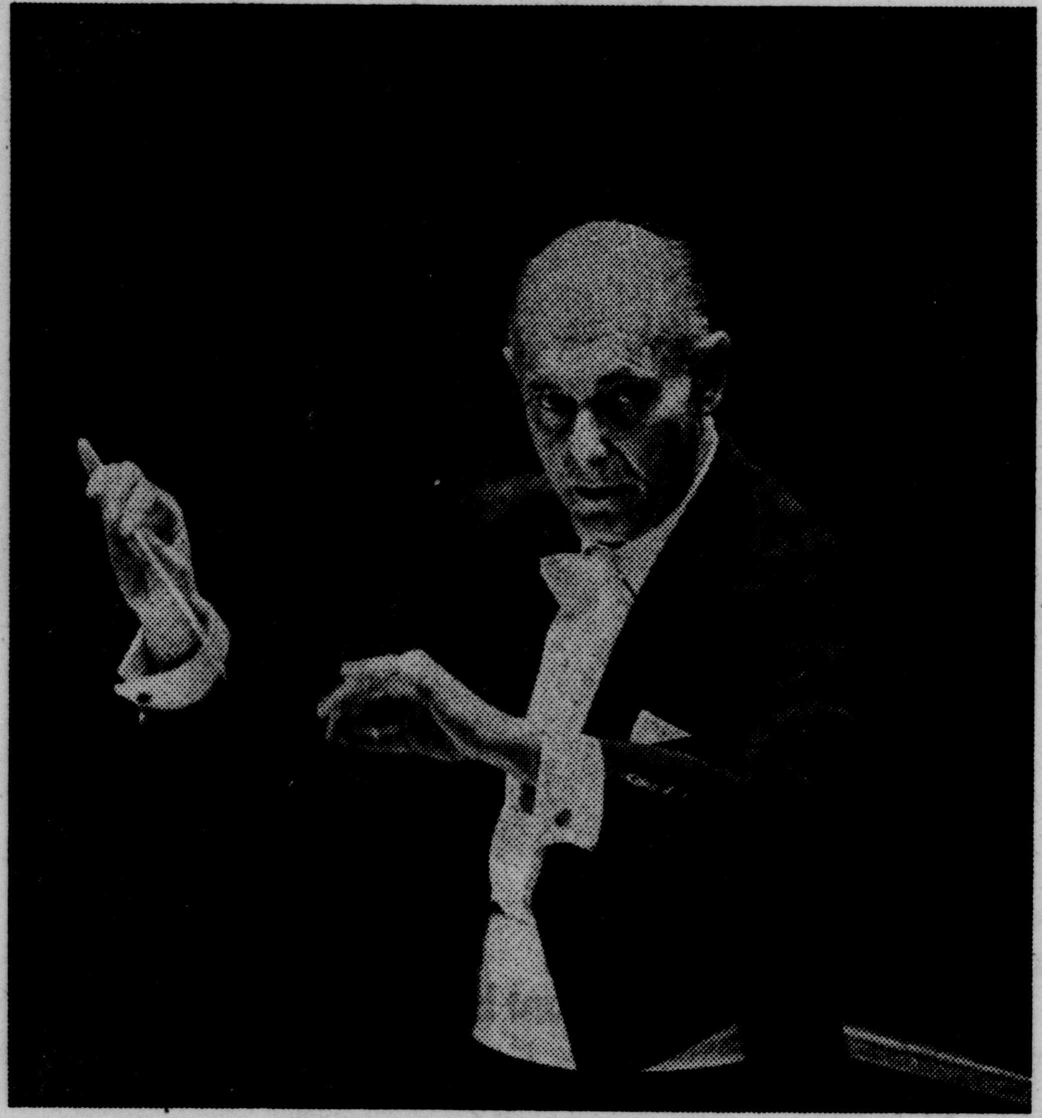
- Don't be surprised if the networks start taking an axe to some of their slow-to-go new shows soon. CBS reportedly is preparing to yank "The Fitzpatricks" and "Young Dan'l Boone." Neither new show has come close to a rating of 10 in the last three weeks. NBC' "Chips," "Oregon Trail" and "Big Hawaii" and ABC's "Operation Petticoat" are other new shows that have been below the 10 rating mark with some consistency. As for early season program replacements, CBS has a definite winner with the return of the pantomime couple "Shields and Yarnell" and NBC is reviving one summertime pilot about an outserspace garbage collector named "Quark."
- American Braodcasting Co. techicians will return to work Saturday, ending a four-month long strike. The "National Assn. of Broadcast Electricians and Technicians ended the strike by approving a pact, the terms of which are not being released. The strike had management personnel covering for some 150 employes of WLS-TV and WDAI-FM in Chicago as well as nationwide.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- Good watching Saturday has to include the premiere of "We've Got Each Other" at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 2. As reviewed earlier in this column, it's a funny, ongoing look at an ugly couple very much in love that stars Beverly Archer and Oliver Clark.
- Steve McQueen stars as an irresponsible handyman in William Faulkner's story about turn-of-the-century life in Mississippi, "The Reivers" at 8 p.m. on Channel 5.
- NBC's monthly magazine "Weekend" profiles 12-year-old model-actress Brooke Shields at 10:45 p.m. on Channel 5.
- Television Sunday kicks off with the fourth season premiere of "Rhoda" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2 as Nancy Walker returns to play the part of mom.
- James Stacy sensitively portrays a Vietnam veteran who is embittered over the loss of his leg and arm in "Just a Little Inconvenience" at 8 p.m. on Channel 5. Lee Majors, television's "Six Million Dollar Man," costars with Stacy, who is an amputee in real life.
- The Marx Brothers star in "A Night in Casablanca" at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 9.

Solti and Co. in impressive opening

by BILL GOWEN



SIR GEORG SOLTI

Sir Georg Solti and the Chicago Symphony were ready for a triumphant beginning to the 1977-78 subscription season Thursday night at Orchestra Hall.

The music director's enthusiastic conducting of the traditional first-night National Anthem was the clue.

The remainder of the program was no letdown, by any means, as Solti led his forces through a varied evening of the familiar and not-so-familiar.

THE FIRST HALF of the concert brought the 1816 overture to "The Barber of Seville" by Antonio Rossini and the first symphony of Dmitri Shostakovich, works written by both composers at relatively young ages.

Solti and the CSO have recorded the Rossini and Thursday's performance was no less successful, the orchestra and conductor carrying the Italianate themes and rhythms to a fast-paced conclusion.

The Shostakovich, on the other hand, while in the symphony's repertory for nearly 50 years, with Frederick Stock performing the First Symphony only three years after its 1926 world premiere in Leningrad, was the delight of the evening for those in the audience wishing to explore the unfamiliar. The work is not performed as often as the Shostakovich fifth and seventh symphonies, with only a 1974 Carlo Maria Giulini performance here in recent memory.

IF THIS WAS youthful Shostakovich (age 19) it was still great music, a fine clue to the 14 symphonies by this composer which followed in the next 50 years.

The symphony is Russian through and through with many of the brooding melodies typical of the period, the first decade after the revolution. Several passages are written for solo instruments, inparticular the violin, oboe, cello, timpani and piano, the latter a rarity in symphonic music.

Solti is a smart programmer; he knows he has an orchestra blessed with exceptional first-desk personnel and he does what he can to give these people the recognition they deserve.

Solti hasn't played much Shostakovich in Chicago; here's hoping this is just a beginning.

THE CONCLUDING half of the program was devoted to two Richard Strauss symphonic poems: "Death and Transfiguration" and "Don Juan."

This is music the orchestra and Solti know with affection. In no other repertory does the CSO match solidity of tone with the ethereal beauty Strauss calls for in the reflective pages of his scores.

Solti doesn't like to be called a "specialist" in any particular composer's work, but he has that reputation in Strauss whether he likes it or not. Thursday's performances only enhanced that image.

Can a symphony orchestra be "up" for a concert just as a sports team is for a game? Looking at the way the players dug in enthusiastically with their bows was ample evidence: these were men hard at work, enjoying what they were doing.

"DEATH AND Transfiguration" was written in 1889 when Strauss was 25, "Don Juan," the composer's first major success, was written the year before. The two works are from the composer's most productive period: the last decade, and just prior, of the 19th Century. The music is typical of the period, filled with post-Romantic orchestral climaxes and balanced with quiet themes of unparalleled beauty and transparency. The best of these is the second theme in "Death and Transfiguration," and Solit and his orchestra held Thursday's audience in their spell: the coughing stopped as did the shuffling about of program pages that is often a problem in Orchestra Hall.

Both that and the "Don Juan" end quietly, counter to the rule in orchestral showpieces. A marvelous climax (Don Juan's death) precedes the end of that work and Solti grasped the edge of the conductor's stand as he froze his pose while the echoes died away. The whispering conclusion followed as once again the audience cooperated.

It was as if one player was performing for an audience of one, who was holding his breath.

Play's armor needs polish

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Review

She clambers up a stairway into the castle tower, eyes flashing and tangled curls bobbing: a simple peasant girl with an ambitious request — a suit of armor, a horse and an escort to visit the Dauphin, take over his army, and liberate France from English invaders.

Moments later, 17-year-old Joan of Arc has convinced the nobleman that her heaven-sent "voices" will guide the beleaguered French soldiers to victory. Locks shorn and hopes high, she moves on to the royal castle.

It's the first scene in George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan," the season opener at the Goodman Theatre, and it sets the tone for the two hours that follow.

THIS PLAY presents the legendary maid as a frank, no-nonsense innocent; a "daughter of the soil" with the audacity to follow her own edicts, not those of the church. No pinched-waist, dewy-eyed history-book character, she.

An intriguing subject, to be sure — and the Goodman production almost rises to the occasion. Though lines are sometimes delivered with the rapid pace and loud pitch of a Dale Carnegie lesson, the large cast does convey the mood of a country immersed in losing battles, all to eagar to follow a young girl with visions that work.

David Jenkins' sets are sparse but effective; the costumes designed by James Edmund Brady are lavish and attractive. Even the organ music between scenes adds to the medieval atmosphere.

BUT THE SUCCESS of "Saint Joan" hinges on Joan herself. British actress Lynn Redgrave is the drawing card. Redgrave follows Shaw's outline closely. For the most part her Saint Joan is an intriguing combination of gawkiness and fierce inspiration. There are shades of "Georgy Girl" here, and Redgrave's bluntness is arresting.

But unfortunately, the buoyancy she displays at the banks of the Loire before the battle of Orleans has a tendency to come out as a hoarse holler; it's all in character, but rankling just the same.

Similarly, while the Dauphin, Robert Moberly, solicits plenty of laughs as the yet-to-be crowned Charles VII, his foot-stomping temper tantrums seem forced and caricaturish.

YET IF THE long (1 hour and 40 minute) first act is sometimes guilty of "pressing it," Joan's climactic trial for heresy makes the second act powerful drama.

Captured by the English after an ill-fated battle, Joan enters the bishop's court charged with witchcraft and heresy. She has rebuffed church authorities with her impertinent insistence on crowning Charles without clergy guidance. The English are incensed with her nationalistic ideas. Joan is facing the toughest challenge of her life, and it shows — her face is pale and drawn, the short hair dripping with sweat.

Her voices are still with her, and the "pert answers" keep coming: to a questioner who asks if the Archangel Michael appeared naked before her, she replies, "Do you not think God could afford to buy him clothes?"

But Joan wavers when confronted with her imminent death. She signs the recantation. Then, recognizing the alternative of life in prison, she seals her own fate and is led off to the stake.

Whether wiping her nose on her sleeve or moaning deliriously during her excommunication, Redgrave is inescapably powerful. Just as her portrayal is at its best during the trial, so are those of Paul Shyre as Cauchon, the Bishop of Beauvais, and William Mowry as the inquisitor. Both men lend a quiet earnestness to the production.

"Saint Joan" marks the first year of the Goodman's financial independence from the Art Institute. The opening night performance was accompanied by black ties and optimism. If this production is a portent of the theater to come, that good cheer won't be wasted.

'June Moon': Not bad for sugary sap

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Review

Syrupy rubes from tin-pan alley have dripped into Victory Gardens Theater for its season opener, a yummy but insubsantial revival of the 1929 Ring Lardner/George S. Kaufman musical, "June Moon."

"June Moon" follows the romantic and professional passions of Fred, a cloyingly sincere drip who quits his steady job in upstate New York and heads for The Big Apple, where he hopes to make it as a lyric writer for popular tunes.

John Green is wonderful — so wonderful it hurts — as the sap from Schenectady who actually believes his own lyrics. His sweetheart Edna is adoringly gushed by Annabel Armour. Edna's only crime is that she believes Fred's lyrics, too.

FRED AND EDNA jiggle into each other on a train to New York City and before long are cooing such lines as:

"Your smile will always haunt me."

To which Edna replies:

"I'll bet you're a wonderful songwriter!"

Edna's shy charm doesn't hold Fred for long, though, as he becomes taken by the flashy beauty of a blond ex-showgirl.

THE STORY SKIPS and glides like rollerskates, oiled with new tunes by Warren Casey (Co-author of "Grease," the hit '50s revival).

Yet despite the revamping, "June Moon" is even shallower than many shows of the same era. In Warner Bros. Broadway films of the '30s, the showgirls were complex characters; they were gold-digging schemers who banked on their sex, but they usually revealed hearts of gold by the film's conclusion.

The gold digger that fleeces Fred in "June Moon" is one-dimensional, and as sour as Edna is sweet. As a result, the story doesn't go anywhere and its characters remain stick figures throughout.

Despite all this, or perhaps because of it, "June Moon" entertains.

In the '60s, when Pop Art was the rage, critic Susan Sontag wrote an essay in which she tried to define "camp," that fad which turned the garishly out of date into the chicly avant garde. Sontag confessed that she was unable to put her finger on this peculiar sensibility, and had to be content with merely listing some of the old movies, fashions, hobbies and interior designs that qualified as camp.

Now, 10 years too late, Victory Gardens has come up with another item for Sontag's list. "June Moon" is pure camp. Its sappy characters are deliciously portrayed, the sets and costumes are impeccable, and the tunes fit the genre perfectly. "June Moon" is a sugary delight, but, like most camp revivals, is far from memorable.

This rated-G play provides its own review when piano player Maxie Schwartz describes Fred's first song, "June Moon:"

"It's a tune that's easy to remember, but if you should forget it, it wouldn't make any difference."

Sontag confessed that she was unable to put her finger on this peculiar sensibility, and had to be content with merely listing some of the old movies, fashions, hobbies and interior designs that qualified as camp.

Now, 10 years too late, Victory Gardens has come up with another item for Sontag's list. "June Moon" is pure camp. Its sappy characters are deliciously portrayed, the sets and costumes are impeccable, and the tunes fit the genre perfectly. "June Moon" is a sugary delight, but, like most camp revivals, is far from memorable.

This rated-G play provides its own review when piano player Maxie Schwartz describes Fred's first song, "June Moon:"

"It's a tune that's easy to remember, but if you should forget it, it wouldn't make any difference."

Solti and Co. in impressive opening

by BILL GOWEN

SIR GEORG SOLTI

Sir Georg Solti and the Chicago Symphony were ready for a triumphant beginning to the 1977-78 subscription season Thursday night at Orchestra Hall.

The music director's enthusiastic conducting of the traditional first-night National Anthem was the clue.

The remainder of the program was no letdown, by any means, as Solti led his forces through a varied evening of the familiar and not-so-familiar.

THE FIRST HALF of the concert brought the 1816 overture to "The Barber of Seville" by Antonio Rossini and the first symphony of Dmitri Shostakovich, works written by both composers at relatively young ages.

Solti and the CSO have recorded the Rossini and Thursday's performance was no less successful, the orchestra and conductor carrying the Italianate themes and rhythms to a fast-paced conclusion.

The Shostakovich, on the other hand, while in the symphony's repertory for nearly 50 years, with Frederick Stock performing the First Symphony only three years after its 1926 world premiere in Leningrad, was the delight of the evening for those in the audience wishing to explore the unfamiliar. The work is not performed as often as the Shostakovich fifth and seventh symphonies, with only a 1974 Carlo Maria Giulini performance here in recent memory.

IF THIS WAS youthful Shostakovich (age 19) it was still great music, a fine clue to the 14 symphonies by this composer which followed in the next 50 years.

The symphony is Russian through and through with many of the brooding melodies typical of the period, the first decade after the revolution. Several passages are written for solo instruments, inparticular the violin, oboe, cello, timpani and piano, the latter a rarity in symphonic music.

Solti is a smart programmer; he knows he has an orchestra blessed with exceptional first-desk personnel and he does what he can to give these people the recognition they deserve.

Solti hasn't played much Shostakovich in Chicago; here's hoping this is just a beginning.

THE CONCLUDING half of the program was devoted to two Richard Strauss symphonic poems: "Death and Transfiguration" and "Don Juan."

This is music the orchestra and Solti know with affection. In no other repertory does the CSO match solidity of tone with the ethereal beauty Strauss calls for in the reflective pages of his scores.

Solti doesn't like to be called a "specialist" in any particular composer's work, but he has that reputation in Strauss whether he likes it or not. Thursday's performances only enhanced that image.

Can a symphony orchestra be "up" for a concert just as a sports team is for a game? Looking at the way the players dug in enthusiastically with their bows was ample evidence: these were men hard at work, enjoying what they were doing.

"DEATH AND Transfiguration" was written in 1889 when Strauss was 25, "Don Juan," the composer's first major success, was written the year before. The two works are from the composer's most productive period: the last decade, and just prior, of the 19th Century. The music is typical of the period, filled with post-Romantic orchestral climaxes and balanced with quiet themes of unparalleled beauty and transparency. The best of these is the second theme in "Death and Transfiguration," and Solit and his orchestra held Thursday's audience in their spell: the coughing stopped as did the shuffling about of program pages that is often a problem in Orchestra Hall.

Both that and the "Don Juan" end quietly, counter to the rule in orchestral showpieces. A marvelous climax (Don Juan's death) precedes the end of that work and Solti grasped the edge of the conductor's stand as he froze his pose while the echoes died away. The whispering conclusion followed as once again the audience cooperated.

It was as if one player was performing for an audience of one, who was holding his breath.

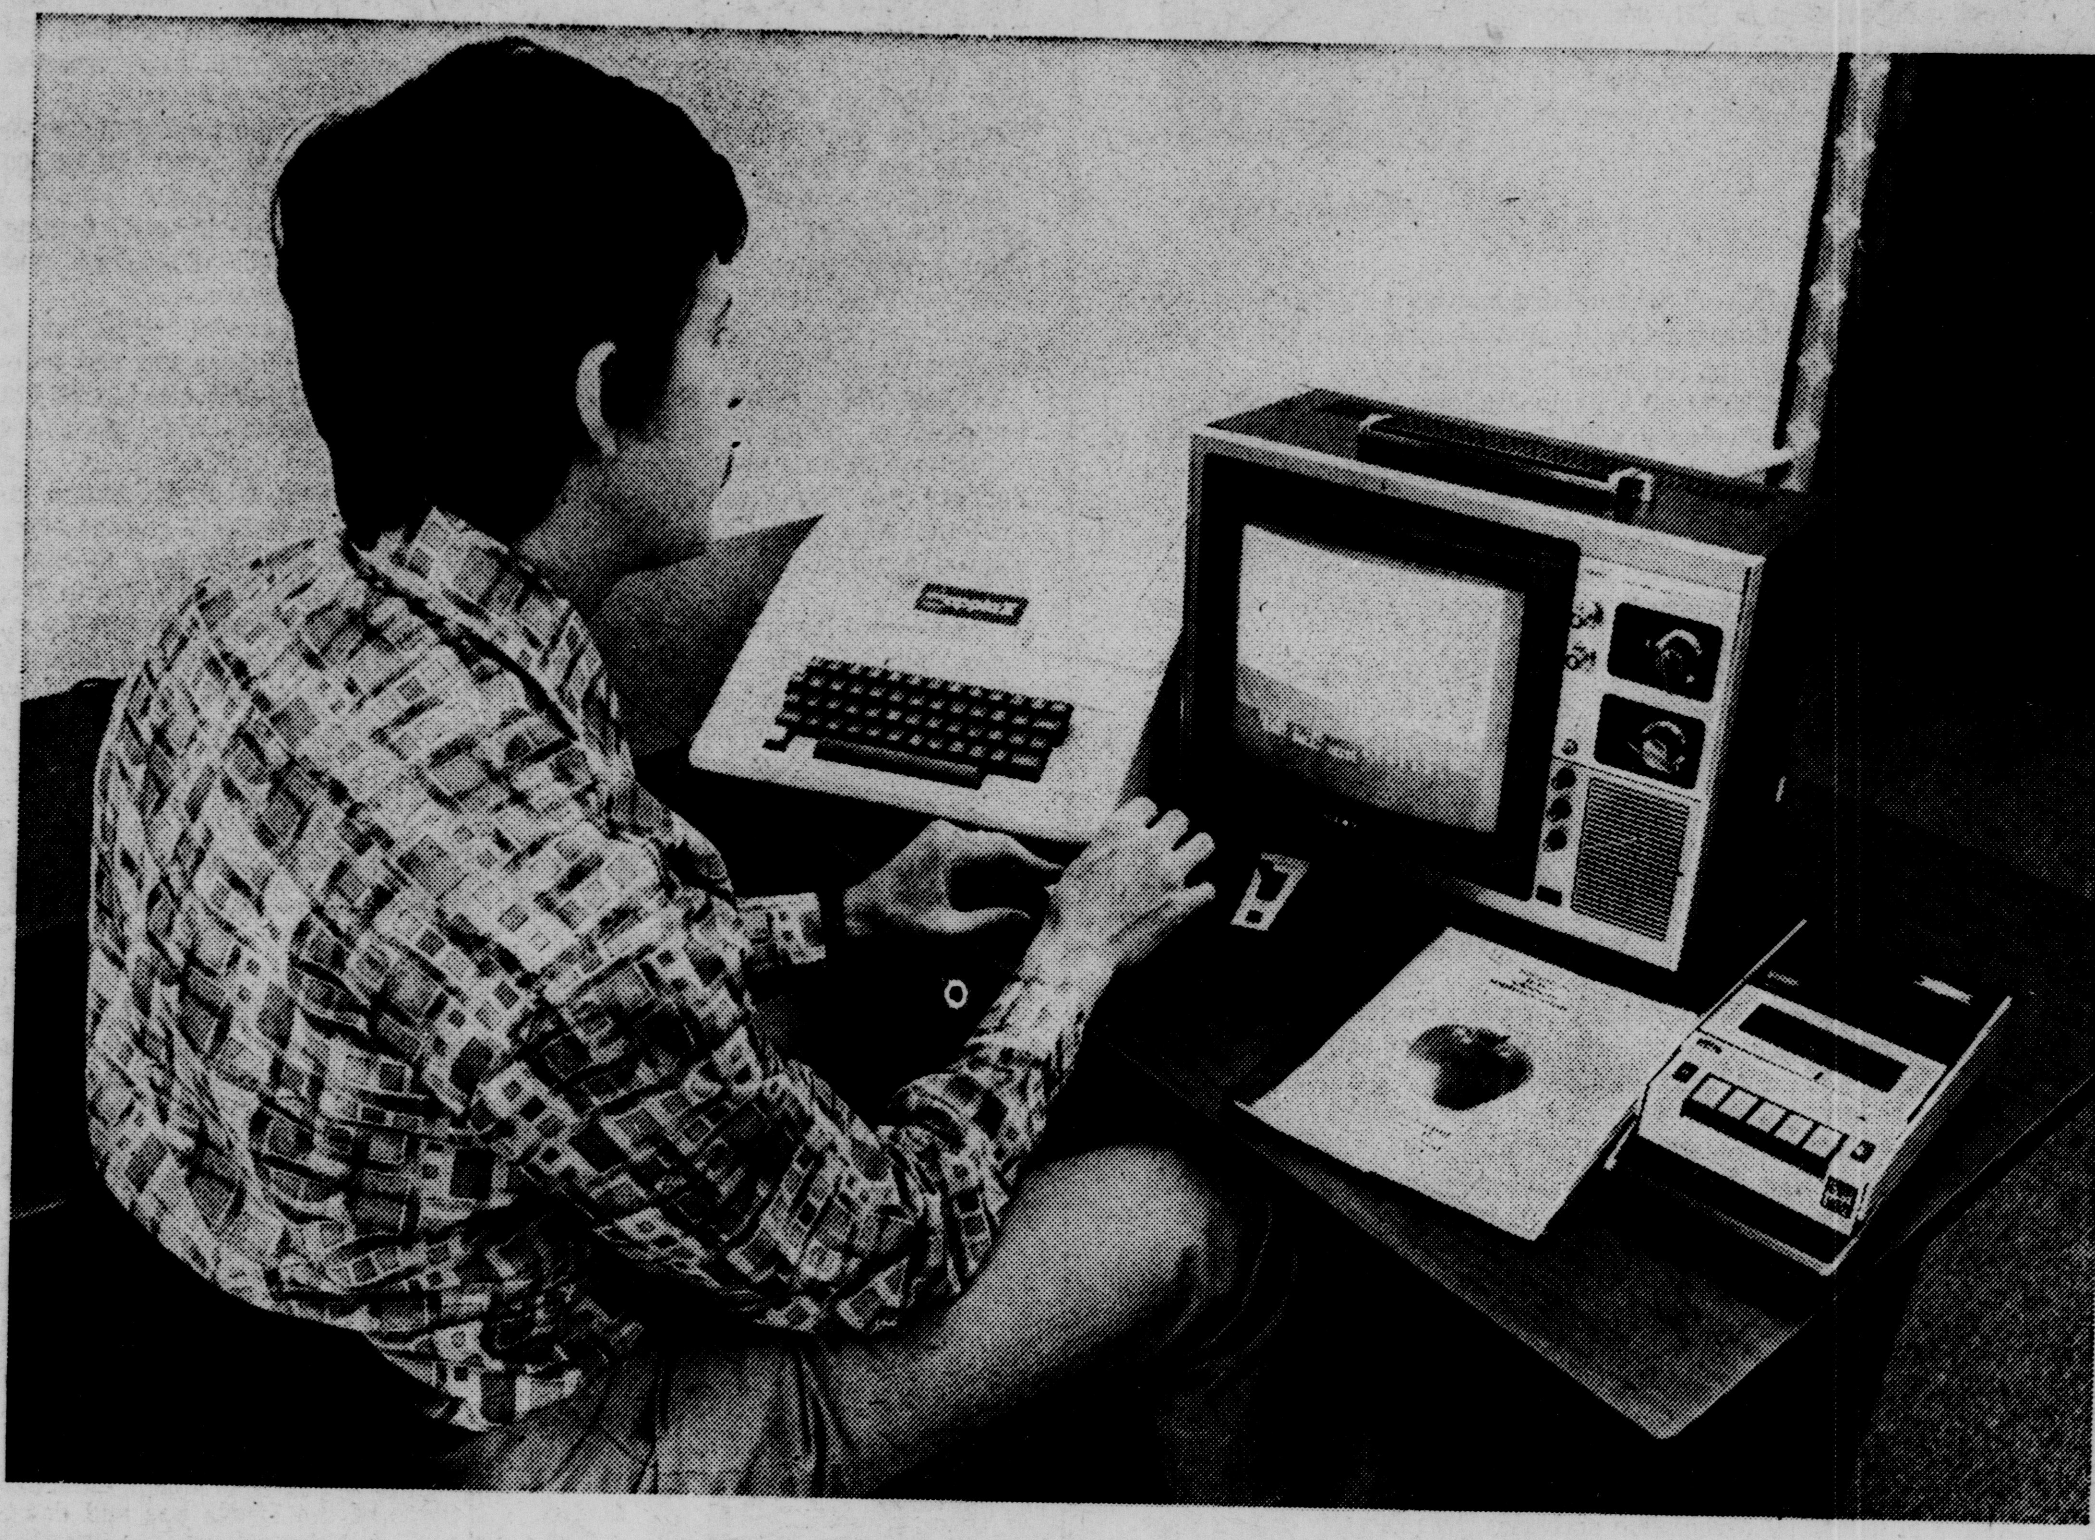
Home computers to be boom of future

by JOHN N. FRANK



THE APPLE II is one of a generation of home computers that the average consumer can operate. The model shown can be used with a home television set and tape cassette player as demonstrated by Keith Cook, a co-owner of Computerland, 50 E. Rand Rd.

Until recently, Guy Hobart and Bob Paulsen, both of Des Plaines, were among the few persons who were able to use a home computer to devise shopping lists, entertain guests and balance checkbooks.

But persons no longer need a background in electronics like Hobart and Paulsen to use a small computer at home.

Several companies are manufacturing ready-built computers for the home for as low as $599 that perform a variety of tasks ranging from keeping track of a family's grocery needs to teaching the children math.

The boom in sales for the ready-built home computers, called appliance computers, will bring a change in American lifestyles similar to the advent of the car and television, say industry spokesmen, who predict a $1 billion a year market.

"THE POTENTIAL market is every household. The issue is personal freedom. It's the same thing that made the automobile," says Nelson Winkless, editor of Personal Computing magazine.

"We see the mass computer market as being ultimately the largest share of the entire computer market," says Chris Lundberg, director of marketing for Computerland, a California company that is franchising stores to sell home computers.

"It'll become part of the modern household. CBs were around for 20 years and then they caught fire. This will be the same type of explosion," says John P. Imlay Jr., a director of the Software Industry Assn.

"THE FUTURE of the thing depends on the creative use and it's just unlimited," Imlay says. Present uses include keeping track of what a family needs to buy at the supermarket, regulating the heating and cooling of a home for more efficient fuel use, balancing checkbooks and preparing tax returns.

"And there are so many applications that haven't been thought of yet," Imlay says.

But developing the equipment to hook into hom computers to enable them to perform some of those tasks is only one of many problems facing the infant home computer industry. Others include:

- A lack of consumer awareness about what uses a home computer can provide;
- The specter of entry into the field by Japanese firms that could underprice American manufacturers;
- A proliferation of small manufacturers, many of whom cannot maintain a reliable flow of equipment to retail outlets, which generally have been doing a successful business of selling home computers.

"EVERYBODY STARTED in the garage. There are at least a dozen manufacturers now and I imagine there will be two dozen by next spring," says Winkless.

"There are a lot of garage shops out there and they'll either get bigger or go out of business," says Donald French, merchandise manager for Tandy Corp.

Tandy is selling one of the cheapest ready-made home computers available in its Radio Shack stores for $599.

Finding reliable suppliers has been a problem for the Computerland store in Arlington Heights, say owners Keith Cook and John Gibbs.

"We won't bring anything in here unless we know it really works and we can get supplies," says Cook.

Cook and Gibbs say they aren't concerned that Radio Shack has entered the home computer selling area or that Sears is contemplating test-marketing a home computer in five unnamed cities across the country.

"THERE'S PLENTY of business for everyone. The market is so huge it's almost like the auto market or the stereo market," Gibbs says.

Ed Cooper, general manager of the American Microprocessor Equipment and Supply Corp., Half Day, says he questions whether Radio Shack will be able to provide the technical know-how to back its sales.

"They're not computer people. They can sell you a computer over the counter, but can they service them?" Cooper says. Firms like his, which manufacture and sell home computers, have the personnel to do both, he says.

"I think people like Radio Shack will do a lot to educate the market. But people will want more than they (Radio Shack) can provide. We expect that a lot of people that have Radio Shack computers will come into our store," for more sophisticated machines, Cooper says.

COOPER SAYS his firm can match the Radio Shack price of $599 and provide more computer for the money because he has been selling computers for two years.

Computerland's Lundberg says the $600 level is probably a reasonable price for attracting a mass market and as low as home computers will go in price because the majority of costs involved result from labor rather than technological costs.

"For the first time in recent history, the cost of technology has gotten so inexpensive that anyone can use it," Lundberg says.

But Japanese electronics' firms have lower labor costs than American firms and their entry into the home computer market could send prices plummeting, Lundberg said.

Regardless of when the Japanese firms enter the field, the market for easy-to-use multipurpose home computers will start to develop this winter and grow throughout the next three or four years into a multimillion dollar-a-year market with a result of greater convenience and more free time for consumers.

Business briefs

Nation needs business input: Lance

Former Budget Director Bert Lance says he "wouldn't wish on anyone" hs experience in Washington, but businessmen should not shy away from government service because of it. "I don't regret at all being part of the process, part of the system, because I think it is that important," Lance said Thursday. "It wasn't fun, it wasn't pleasurable. It wasn't something I would wish on anyone, but it was part of the process." In his first formal appearance since his Sept. 21 resignation as President Carter's budget director, Lance also said: "I don't miss Washington. It's good to be back in Georgia."

Accompanied by his wife, LaBelle, Lance spoke at a black-tie dinner of investment bankers, fulfilling a long-standing commitment to the Investment Assn. of New York. Many businessmen considered Lance their chief advocate with Carter and the audience Thursday stood and loudly applauded the former budget director. "Our government needs your ideals — your ideals and your experience," Lance said. "This can only come from the private sector."

Salaried workers laid off

Bethlehem Steel Corp. Friday confirmed it is reducing its salaried work force on a corporate basis by approximately 2,500 employes. The number includes white collar workers laid off in previously announced cutbacks at Bethlehem's Johnstown, Pa., and Lackawanna, N.Y., plants. It also includes several hundred employes who elected to take advantage of the corporation's special early retirement program that was announced earlier this month.

In August, Bethlehem had announced plans to reduce corporate spending by about $200 million over the next two years.

Economy 'off course'

After six days of meetings and speeches by finance ministers from 131 nations, the head of the International Monetary Fund concluded Friday that the world economy was "blown off course" in 1977. IMF Managing Director Johannes Witteveen made no calls for new policy initiatives, but only an appeal to avoid hasty national economic actions that might be harmful internationally. "Protectionist trade measures, we all agree, must be strongly resisted," said Witteveen, explaining the deepest fears of the delegates who attended the joint annual meeting of the fund and the World Bank. In his closing speech, World Bank President Robert McNamara said there was a consensus that loan capital of the bank should be increased to provide more assistance to developing countries.

Lockheed changes name

Lockheed Aircraft Co., holding its first regular annual meeting of stockholders in four years — during which the defense industry giant was in and out of the headlines — changed its name Thursday and got a new chief. The outgoing chairman, Robert W. Haack, promised stockholders an era of quiet prosperity for a change. Haack said the outlook for the firm, which has been plagued by years of precarious finances and a bribery scandal that rocked governments throughout the world, is "quite encouraging." As expected, the board meeting that followed the shareholders' session named Roy A. Anderson, 56, from vice chairman to chairman and chief executive officer, replacing Haack, who remains on the board. Lawrence O. Kitchen, 54, remained as president and chief operating officer. The stockholders approved a name change, from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. to Lockheed Corp., to reflect the firm's growing diversity.

Saudis to take over firm

Saudi Arabia will pay four American oil companies $1.5 billion for their share of the Arabian-American Oil Co. (ARAMCO), the giant firm that produces nearly all of the desert kingdom's oil, the conservative daily Al Anwar said Friday. It said the government also would acquire 50 per cent ownership of the huge Ras Tanura oil refinery on the Persian Gulf. The newspaper said the details of the takeover were revealed in the Saudi capital of Riyadh. In 1974, the Saudi government acquired a 60 per cent share in ARAMCO and since then negotiations have been going on for a complete takeover. ARAMCO produces 98 per cent of Saudi Arabia's oil. It is 40 per cent owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of California, Texaco and the Mobil Oil Co.

Coffee meeting adjourns

World coffee negotiators ended a "very fruitful" Friday but most progress was toward oiling the machinery and smoothing the market, rather than bringing coffee's price down. "I think the meeting has been very fruitful," said Alexandre Beltrao, executive director of the International Coffee Organization. "There is a sense of unanimity that although we have faced a difficult time we have made a lot of progress," Beltrao said. However, most progress was toward technical smoothing of the agreement and the market rather than direct action on coffee prices and supplies.

U.S. to help auto workers

The Dept. of Labor announced Friday approximately 4,600 automotive workers at two General Motors plants in Lordstown, Ohio, and Wilmington, Del., have been certified to receive government assistance in finding new jobs. Another 600 workers producing parts for subcompact cars at GM's auxiliary stamping plant in Lordstown also were certified for help by the Labor Dept. The department found the workers had or may become unemployed as a result of increased imports of foreign-built subcompact cars. The department said it denied petitions for assistance on behalf of approximately 2,900 other workers and former workers engaged in making subcompact car parts at 20 other GM auxiliary plants in New York, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio. The trade act of 1974 provides that workers who believe they have been discharged or will lose their jobs because of increased imports may petition the secretary of labor for "adjustment assistance."

Retail outlets expected to increase

The home computer sales boom will produce a corresponding jump in retail outlets and those interested in entering the field can expect to need $100,000 to start.

The success of Computerland, the only nationwide home computer franchise, is leading many to look at computer sales outlets as an investment possibility.

The California-based company began in 1975 as a mail-order house but quickly converted to a franchise operation and has 16 stores, including outlets in Arlington Heights and Niles, says Chris Lundberg, the firm's director of marketing.

The firm plans to open about five stores a month beginning next year with franchise fees at $25,000.

But potential operators will need more than $25,000, warns Lundberg, who says $100,000 is needed to successfully operate a Computerland store.

THAT FIGURE is based on the following cost projections:

- $40,000 for inventory. This is the most important factor involved in opening a new store, he says.
- $15,000 for working capital.
- $16,000 for store fixtures and equipment.
- $8,000 for improvements to rented store facilities.
- $25,000 for the franchise fee.

Stores should be located in large metropolitan areas to reach the average home computer customer, a man between the ages of 25 and 49 in the upper-middle income bracket with a working knowledge of computers or electronics, Lundberg says.

After six months of operation, a store should be doing between $30,000 and $50,000 in sales, Lundberg says, based on the experience of present stores. Sales of about $12,000 are needed monthly to break even, and the average unit retail price in stores now is between $1,400 and $1,600.

Lundberg says all figures may vary slightly depending on the part of the country in which the store is operating.

Nation needs business input: Lance

Former Budget Director Bert Lance says he "wouldn't wish on anyone" hs experience in Washington, but businessmen should not shy away from government service because of it. "I don't regret at all being part of the process, part of the system, because I think it is that important," Lance said Thursday. "It wasn't fun, it wasn't pleasurable. It wasn't something I would wish on anyone, but it was part of the process." In his first formal appearance since his Sept. 21 resignation as President Carter's budget director, Lance also said: "I don't miss Washington. It's good to be back in Georgia."

Accompanied by his wife, LaBelle, Lance spoke at a black-tie dinner of investment bankers, fulfilling a long-standing commitment to the Investment Assn. of New York. Many businessmen considered Lance their chief advocate with Carter and the audience Thursday stood and loudly applauded the former budget director. "Our government needs your ideals — your ideals and your experience," Lance said. "This can only come from the private sector."

Salaried workers laid off

Bethlehem Steel Corp. Friday confirmed it is reducing its salaried work force on a corporate basis by approximately 2,500 employes. The number includes white collar workers laid off in previously announced cutbacks at Bethlehem's Johnstown, Pa., and Lackawanna, N.Y., plants. It also includes several hundred employes who elected to take advantage of the corporation's special early retirement program that was announced earlier this month.

In August, Bethlehem had announced plans to reduce corporate spending by about $200 million over the next two years.

Economy 'off course'

After six days of meetings and speeches by finance ministers from 131 nations, the head of the International Monetary Fund concluded Friday that the world economy was "blown off course" in 1977. IMF Managing Director Johannes Witteveen made no calls for new policy initiatives, but only an appeal to avoid hasty national economic actions that might be harmful internationally. "Protectionist trade measures, we all agree, must be strongly resisted," said Witteveen, explaining the deepest fears of the delegates who attended the joint annual meeting of the fund and the World Bank. In his closing speech, World Bank President Robert McNamara said there was a consensus that loan capital of the bank should be increased to provide more assistance to developing countries.

Lockheed changes name

Lockheed Aircraft Co., holding its first regular annual meeting of stockholders in four years — during which the defense industry giant was in and out of the headlines — changed its name Thursday and got a new chief. The outgoing chairman, Robert W. Haack, promised stockholders an era of quiet prosperity for a change. Haack said the outlook for the firm, which has been plagued by years of precarious finances and a bribery scandal that rocked governments throughout the world, is "quite encouraging." As expected, the board meeting that followed the shareholders' session named Roy A. Anderson, 56, from vice chairman to chairman and chief executive officer, replacing Haack, who remains on the board. Lawrence O. Kitchen, 54, remained as president and chief operating officer. The stockholders approved a name change, from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. to Lockheed Corp., to reflect the firm's growing diversity.

Saudis to take over firm

Saudi Arabia will pay four American oil companies $1.5 billion for their share of the Arabian-American Oil Co. (ARAMCO), the giant firm that produces nearly all of the desert kingdom's oil, the conservative daily Al Anwar said Friday. It said the government also would acquire 50 per cent ownership of the huge Ras Tanura oil refinery on the Persian Gulf. The newspaper said the details of the takeover were revealed in the Saudi capital of Riyadh. In 1974, the Saudi government acquired a 60 per cent share in ARAMCO and since then negotiations have been going on for a complete takeover. ARAMCO produces 98 per cent of Saudi Arabia's oil. It is 40 per cent owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of California, Texaco and the Mobil Oil Co.

Coffee meeting adjourns

World coffee negotiators ended a "very fruitful" Friday but most progress was toward oiling the machinery and smoothing the market, rather than bringing coffee's price down. "I think the meeting has been very fruitful," said Alexandre Beltrao, executive director of the International Coffee Organization. "There is a sense of unanimity that although we have faced a difficult time we have made a lot of progress," Beltrao said. However, most progress was toward technical smoothing of the agreement and the market rather than direct action on coffee prices and supplies.

U.S. to help auto workers

The Dept. of Labor announced Friday approximately 4,600 automotive workers at two General Motors plants in Lordstown, Ohio, and Wilmington, Del., have been certified to receive government assistance in finding new jobs. Another 600 workers producing parts for subcompact cars at GM's auxiliary stamping plant in Lordstown also were certified for help by the Labor Dept. The department found the workers had or may become unemployed as a result of increased imports of foreign-built subcompact cars. The department said it denied petitions for assistance on behalf of approximately 2,900 other workers and former workers engaged in making subcompact car parts at 20 other GM auxiliary plants in New York, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio. The trade act of 1974 provides that workers who believe they have been discharged or will lose their jobs because of increased imports may petition the secretary of labor for "adjustment assistance."

Retail outlets expected to increase

The home computer sales boom will produce a corresponding jump in retail outlets and those interested in entering the field can expect to need $100,000 to start.

The success of Computerland, the only nationwide home computer franchise, is leading many to look at computer sales outlets as an investment possibility.

The California-based company began in 1975 as a mail-order house but quickly converted to a franchise operation and has 16 stores, including outlets in Arlington Heights and Niles, says Chris Lundberg, the firm's director of marketing.

The firm plans to open about five stores a month beginning next year with franchise fees at $25,000.

But potential operators will need more than $25,000, warns Lundberg, who says $100,000 is needed to successfully operate a Computerland store.

THAT FIGURE is based on the following cost projections:

- $40,000 for inventory. This is the most important factor involved in opening a new store, he says.
- $15,000 for working capital.
- $16,000 for store fixtures and equipment.
- $8,000 for improvements to rented store facilities.
- $25,000 for the franchise fee.

Stores should be located in large metropolitan areas to reach the average home computer customer, a man between the ages of 25 and 49 in the upper-middle income bracket with a working knowledge of computers or electronics, Lundberg says.

After six months of operation, a store should be doing between $30,000 and $50,000 in sales, Lundberg says, based on the experience of present stores. Sales of about $12,000 are needed monthly to break even, and the average unit retail price in stores now is between $1,400 and $1,600.

Lundberg says all figures may vary slightly depending on the part of the country in which the store is operating.

Dow gains 7.02 points to finish off week rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks, aided by favorable economic and interest rate news, closed out a winning week Friday with their best gain in four weeks. Trading was fairly active.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had given up most of an early five-point advance, rallied to gain 7.02 points to 847.11, the best gain since it rose 7.45 points Sept. 2.

A 5.37-point winner Thursday, the Dow gained 7.97 points for the week after touching a 21-month low on Wednesday and trimmed its third-quarter loss to 69.19 points.

Buying accelerated late in the day when the Agriculture Dept., in a favorable development on the inflation front, reported farm prices fell 1 per cent in the latest month, the fourth consecutive decline.

INVESTORS CONTINUED to be encouraged by the government's report Thursday that its August economic indicators rose 0.8 per cent, better than expected. Also, a McGraw-Hill survey showed a surge in construction contracts.

The Federal Reserve Board sparked early buying with its report late Thursday that the nation's basic money supply fell $1:1 billion in the lafest week, easing pressures on interest rates.

Trendsetting Citibank left its prime lending rate at 7.25 per cent, when its commercial paper-based formula called for 7½ per cent.

As a result, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index rose 0.37 to 52.81 and the average price of a share increased by 21 cents.

ADVANCES TOPPED declines, 958 to 429, among the 1,846 issues crossing the composite tape at 3 p.m.

Big Board volume totaled 21,170,000 shares, compared with 21,160,000 traded Thursday.

Prices were higher in active trading of American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter issues.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter at 3 p.m. totaled 23,213,620 shares, compared with 23,184,400 Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index soared 1.04 to 118.88 and the average price of a share rose 10 cents. Advances topped declines, 368 to 192, among the 835 issues traded at 3 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 2,350,000 shares, compared with 2,270,000 Thursday.

"What makes you think he's a winner?"

3rd quarter closes with some gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed out a disastrous third-quarter with a modest gain this week, aided by bargain hunters and a strong spurt in the government's economic indicators. Trading was moderate.

But the rally was tempered by the nation's growing trade deficit and investor uncertainty over what Congress will do — if anything — with the Carter administration's energy bill and pending tax reform proposals.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, which fell 17.67 points last week, rebounded with a gain of 7.97 points to 847.11. The Dow dropped to a 21-month low of 834.72 on Wednesday, however.

THE BLUE-CHIP indicator finished the third quarter with a 69.19-point loss.

Some of the Dow's ups and downs this week were caused by institutions cleaning up their portfolios for the fourth quarter, which begins Monday. There also was some bargain hunting in the wake of the market's 1977 losses.

The New York Stock Exchange Common Stock Index added 0.74 to 52.81 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, jumped 1.49 to 96.53.

Advances topped declines, 1,064 to 722, among the 2,078 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big board volume totaled 97,603,840 shares, compared with 93,544,630 last week and 91,288,520 traded during the same week a year ago.

COMPOSITE VOLUME of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 112,346,680 shares, compared with a revised 110,058,870 last week.

The oversold market was ripe for a rally, and the Commerce Department's report of a 0.8 per cent rise in its leading economic indicators — better than most expected — triggered the buying.

Treasury Sec. W. Michael Blumnthal found the indicators report "encouraging." At the same time, he predicted a 5 per cent increase in the gross national product next year.

President Carter told a joint meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank the U.S. economy would register a strong gain this year and next.

But Morgan Guaranty economists said the nation's 1978 balance of payments deficit would be worse than this year's record unless Japan and West Germany stimulate their economies more and revalue their currencies.

Dow gains 7.02 points to finish off week rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks, aided by favorable economic and interest rate news, closed out a winning week Friday with their best gain in four weeks. Trading was fairly active.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had given up most of an early five-point advance, rallied to gain 7.02 points to 847.11, the best gain since it rose 7.45 points Sept. 2.

A 5.37-point winner Thursday, the Dow gained 7.97 points for the week after touching a 21-month low on Wednesday and trimmed its third-quarter loss to 69.19 points.

Buying accelerated late in the day when the Agriculture Dept., in a favorable development on the inflation front, reported farm prices fell 1 per cent in the latest month, the fourth consecutive decline.

INVESTORS CONTINUED to be encouraged by the government's report Thursday that its August economic indicators rose 0.8 per cent, better than expected. Also, a McGraw-Hill survey showed a surge in construction contracts.

The Federal Reserve Board sparked early buying with its report late Thursday that the nation's basic money supply fell $1:1 billion in the latest week, easing pressures on interest rates.

Trendsetting Citibank left its prime lending rate at 7.25 per cent, when its commercial paper-based formula called for 7½ per cent.

As a result, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index rose 0.37 to 52.81 and the average price of a share increased by 21 cents.

ADVANCES TOPPED declines, 958 to 429, among the 1,846 issues crossing the composite tape at 3 p.m.

Big Board volume totaled 21,170,000 shares, compared with 21,160,000 traded Thursday.

Prices were higher in active trading of American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter issues.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter at 3 p.m. totaled 23,213,620 shares, compared with 23,184,400 Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index soared 1.04 to 118.88 and the average price of a share rose 10 cents. Advances topped declines, 368 to 192, among the 835 issues traded at 3 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 2,350,000 shares, compared with 2,270,000 Thursday.

"What makes you think he's a winner?"

3rd quarter closes with some gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed out a disastrous third-quarter with a modest gain this week, aided by bargain hunters and a strong spurt in the government's economic indicators. Trading was moderate.

But the rally was tempered by the nation's growing trade deficit and investor uncertainty over what Congress will do — if anything — with the Carter administration's energy bill and pending tax reform proposals.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, which fell 17.67 points last week, rebounded with a gain of 7.97 points to 847.11. The Dow dropped to a 21-month low of 834.72 on Wednesday, however.

THE BLUE-CHIP indicator finished the third quarter with a 69.19-point loss.

Some of the Dow's ups and downs this week were caused by institutions cleaning up their portfolios for the fourth quarter, which begins Monday. There also was some bargain hunting in the wake of the market's 1977 losses.

The New York Stock Exchange Common Stock Index added 0.74 to 52.81 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, jumped 1.49 to 96.53.

Advances topped declines, 1,064 to 722, among the 2,078 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big board volume totaled 97,603,840 shares, compared with 93,544,630 last week and 91,288,520 traded during the same week a year ago.

COMPOSITE VOLUME of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 112,346,680 shares, compared with a revised 110,058,870 last week.

The oversold market was ripe for a rally, and the Commerce Department's report of a 0.8 per cent rise in its leading economic indicators — better than most expected — triggered the buying.

Treasury Sec. W. Michael Blumenthal found the indicators report "encouraging." At the same time, he predicted a 5 per cent increase in the gross national product next year.

President Carter told a joint meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank the U.S. economy would register a strong gain this year and next.

But Morgan Guaranty economists said the nation's 1978 balance of payments deficit would be worse than this year's record unless Japan and West Germany stimulate their economies more and revalue their currencies.

‘Major’ tax reform will take time

Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON — At the liberal-oriented Brookings Institution, Joseph A. Pechman, director of economic studies and a renowned tax expert, bubbles over with enthusiasm. “We’re on the threshold of a major event,” he promises.

Pechman is talking about President Carter’s forthcoming tax reform program, and the Brookings economist is sure it will broaden the tax base sufficiently, capturing income that heretofore has escaped Uncle Sam, so the present top rate of 70 per cent can be lowered to 50 per cent.

But in Washington’s other economic think tank, the conservative American Enterprise Institute, economist William Fellner wanrs that tax reformers may be counting their chickens too early. In a new study, Fellner said it is politically unrealistic to believe Congress really can or should close all of the existing loopholes, as an offset to planned tax cuts, amounting to a total of $15 billion to $20 billion or more in fiscal 1979.

The most significant feature of the Carter tax reform blueprint is a plan to wipe out the distinction between capital gains and ordinary income. After long debate, the administration also will suggest a way of eliminating the so-called “double taxation” of dividends by allowing stockholders to take a credit for a share of taxes paid by the corporations.

THE WHOLE IDEA is to stimulate capital formation. A higher rate of return on corporate stock, many analysts feel, could trigger a bull market on Wall Street. This could be accentuated if the reduced taxed on dividends is accompanied, as seems likely, by a liberal helping of traditional business tax incentives, including a new cut in corporate rates and a more generous investment credit.

Overall, the tax burden would be cut for most low and middle-income persons and boosted in the upper brackets.

Fellner, a distinguished scholar and former member of the Council of Economc Advisers, painstakingly details the almost $700 billion “gap” between the Commerce Dept. estimate of personal income in 1976 of $1,375 billion and the actual taxable base of $680 billion. But big as the gap is, Fellner said he belives most of it will stay out of the clutches of the Internal Revenue Service.

Fellner and others voice an even bigger objection to the indicated shape of tax reform, and that is the absence of any plan to deal with the over-taxation resulting from inflation. This is a problem the administration brushes off, but it won’t go away.

In a speech last month, Harvard Prof. Martin Feldstein, recently named President of the National Bureau of Economic Research, said the uncertainty created by inflationary effects on the tax rate is a cloud hanging over the stock market and future business decisions.

THE FIRST NATIONAL City Bank cites this example to show how inflation causes taxes to be levied at higher marginal rates as income rises with inflation. A family of four, earning $15,000 in 1955, has had increases in income that exactly match inflation over the ensuing 21 years, producing an income of $32,900 in 1976 — a gain of 120 per cent. But because the family has been pushed into a marginal tax bracket of 36 per cent instead of 22 per cent, its tax bill has soared from $1,540 to $6,600, an increase of 330 per cent. In terms of real income, the family is 11 per cent worse off than it was in 1955.

Fellner would “index” the tax system, boosting the exemptions, credits and the lower and upper limit of each tax bracket by the amount of inflation.

Pechman shrugs off Fellner’s objections. He said it isn’t necessary to get the most inclusive tax base in order to lower the top tax rate to 50 per cent.

These are difficult matters to resolve. Tax revision is a complicated process. Special interests have been successful before in protecting their own turf, and are sure to win some battles again.

But a Democratic administration’s commitment to alleviating double taxation of dividends and other improvements in the business tax structure indeed may foreshadow the major turning-point predicted by Pechman. On the other hand, inflation will continue to have as much to do with the real taxes we pay as any changes evolving through tax reform.

Economics of cents forgot as leaders ‘reform’ taxes

Louis Rukeyser

Don’t look now, but our noble statesmen are treating us like idiots again as they play at the task of reforming the nation’s tax and Social Security systems.

They naturally don’t want to advertise the real cause of both problems: their own incompetent failure to control costs. With the tabs escalating at a supersonic pace, practically everybody’s true tax bill soars every single year whether the bill is levied directly, indirectly or in the disguised tax known as inflation.

Thus the only authentic way to bring down your tax bill or mine is for Washington to spend less. Period. Unless the federal government (and its state and local counterparts) reduces the public take, now about 40 cents out of every dollar earned in America, any hope that you genuinely will benefit from the current, highly publicized machinations in the Capital is strictly a mirage.

BUT NEITHER THE White House nor Congress wants you to stick to the simple truth: that the only authentic tax reform would begin with spending reform. If you kept that in mind, you see, your wrath at your own tax bill would be directed in the proper direction, at them, rather than toward some vaguely defined rich folks who are supposed to be underpaving their share.

And so, once again, the politics of envy are replacing the economics of sense. Washington figures that you can be easily distracted if it focuses on the former. Just about everybody, it is assumed, is in favor of the theoretical concept of tax reform because just about everybody interprets that phrase to mean that he or she will pay less, and somebody else will pay more.

The American memory span is notoriously short, but the present media rash of enthusiam for President Carter’s “brand new” calls for tax reform might usefully be treated with three factual reminders:

- This is the third such major overhaul of the tax code within a decade. Each was trumpeted as the long-overdue reform of an unfair, overly complex, disgraceful system. When the headlines evaporated, the lawyers and accountants had another bonanza — but strikingly little actually had been done to ease the ultimate burden on the average citizen. And government spending roared on, undisturbed.
- While our attention is diverted by all this playing on our presumed envy and paranoia, Congress and the President are arguing only about how much bigger to make next year’s budget deficit. They are pursuing the most vulgar politics-as-usual: raising our real taxes every year, and then trying to make us think that the villain is some mischievous tax evader down the street.

Anyone who regards this as too cynical an appraisal of our splendid public servants is referred to just one of a number of current, blatant examples: the joint White House-Senate efforts to cover the skyrocketing costs of Social Security (which an irresponsible 1972 law sent out of control) by ending the traditional parity between employe and employer payments The idea is to sneak one more tax rise past you, and to delude you into thinking it is going on someone else’s tab.

Not even the Senators believe this to be true: they assume employers will just boost their prices. So you’ll pay this tax bill, too, as you always do, and always will, until we stop trying to reshuffle the deckchairs on the Titanic and start trying to bring down the cost of the ship.

- While our attention is diverted by all this playing on our presumed envy and paranoia, Congress and the President are arguing only about how much bigger to make next year's budget deficit. They are pursuing the most vulgar politics-as-usual: raising our real taxes every year, and then trying to make us think that the villain is some mischievous tax evader down the street.

Anyone who regards this as too cynical an appraisal of our splendid public servants is referred to just one of a number of current, blatant examples: the joint White House-Senate efforts to cover the skyrocketing costs of Social Security (which an irresponsible 1972 law sent out of control) by ending the traditional parity between employe and employer payments The idea is to sneak one more tax rise past you, and to delude you into thinking it is going on someone else's tab.

Not even the Senators believe this to be true: they assume employers will just boost their prices. So you'll pay this tax bill, too, as you always do, and always will, until we stop trying to reshuffle the deckchairs on the Titanic and start trying to bring down the cost of the ship.

Sale of duplex would be unwise step for widow now

Money Wise

I am a widow with no immediate family as heirs. My assets are certificates of deposit and some utility preferred stock plus the duplex that I own. I live in one unit and rent the other. I'm thinking of selling it. Should I buy more certificates of Treasury bills? I would have to continue paying rent — about $200 a month. In my will I am leaving parts of my assets to my church. Can I get a deduction on taxes for property left to my church? — Mrs. G.D.

Last question first, as it may answer both. If you deed your duplex to your church, you can continue living in the property during your lifetime and get a deduction from income taxes, too. You would lose the income from the second unit of the duplex, but you would not have to pay rent. The amount of your deduction depends on your age and the value of the duplex.

Rather than sell or deed your duplex to your church, why not hold onto it? Income from the sale proceeds would probably total less than the rent from one unit plus your use of the second unit. Further, real estate is increasing in value faster than most other investments and could protect you from inflation. Certainly, your rental would be protected from inflation increases. If maintenance of the property is becoming a burden, arrange for a professional manager to handle those details.

What is the current interest rate on Series E savings bonds? Can they be renewed at maturity? Can federal and state income tax on E-bond interest be deferred? Can E-bonds be "rolled over" at maturity into a different bond series without constructive receipt to the taxpayer?" — A.T.

Current E.bond interest averages 6 per cent during their 5-year maturity. Less than 6 per cent interest is paid in early years; more than 6 per cent is paid in later years. The average is 6 per cent. Unless redeemed, E-bonds continue paying 6 per cent after maturity automatically. You need do nothing but continue to hold the E-bonds.

No state income tax is payable on E-bond interest at any time. Federal income tax on E-bond interest is payable only when the bonds are redeemed. As a special privilege, E-bonds may be exchanged for H-bonds at any time after maturity and the interest accrued on the E-bonds is deferred until the H-bonds are sold or no longer extended. Currently H-bonds pay an average 6-per-cent interest over their 10-year-maturity.

I'm considering a no-load mutual fund as an alternative to certificates of deposit. A corporate bond fund pays about 7.5 per cent, but the net asset value has gone down 10 cents since January. A fund invested in T-bills and medium-term debt obligations paid 6.78 per cent last year; value increased over 6 per cent. Should I wait for the value to go down before investing? — M.D.

With your apparent know-how you might consider other alternatives. While you gain liquidity and a fair return when you invest in a mutual fund, you should recognize the expenses charged to fund earnings. You could probably do as well investing in utility income stocks currently paying 8.25 to 8.5 directly. The problem with bonds is illustrated by the decrease in net... asset value. Prices decrease as yields increase. Bonds are not yet in their buying range for this cycle of long-term interest rates.

Estate taxes must be paid within 9 months, except for certain circumstances. If one has bought 4-year certificates of deposit and passes on after only two years, can they be transferred to an heir without having to cash them early and pay the usual penalties? — L.M.

Certificates of deposit are written for a specific term, 4 years in your example. However, if the owner should die before the term, they will be paid in full to the estate without penalty.

When I retire in two years, I won't be able to afford mortgage payments and taxes. The house is worth $160,000 with a $44,000 outstanding mortgage. Can I deed the house to someone in return for the right to live in it, rent and tax free, for the rest of my life? — E.B.E.

You may deed your house to a charitable institution, such as a private university, in exchange for lifetime use. You will get a charitable deduction that will save on current taxes. However, you cannot expect tax-free benefits forever. The amount of the deduction depends on your age and the value of your home as defined in tables published by the Internal Revenue Service. I suggest you contact the office of planning, giving, or estate-planning services of the university of your choice for specific information.

Stop the hurt.
We can stop the pain of child abuse. Below are a few suggestions. Commit yourself to just one. And do your part to stop the hurt.

- ☐ I'll show my child some love. (Sometimes I forget.)
- ☐ I'll learn painless ways to tell my child "No."
- ☐ I'll volunteer time to my local child abuse prevention organization.
- ☐ I'd like to start helping right now. Here's my donation.

Elk Grove pass pulls Grens out of mud

by VIC NOVAK

For a play that Elk Grove football coach Don Schnake did not want to call, it worked out pretty well.

In fact, it was the perfect play in an imperfect game between Schnake's Elk Grove Grenadiers and Forest View's Falcons at Elk Grove Friday night.

The play, a 72-yard touchdown pass from Gren quarterback Ralph Souder to back Jack McCloughan, constituted the only points in Elk Grove's 6-0 victory.

The pass was the only one completed by either team. With no score and 7:02 left in the fourth period, Elk Grove had the ball on its own 29-yard line, facing a third down and 10 situation.

Souder faded back, hit McCloughan in the flat, and John did the rest, cutting to the right sideline and outrunning everybody else to the Forest View end zone.

High school football

"THAT ONE OF our favorite patterns," said Schnake. "We didn't want to throw, because they had 11 people up close to the line and the ball was slick but if you didn't want a 0-0 tie, you had to throw it."

The spectacular play seemed like the only thing that worked for either team. Rain before and during the game caused both Mid Suburban League South division powerhouses to make an excessive number of mistakes.

Forest View was penalized 11 times for 75 yards while Elk Grove committed seven penalties for 45 yards. The Grenadiers also fumbled the ball away four times, three by senior Jim Meyer and one by junior Jack Walsh.

"You can't really play football in this weather," Schnake said. "I think it's a shame we have to play in weather like this — and that goes for both sides."

The game began as though Forest View was going to run Elk Grove into the ground. The Falcons took the opening kickoff and forged a 12-play drive that moved them from their own 27-yard line to the Grenadier 27.

THERE, HOWEVER, Forest View's best offensive series of the night ended. With fourth and five from the Grenadier 30, Falcon running back John Miscevich could gain only three and Elk Grove took over.

Aside from the touchdown pass, the game settled down to a defensive battle. Elk Grove marched to the Falcon 16 in the second period, but Meyer made his first fumble and Forest View's Steve Byrne recovered.

One period later with the game still scoreless, Elk Grove was attempting a field goal fourth down and seven on Forest View 17.

However, the Grens spent too much time getting themselves together, and were penalized five yards for delay of game. Thus a 35-yard attempt was now 40. Elk Grove chose to run the ball, but Meyer fumbled again, this time on a busted play.

That's the kind of night it was for both teams.

Elk Grove is now 3-1 overall and 2-1 in the MSL South. Forest View is 2-2 for the season and 1-1 in league play.

When it rains, it pours but Elgin High still scores

by RICK CHRISTOPHER

The game plan for both teams became obvious from the beginning. Score early, taking advantage of the light rains, and let the defense tread through the downpour.

"It was a matter of who fumbled closest to the other's goal line in a situation like this," Maine West head coach Dan Mortier said.

Though a group effort of 10 fumbles by the two teams didn't lead directly to a single score, it was significant in stalling many a drive. All but one.

ELGIN MADE an early first quarter drive stand through a driving rain for an 8-0 nonconference win over Maine West Friday night at Elgin's Memorial Stadium.

"The difference was the first series," Mortier said. "Our biggest complaint all season has been that we've allowed too many points. But our defense did a super job."

While a light drizzle fell, Elgin took advantage of Barney Spates kickoff return to the Maroons' 40. One play later, Elgin rested its powerful offense on Maine West's 10-yard line.

Quarterback Tom Hayes rolled right with the ball and threw downfield to end David Hersey. The 50-yard reception had the Maroons knocking at Maine West's end zone.

"WE CALLED THE play from the sidelines," Elgin head coach Dick Stephens said. "If we got into good field position early we would try to go up top with the bootleg pass.

"We wanted that quick score before the downpour came," Stephens said.

Four plays later Elgin still was knocking but only from a yard closer. An incomplete pass on second down eventually led the Maroons first field goal attempt of the season.

Don Wasniewski's 27-yard try was wide as the Warriors took over from the 20.

"I DIDN'T bother to call a play then because I had no idea Hayes would call another pass in that situation," Stephens said.

Forcing Maine West to punt on its first possession, Elgin started its lone touchdown march from its own 37 yard line.

Spates started and ended the six-play drive with runs around left end. The first, a 15-yard gain to the Warriors' 48, set the stage for another Hayes pass.

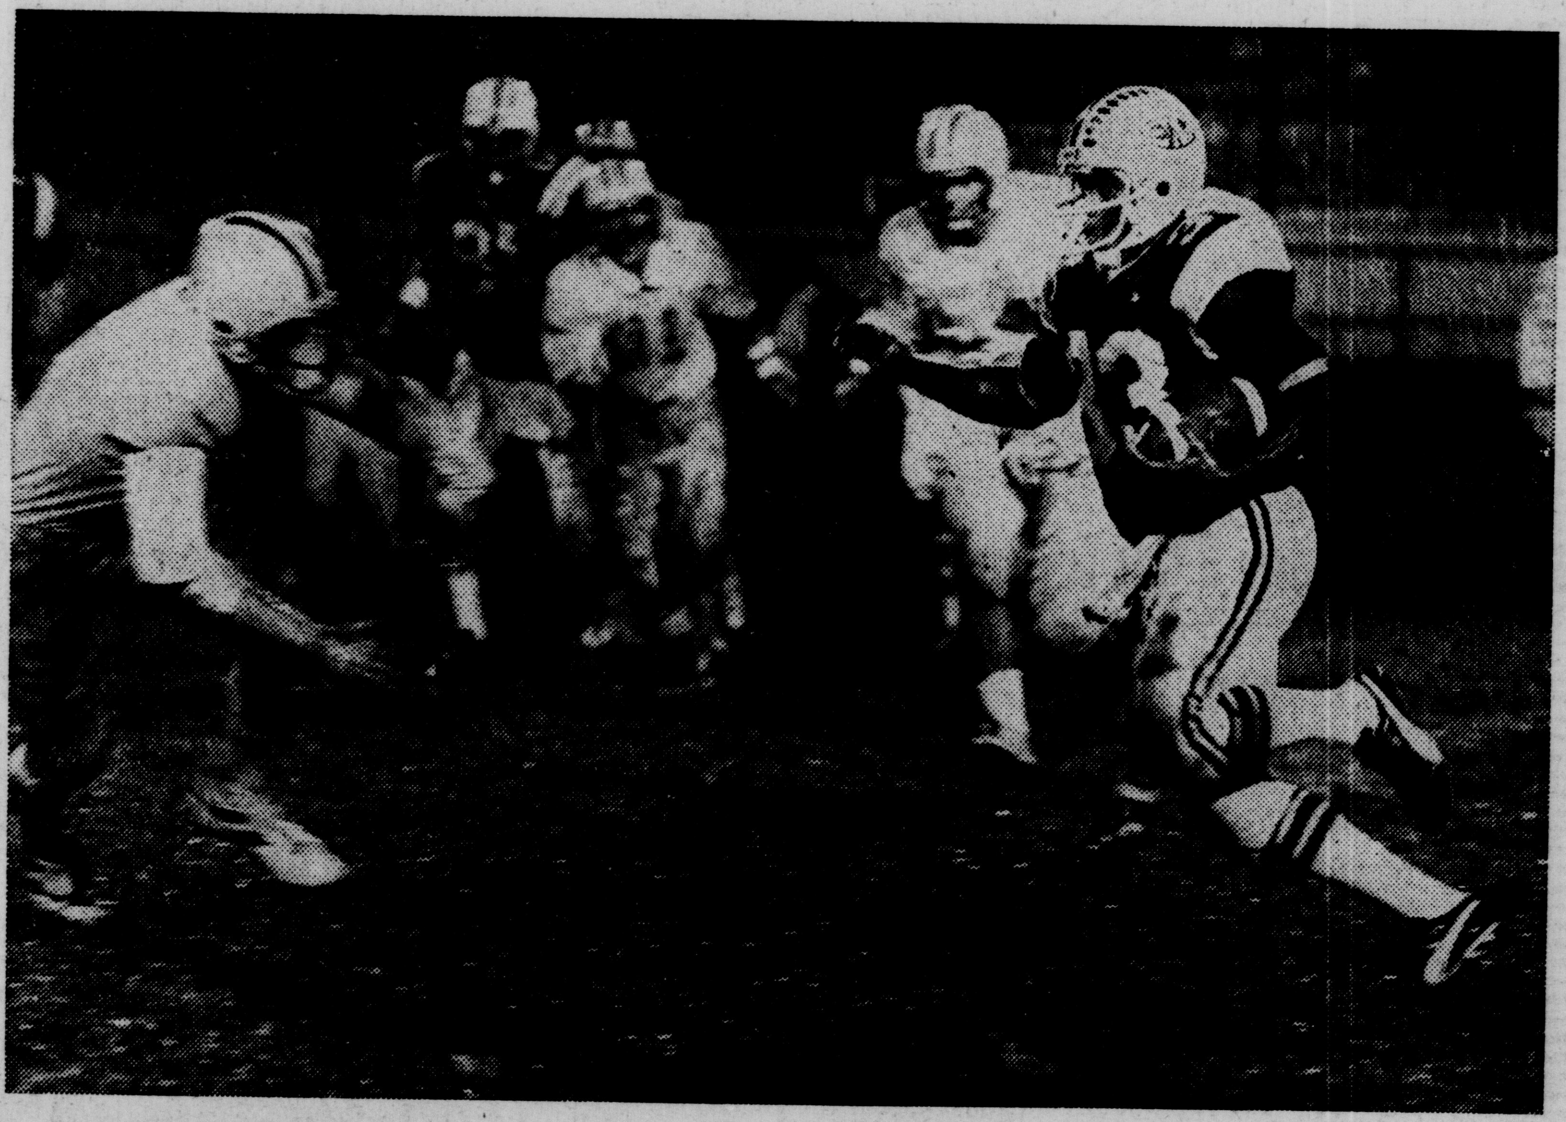
Again finding Hersey alone on a third and six situation, with a 12-yard pass to the Warriors' 30, Hayes moved his Maroons closer.

SPATES FINISHED the drive with a 30-yard scoring run around the left side, sidestepping his way past several defenders. For the game, Spates gained 87 yards on 24 carries.

"I've always told my kids that it would be good to play in the rain but there's nothing we can do about it," Stephens said.

But the rain did stop the Warriors lone threat at the end of the first quarter when quarterback Ron Rausch fumbled the handoff from center.

The eight-yard loss took Maine West out of field position and an ensuing 43-yard field goal try was no good. The area's third leading rusher, Maine West's Bob Aslan, rushed for 112 yards on 25 carries, despite the poor field conditions.



TURNING THE CORNER on a "end around" is Elgin running back Barney Spates. The senior halfback swept the left side of the Maine West defense for a 30-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. The lone score lasted through the downpour as Elgin beat Maine West 8-0 Friday night.

Yanks still fight for title

From Daily Herald wire services

John Hiller, pressed into a starting role because of injuries to the pitching staff, turned in a gutsy eight-hitter in only his eighth start of the year and Rusty Staub drove in three runs Friday night, enabling the Detroit Tigers to defeat New York 5-2 and prevent the Yankees from clinching the American League East title.

Jim Rice drove in five runs with four hits and Carlton Fisk drove in four runs with a pair of two-run doubles to pace the Boston Red Sox to an 11-10 victory over Baltimore, eliminating the Orioles from title contention.

Hiller, regarded as one of baseball's top relievers, struggled through the first five innings against New York but stranded nine runners during that period then settled down and allowed just two hits over the last four innings to register his eighth victory against 14 losses.

IT MARKED the second loss in a row for the Yankees, who now must win one of their final two games with Detroit or hope that the Boston Red Sox lose one of their remaining two games to Baltimore in order to clinch the title.

Staub, the Tigers' designated hitter who has been one of the hottest hitters in the league since the All-Star break, singled home two runs with two outs in the fifth of

Prospect holds onto ball, wins 22-0

by DON FRISKE

On a night when the running backs grabbed more mud than football and the receivers kept themselves busy with blocking assignments, you had to give a lot of credit to the Prospect Knights.

They were able to hold the ball, something the Rolling Meadows Mustangs failed to do at some of the most crucial points in the game Friday evening. When it rains from start to finish, the team with the fewest turnovers is the best bet to win.

So the Knights, who lost the ball only twice on two fumbles, beat the Mustangs 22-0 to improve their season record to 4-0. Rolling Meadows is 2-2.

BOTH OF PROSPECT'S turnovers came in the fourth quarter when the game was already decided. But for the Mustangs, misfortune struck on the opening possession when they lost a fumble on their own 21-yard line.

It was the first of seven giveaways for the Knights, and the good field position paid off after Dick Paulus smothered the loose ball for Prospect.

Although they did not score on four plays, the Knights still had Rolling Meadows deep in its own territory. The Mustangs took over only to lose nine more yards on three plays.

That resulted in a punt, which was blocked by linebacker Paul Izban. The ball rolled beyond the limits of the end zone to give the Knights a safety and 2-0 advantage with 7:48 still left to play in the opening period.

AS A RESULT of the safety, the Mustangs had to kick off from their own 20-yard line. Randy McBride returned the ball 34 yards and once again the Mustangs were in trouble, all going back to the initial fumble.

Brian Devalk eventually scored from the five to give the Knights an 8-0 lead with 5:17 showing on the first-quarter clock. The first half ended with that score and the second opened with another crucial turnover against the Mustangs.

On the opening play of the third quarter, Mustang quarterback Bill Collis threw a desperation pass as he was being tackled. The aerial was picked off by Izban, who raced 45 yards for a touchdown to further demolish Rolling Meadows' hopes for a second-half comeback.

The Mustang offense had trouble getting untracked throughout the game, even though fullback Bob Gill powered his way for 107 yards to lead all rushers.

IT WAS A sparkling individual effort for Gill, considering that without his blasts up the middle the Mustangs came up with only three yards for the night.

The Knights were led by fullback Mark Dahle, who gained 93 yards on 17 carries. Devalk added 41 to Prospect's total yardage of 162.

The key man on defense for the Knights was tackle Doug Henderson as he came up with three of the Mustangs' fumbles.

The Knights proved that it was their night all the way when they were able to score a final touchdown amidst much confusion. Even after two timeouts to get things straight early in the final quarter, Prospect had only 10 men on the field when they got into formation.

Quarterback Andy Loos was still able to find Dave LaCosse for a seven-yard touchdown pass.

Again finding Hersey alone on a third and six situation, with a 12-yard pass to the Warriors' 30, Hayes moved his Maroons closer.

SPATES FINISHED the drive with a 30-yard scoring run around the left side, sidestepping his way past several defenders. For the game, Spates gained 87 yards on 24 carries.

"I've always told my kids that it would be good to play in the rain but there's nothing we can do about it," Stephens said.

But the rain did stop the Warriors lone threat at the end of the first quarter when quarterback Ron Rausch fumbled the handoff from center.

The eight-yard loss took Maine West out of field position and an ensuing 43-yard field goal try was no good. The area's third leading rusher, Maine West's Bob Aslan, rushed for 112 yards on 25 carries, despite the poor field conditions.

TURNING THE CORNER on a "end around" is Elgin running back Barney Spates. The senior halfback swept the left side of the Maine West defense for a 30-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. The lone score lasted through the downpour as Elgin beat Maine West 8-0 Friday night.

Yanks still fight for title

From Daily Herald wire services

John Hiller, pressed into a starting role because of injuries to the pitching staff, turned in a gutsy eight-hitter in only his eighth start of the year and Rusty Staub drove in three runs Friday night, enabling the Detroit Tigers to defeat New York 5-2 and prevent the Yankees from clinching the American League East title.

Jim Rice drove in five runs with four hits and Carlton Fisk drove in four runs with a pair of two-run doubles to pace the Boston Red Sox to an 11-10 victory over Baltimore, eliminating the Orioles from title contention.

Hiller, regarded as one of baseball's top relievers, struggled through the first five innings against New York but stranded nine runners during that period then settled down and allowed just two hits over the last four innings to register his eighth victory against 14 losses.

IT MARKED the second loss in a row for the Yankees, who now must win one of their final two games with Detroit or hope that the Boston Red Sox lose one of their remaining two games to Baltimore in order to clinch the title.

Staub, the Tigers' designated hitter who has been one of the hottest hitters in the league since the All-Star break, singled home two runs with two outs in the fifth of

Prospect holds onto ball, wins 22-0

by DON FRISKE

On a night when the running backs grabbed more mud than football and the receivers kept themselves busy with blocking assignments, you had to give a lot of credit to the Prospect Knights.

They were able to hold the ball, something the Rolling Meadows Mustangs failed to do at some of the most crucial points in the game Friday evening. When it rains from start to finish, the team with the fewest turnovers is the best bet to win.

So the Knights, who lost the ball only twice on two fumbles, beat the Mustangs 22-0 to improve their season record to 4-0. Rolling Meadows is 2-2.

BOTH OF PROSPECT'S turnovers came in the fourth quarter when the game was already decided. But for the Mustangs, misfortune struck on the opening possession when they lost a fumble on their own 21-yard line.

It was the first of seven giveaways for the Knights, and the good field position paid off after Dick Paulus smothered the loose ball for Prospect.

Although they did not score on four plays, the Knights still had Rolling Meadows deep in its own territory. The Mustangs took over only to lose nine more yards on three plays.

That resulted in a punt, which was blocked by linebacker Paul Izban. The ball rolled beyond the limits of the end zone to give the Knights a safety and 2-0 advantage with 7:48 still left to play in the opening period.

AS A RESULT of the safety, the Mustangs had to kick off from their own 20-yard line. Randy McBride returned the ball 34 yards and once again the Mustangs were in trouble, all going back to the initial fumble.

Brian Devalk eventually scored from the five to give the Knights an 8-0 lead with 5:17 showing on the first-quarter clock. The first half ended with that score and the second opened with another crucial turnover against the Mustangs.

On the opening play of the third quarter, Mustang quarterback Bill Collis threw a desperation pass as he was being tackled. The aerial was picked off by Izban, who raced 45 yards for a touchdown to further demolish Rolling Meadows' hopes for a second-half comeback.

The Mustang offense had trouble getting untracked throughout the game, even though fullback Bob Gill powered his way for 107 yards to lead all rushers.

IT WAS A sparkling individual effort for Gill, considering that without his blasts up the middle the Mustangs came up with only three yards for the night.

The Knights were led by fullback Mark Dahle, who gained 93 yards on 17 carries. Devalk added 41 to Prospect's total yardage of 162.

The key man on defense for the Knights was tackle Doug Henderson as he came up with three of the Mustangs' fumbles.

The Knights proved that it was their night all the way when they were able to score a final touchdown amidst much confusion. Even after two timeouts to get things straight early in the final quarter, Prospect had only 10 men on the field when they got into formation.

Quarterback Andy Loos was still able to find Dave LaCosse for a seven-yard touchdown pass.

Forego to be scratched from Belmont Cup attempt

NEW YORK (UPI) — The announcement that Forego would be scratched from today's $250,000 Cup at Belmont was like announcing Thanksgiving dinner would be celebrated two weeks late.

It still would be good, but it wouldn't be the same.

A victory in the Cup certainly would have given the 7-year-old gelding a shot at his fourth straight Horse of the Year honors as well as vaulting him over the $2 million mark and past Kelso's all-time money-winning record of $1,977,896. Even a second-place finish would have pushed him past Kelso.

Not only that, but racing fans were looking forward to a replay of last year's Cup, in which Forego, under a staggering 137 pounds, came from behind with a gallant, courageous drive for a nose victory over Honest Pleasure.

THE FRANK WHITELY trained horse seemed to be ready for the Cup, having rebounded from three straight losses with a victory in the $150,000 Woodward Sept. 17, but Friday morning he turned in a dismal :39 for a 3-furlong workout and Whiteley decided the race would be too much for Forego.

"We didn't like his work this morning — he didn't show what we wanted. He just didn't bounce back from his last race," said the trainer. "Then, too, all the rain we've been having has cut into his work schedule. We hope he'll come around and we're now looking to the Jockey Club Gold Cup (Oct. 15)."

The field now is reduced to nine, with Jatski the favorite by default. Great Contractor, Crystal Water and Quiet Little Table fight it out for second choice on the overnight line, and the other starters include Prefontaine, Private Thoughts, Sawbones, Proud Birdie and Wise Philip.

Seaver wins No. 21

from Daily Herald Wire Services

John Candelaria went 2 for 2 and scattered seven hits Friday night to become the first player of Puerto Rican descent to win 20 games in one season while leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the Cubs.

The 23-year old left-hander from Brooklyn, N.Y., who pitches in almost constant pain due to a chronic back ailment, became the first Pirate 20 game winner since Vernon Law accomplished that feat in 1960 with a 20-9 record. Candelaria finished the season with a 20-5 mark.

Candelaria, who last summer became the first Pirate to ever pitch a no-hit, no-run game in Pittsburgh, struck out seven and walked none while gaining his sixth complete game of the year. The sole run came on a leadoff homer by Steve Swisher in the eighth.

Frank Taveras, Al Oliver and Ken Macha each drove in a run to back Candelaria. Oliver, who went 3 for 4, tripled home Bill Robinson in the fourth for the Pirates' first run, then scored on Macha's single to center. Traveras brought home Omar Moreno, who had tripled, with an infield out in the seventh.

The National League Eastern Division champion Philadelphia Phillies used consecutive second-inning home runs by Greg Luzinski, Richie Hebner and Garry Maddox to take command and coast to a 9-4 decision over the Montreal Expos for their 100th victory of the year.

The three consecutive home runs were accomplished for the first time in the history of the club and came at the expense of loser Stan Bahnsen, 8-9, to key a six-running inning for the Phillies.

Jim Lonborg served up a Montreal run in the first on a Dave Cash double and an Andre Dawson sacrifice fly but took advantage of a nine-hit Philadelphia attack to post his 11th victory against four defeats.

Tom Seaver

Luzinski opened the second inning with 39th home run and Hebner follower with his 18th, Maddox made it a club first when he connected for no. 14. Bob Boone and Davey Johnson flied out but Lonborg and Bake McBride beat out infield hits. Walks to Larry Bowa and Mike Schmidt forced in a run and two more scored when shortstop Stan Papi booted a grounder by Luzinski.

Schmidt singled home two runs in the fourth, giving him 101 for the year, and Boone singled home the final run in the fifth.

Ken Griffey doubled, tripled and Homered to drive in three runs as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-1 to give Tom Seaver his 21st victory against six losses.

Seaver, winning his 14th game against three losses since coming to the Reds June 15, struck out only five batters, falling five short of his 10th straight 200-or-more strikeout season.

A fifth-inning homer by Jerry Royster accounted for the only run off Seaver, who may come back Sunday in the season's final in a relief role, attempting to pick up four more strikeouts.

Griffey's hits were three of 11 for the Reds as they tagged the Braves' Phil Niekro for his 20th loss against 16 victories.

Garry Templeton drove in three runs with three singles, raising his season hit total to 197, and Lou Brock stole two bases, giving him 900 career thefts and 35 for the season as the St. Louis Cardinals downed the New York Mets, 7-2, in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

With one out in the fifth, losing starter Jackson Todd, 3-6, walked Brock, who promptly stole second base. Brock took third on Jerry Humphrey's single and, after Humphrey stole second, both runners scored when Templeton bounced a single over first base.

Rain washes out Sox; Texas ties for second

by BOB GALLAS

The White Sox found that the weatherman wasn't Polish Friday night, then saw their hopes for second place grow dimmer without even playing a game.

The scheduled Sox game against Seattle at Comiskey Park was rained out but the Texas Rangers topped Oakland, 4-1, to clinch at least a tie for second place. The Sox can tie for the runnerup spot only if they win their remaining three games and the Rangers drop their final two to the A's.

Friday was "Polish Night," a promotion that was canceled due to wet grounds two weeks ago, although the game that day was played. Friday, the pregame festivities went on and were over as the rain started to fall shortly before game time. The game was called after a 1½-hour delay.

The rainout will be made up as part of a doubleheader today, starting at 12:30 p.m. Ken Kravec and Francisco Barrios will pitch for the White Sox against Tom House and John Montague for the Mariners.

Richie Zisk was honored by the Polish Community before the game. The Polish Prince thanked Chicago fans for providing what Zisk called "one of the most enjoyable summers I've had in baseball."

SOX SHORTS: Wayne Nordhagen has a 7-game hitting streak, with 10-for-20 for a .500 average . . . Ralph Garr has a five-game string, with 10-for-19 for .526 . . . Chet Lemon has scored one run in each of his last eight games going into Friday's scheduled game and now needs just one to reach 100 . . . The last time a Sox player did that was 1957 when Nellie Fox scored 110 runs . . . Jorge Orta has 84 RBIs, a new career high . . . The Sox went into Friday's action with 89 wins, the most since the 1965 team posted an 95-67 record, but still finished second, seven games out.

The Sox need 14,060 fans to break the team's all-time season attendance record of 1,644,460 . . . The Sox need 44,590 to break the Chicago season record, held by the 1969 Cubs who drew 1,674,993, . . . Sunday is "Fan Appreciation Day" and hundreds of prizes are to be awarded to fans.

Forego to be scratched from Belmont Cup attempt

NEW YORK (UPI) — The announcement that Forego would be scratched from today's $250,000 Cup at Belmont was like announcing Thanksgiving dinner would be celebrated two weeks late.

It still would be good, but it wouldn't be the same.

A victory in the Cup certainly would have given the 7-year-old gelding a shot at his fourth straight Horse of the Year honors as well as vaulting him over the $2 million mark and past Kelso's all-time money-winning record of $1,977,896. Even a second-place finish would have pushed him past Kelso.

Not only that, but racing fans were looking forward to a replay of last year's Cup, in which Forego, under a staggering 137 pounds, came from behind with a gallant, courageous drive for a nose victory over Honest Pleasure.

THE FRANK WHITELY trained horse seemed to be ready for the Cup, having rebounded from three straight losses with a victory in the $150,000 Woodward Sept. 17, but Friday morning he turned in a dismal :39 for a 3-furlong workout and Whiteley decided the race would be too much for Forego.

"We didn't like his work this morning — he didn't show what we wanted. He just didn't bounce back from his last race," said the trainer. "Then, too, all the rain we've been having has cut into his work schedule. We hope he'll come around and we're now looking to the Jockey Club Gold Cup (Oct. 15)."

The field now is reduced to nine, with Jatski the favorite by default. Great Contractor, Crystal Water and Quiet Little Table fight it out for second choice on the overnight line, and the other starters include Prefontaine, Private Thoughts, Sawbones, Proud Birdie and Wise Philip.

Seaver wins No. 21

from Daily Herald Wire Services

John Candelaria went 2 for 2 and scattered seven hits Friday night to become the first player of Puerto Rican descent to win 20 games in one season while leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the Cubs.

The 23-year old left-hander from Brooklyn, N.Y., who pitches in almost constant pain due to a chronic back ailment, became the first Pirate 20 game winner since Vernon Law accomplished that feat in 1960 with a 20-9 record. Candelaria finished the season with a 20-5 mark.

Candelaria, who last summer became the first Pirate to ever pitch a no-hit, no-run game in Pittsburgh, struck out seven and walked none while gaining his sixth complete game of the year. The sole run came on a leadoff homer by Steve Swisher in the eighth.

Frank Taveras, Al Oliver and Ken Macha each drove in a run to back Candelaria. Oliver, who went 3 for 4, tripled home Bill Robinson in the fourth for the Pirates' first run, then scored on Macha's single to center. Traveras brought home Omar Moreno, who had tripled, with an infield out in the seventh.

The National League Eastern Division champion Philadelphia Phillies used consecutive second-inning home runs by Greg Luzinski, Richie Hebner and Garry Maddox to take command and coast to a 9-4 decision over the Montreal Expos for their 100th victory of the year.

The three consecutive home runs were accomplished for the first time in the history of the club and came at the expense of loser Stan Bahnsen, 8-9, to key a six-running inning for the Phillies.

Jim Lonborg served up a Montreal run in the first on a Dave Cash double and an Andre Dawson sacrifice fly but took advantage of a nine-hit Philadelphia attack to post his 11th victory against four defeats.

Tom Seaver

Luzinski opened the second inning with 39th home run and Hebner follower with his 18th, Maddox made it a club first when he connected for no. 14. Bob Boone and Davey Johnson flied out but Lonborg and Bake McBride beat out infield hits. Walks to Larry Bowa and Mike Schmidt forced in a run and two more scored when shortstop Stan Papi booted a grounder by Luzinski.

Schmidt singled home two runs in the fourth, giving him 101 for the year, and Boone singled home the final run in the fifth.

Ken Griffey doubled, tripled and Homered to drive in three runs as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-1 to give Tom Seaver his 21st victory against six losses.

Seaver, winning his 14th game against three losses since coming to the Reds June 15, struck out only five batters, falling five short of his 10th straight 200-or-more strikeout season.

A fifth-inning homer by Jerry Royster accounted for the only run off Seaver, who may come back Sunday in the season's final in a relief role, attempting to pick up four more strikeouts.

Griffey's hits were three of 11 for the Reds as they tagged the Braves' Phil Niekro for his 20th loss against 16 victories.

Garry Templeton drove in three runs with three singles, raising his season hit total to 197, and Lou Brock stole two bases, giving him 900 career thefts and 35 for the season as the St. Louis Cardinals downed the New York Mets, 7-2, in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

With one out in the fifth, losing starter Jackson Todd, 3-6, walked Brock, who promptly stole second base. Brock took third on Jerry Humphrey's single and, after Humphrey stole second, both runners scored when Templeton bounced a single over first base.

Rain washes out Sox; Texas ties for second

by BOB GALLAS

The White Sox found that the weatherman wasn't Polish Friday night, then saw their hopes for second place grow dimmer without even playing a game.

The scheduled Sox game against Seattle at Comiskey Park was rained out but the Texas Rangers topped Oakland, 4-1, to clinch at least a tie for second place. The Sox can tie for the runnerup spot only if they win their remaining three games and the Rangers drop their final two to the A's.

Friday was "Polish Night," a promotion that was canceled due to wet grounds two weeks ago, although the game that day was played. Friday, the pregame festivities went on and were over as the rain started to fall shortly before game time. The game was called after a 1½-hour delay.

The rainout will be made up as part of a doubleheader today, starting at 12:30 p.m. Ken Kravec and Francisco Barrios will pitch for the White Sox against Tom House and John Montague for the Mariners.

Richie Zisk was honored by the Polish Community before the game. The Polish Prince thanked Chicago fans for providing what Zisk called "one of the most enjoyable summers I've had in baseball."

Arlington beats Hersey in steady rain, fumbles

by JEFF NORDLUND

No matter how long the football season, no team would have figured to prepare for a game like the one in which Arlington and Hersey found themselves Friday night.

In a game featuring more fumbles than points, Arlington defeated Hersey 6-0 in the fourth overtime period for the Cardinals' first victory of the season and the Huskies' fougth straight defeat.

A steady rain reduced the footing to zero, and so for four quarters and three overtime possessions for each team no one was able to put together an offensive drive. Finally, quarterback Chuck Klein took matters in hand by racing 10 yards for the touchdown in the fourth overtime.

"THIS ISN'T the kind of game either team would wish for itself," a wet but pleased Arlington coach Chuck Haines said afterward. "We hadn't run the quarterback option all night, but we decided to try it since letting Klein keep the ball required the least amount of handling."

"That cut down on the possibility of mistakes,and besides, nothing else was working well anyway," he said.

Mistakes — mostly fumbles and penalties — robbed both teams of potential scores or scoring threats. Arlington, during the second overtime period, gained 16 yards and still didn't score after starting the series from Hersey's 10. One fumble and 20 yards in penalties saw to that.

In the third quarter Hersey pushed the ball to Arlington's 3 before a motion penalty ruined the drive, eventually ending when one of five Huskies' field goals failed.

ARLINGTON FUMBLED the ball six times and had two passes intercepted, while Hersey dropped the ball five times. The Cardinals came no closer to scoring before the overtime periods than Hersey's 22 — as the result of a key interference penalty on the Huskies.

"There's no way to prepare for a game like this," Haines said. "It was a lot of fun to play, so long as you win.

"It got kind of frustrating when nothing seemed to work, but we just had to keep trying. It was a typical Arlington-Hersey ball game."

Arlington slipped and slid to 97 yards in offense, and Hersey had 93. Klein was 1-for-10 passing for the Cardinals, while Dan Vucovich of Hersey was 2-for-10.

THE RAIN FELL uninterrupted throughout play, and though the officials tried to keep the ball dry it was frequently too wet to handle. When the ball was held, yardage was meager.

Arlington's Greg Sabatello led all Lesniak who had 48 yards in 16 carries His total represented carries in more than half of the Cardinals' plays.

Hersey was led in rushing by John Lesniak who had 48 yards in16 carries before leaving with sore ribs in the third quarter. Teammate Bracy Todd rushed for an additional 36 yards on 21 carries.

Hersey is off to its worst start in the school's history. Winner or co-winner of the last six Mid-Suburban League North Division titles, Hersey is all but eliminated from a chance to make it seven straight.

Hersey is 0-2 in divisional play, while Arlington is 1-1 and 1-3 overall.

Conant soaks Palatine

by ART MUGALIAN

All those folks who left after the first 2½ minutes of Conant's 7-0 rain-soaked victory over visiting Palatine saw something that late arrivers did not see Friday.

They saw 100 per cent of the scoring.

There were not any late arrivers, though, unless you count Palatine's defense, which shut down the Cougars after the 60-yard scoring drive, holding them to just 106 total yards after the initial march. Coincidentally, 106 yards was Palatine's offense for the night, too.

"We've seen Conant play the last two weeks and both times they scored the first time they had the ball," said Pirate coach Arv Herstedt after the game. "I don't know how they did it, but they really blew through us."

CONANT WAS just following head coach John Ayres' explicit directions when Cougar upback Al Barnhill went off-tackle-left for eight yards, then 12, and then 10 more following a Palatine encroachment penalty.

Barnhill went left again for nine yards before trying the right side for 11 more. Quarterback Rocky Pugliese snuck it over from the five with 9:33 showing on the clock. The crowd, already thin, began to get thinner.

"We told our offense they had to score right away," said Ayres, whose team is now 3-1, but 1-1 in the MSL South. "We knew it could be the only score of the night."

Barnhill, who with 95 yards rushing now has 323 total for the year, was running behind Conant linemen Ray Hagen, Jack Kerr, Dave Brumm, Steve Herring and Paul Beckman. The five interior Cougar blockers average 213 pounds.

"They were bigger than we were," said Herstedt, "and we were just having trouble holding our ground. But after that first drive I thought we contained them."

THE RAIN became steadier, the cheerleaders reached their saturation point and eventually quit cheering, and the band went home before halftime. Only the players remained, along with a few hardy fans who probably did not have a ride home anyway.

"You put points on the scoreboard early on a night like this and that's the ball game," said Herstedt, disappointed that his Pirates, now 1-3, could not show more of an offense in the miserable weather.

Palatine wasted a few golden opportunities, including the first time it had the ball when they fumbled on Conant's 31-yard-line. Later in the first half, the Pirates drove to the Cougar 18 on some nifty running by Jim Luzinski and Tom Fioretti. But the march stalled when John Comerford dropped a Craig Long pass and, two plays later, Long slipped on the soggy turf and went down trying to throw.

Palatine's Rich Gonzalez ran back the second-half kickoff 45 yards to the Conant 35, but Pugliese ended that threat with an interception at the 10, returning the ball 35 yards.

AFTER THAT, Palatine's wet offense was marred by three quarterback sacks — two of them by John Fidler — and fumble recoveries by Steve Liewald and Frank Herdzina, the latter coming on the game's final play.

"Palatine has good skill players like Luzinski and Long and speedy receivers like (Dave) Kennedy and Comerford," said Ayres. "Our defense just played super."

Ayres' only regret was that his offense did so little for so few.

Barrington drowns Wheeling 25-0

by KEITH REINHARDT

Somebody asked Wheeling coach Gerry Clinnin on the way to his game Friday night if he wanted it to rain. Maybe they should have called for an ark.

What worked for Noah might have been the best escape for Clinnin and his Wildcats. They played instead and were drowned by visiting Barrington, 25-0.

The Broncos capitalized on a cascade of turnovers to poke over three first-half touchdowns and then coasted, or perhaps more accurately floated, to their fourth straight win of the season and their second in division play.

"WE WERE OUR own worst enemy," shrugged Clinnin afterwards. "Believe me, I don't want to take anything away from Barrington. They have a solid defense and a couple of offensive players who would shine through the Johnstown Flood. But we really made it easy for them tonight."

Despite the constant, heavy downpour, Barrington's quarterback Bruce Henricksen had no misgivings about going to the air. He teamed with web-handed Eric Shellenback a half dozen times to spearhead the Bronco attack. Steve Edward and Mike Hughes did the rest of the damage on the water-logged turf in dealing the Wildcats their second setback in a row.

Following a Wheeling miscue on a punt play late in the first quarter, Barrington moved 29 yards in five plays for their first TD, Shellenback pulling in a two-yard Henricksen pass for the score.

In the second quarter Henricksen was intercepted, but the hosts promptly turned the ball right back over to the enemy and Barrington obliged with another lightning-fast scoring attack. Edwards chopped off 23 yards in one gallop and Shellenback eventually scored again on an 11-yard double-reverse play.

A SHORT TIME later Wheeling's poor punt set the Broncos up again in Wildcat territory. This time it took only one flick of Henricksen's wrist and Kirk Kissner hauled in a 40-yard TD pass.

Barrington's final tally came in the fourth quarter on their only legitimate march from their own territory. Henricksen took this one in himself, on a 28-yard scamper.

"What can I say?" Clinnin asked. "We had eight people on the sidelines in casts or crutches before the game even started and then lost two tailbacks after the game started. First (Bob) Steinberg hurt his wrist and then his replacement (Ed Joas) was taken out with cramps."

"Rain was really the worst thing that could have happened," the Wheeling coach said. "I know it's hard to equate this game with a dry field, but Barrington is obviously a wide open team with a great passer.

"WE FELT that the best way to try to stop him would be to put on a good rush and keep him from getting the ball away. We obviously didn't do the job."

The Wildcats finished with only 78 yards of offense compared to 250 for the Broncos. They also turned the ball over six times.

Yanks still fight for title

the Yankees' ace Ron Guidry to snap a 2-2 tie. A single by Aurelio Rodriguez, a walk to Alan Trammell and a sacrifice bunt by Ron LeFlore set up Staub's game-winning hit. The Tigers added an insurance run in the seventh on singles by Trammell, Tito Fuentes and Steve Kemp.

Baltimore went down fighting as it had all year by scoring three runs in the ninth inning. But it wasn't quite enough.

BOSTON MOVED to within two games of the New York Yankees, who were defeated 5-2 by Detroit. The Red Sox can only tie the Yanks if they win their next two and New York loses its two.

Rice, who drove in four runs in Thursday's 7-3 triumph over Toronto, broke a 7-7 tie by lining a single up the middle off loser Scott McGregor, 3-5, to score rookie Ted Cox, who had tripled.

Rice, who now has 114 RBIs, also hit a pair of two-run doubles, one to trigger a five-run third and the other to give Boston a 7-6 lead in the fourth.

IN OTHER American League action Hal McRae knocked in three runs with a homer and two doubles in Kansas City's 8-5 win over the California Angels, giving the Royals their 101st victory of the season, a record by an expansion team.

Rookie Keith Smith singled in the game-winning run and veteran Bert Campaneris knocked in two more for insurance in a three-run seventh-inning that gave Texas a 4-1 win over the Oakland A's.

Cecil Cooper's two-run homer in the fifth inning tied a Milwaukee record for most hits in a season — 189 — and gave the Brewers a 7-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins in a game shortened by rain to 4½ innings.

Arlington beats Hersey in steady rain, fumbles

by JEFF NORDLUND

No matter how long the football season, no team would have figured to prepare for a game like the one in which Arlington and Hersey found themselves Friday night.

In a game featuring more fumbles than points, Arlington defeated Hersey 6-0 in the fourth overtime period for the Cardinals' first victory of the season and the Huskies' fougth straight defeat.

A steady rain reduced the footing to zero, and so for four quarters and three overtime possessions for each team no one was able to put together an offensive drive. Finally, quarterback Chuck Klein took matters in hand by racing 10 yards for the touchdown in the fourth overtime.

"THIS ISN'T the kind of game either team would wish for itself," a wet but pleased Arlington coach Chuck Haines said afterward. "We hadn't run the quarterback option all night, but we decided to try it since letting Klein keep the ball required the least amount of handling."

"That cut down on the possibility of mistakes,and besides, nothing else was working well anyway," he said.

Mistakes — mostly fumbles and penalties — robbed both teams of potential scores or scoring threats. Arlington, during the second overtime period, gained 16 yards and still didn't score after starting the series from Hersey's 10. One fumble and 20 yards in penalties saw to that.

In the third quarter Hersey pushed the ball to Arlington's 3 before a motion penalty ruined the drive, eventually ending when one of five Huskies' field goals failed.

ARLINGTON FUMBLED the ball six times and had two passes intercepted, while Hersey dropped the ball five times. The Cardinals came no closer to scoring before the overtime periods than Hersey's 22 — as the result of a key interference penalty on the Huskies.

"There's no way to prepare for a game like this," Haines said. "It was a lot of fun to play, so long as you win.

"It got kind of frustrating when nothing seemed to work, but we just had to keep trying. It was a typical Arlington-Hersey ball game."

Arlington slipped and slid to 97 yards in offense, and Hersey had 93. Klein was 1-for-10 passing for the Cardinals, while Dan Vucovich of Hersey was 2-for-10.

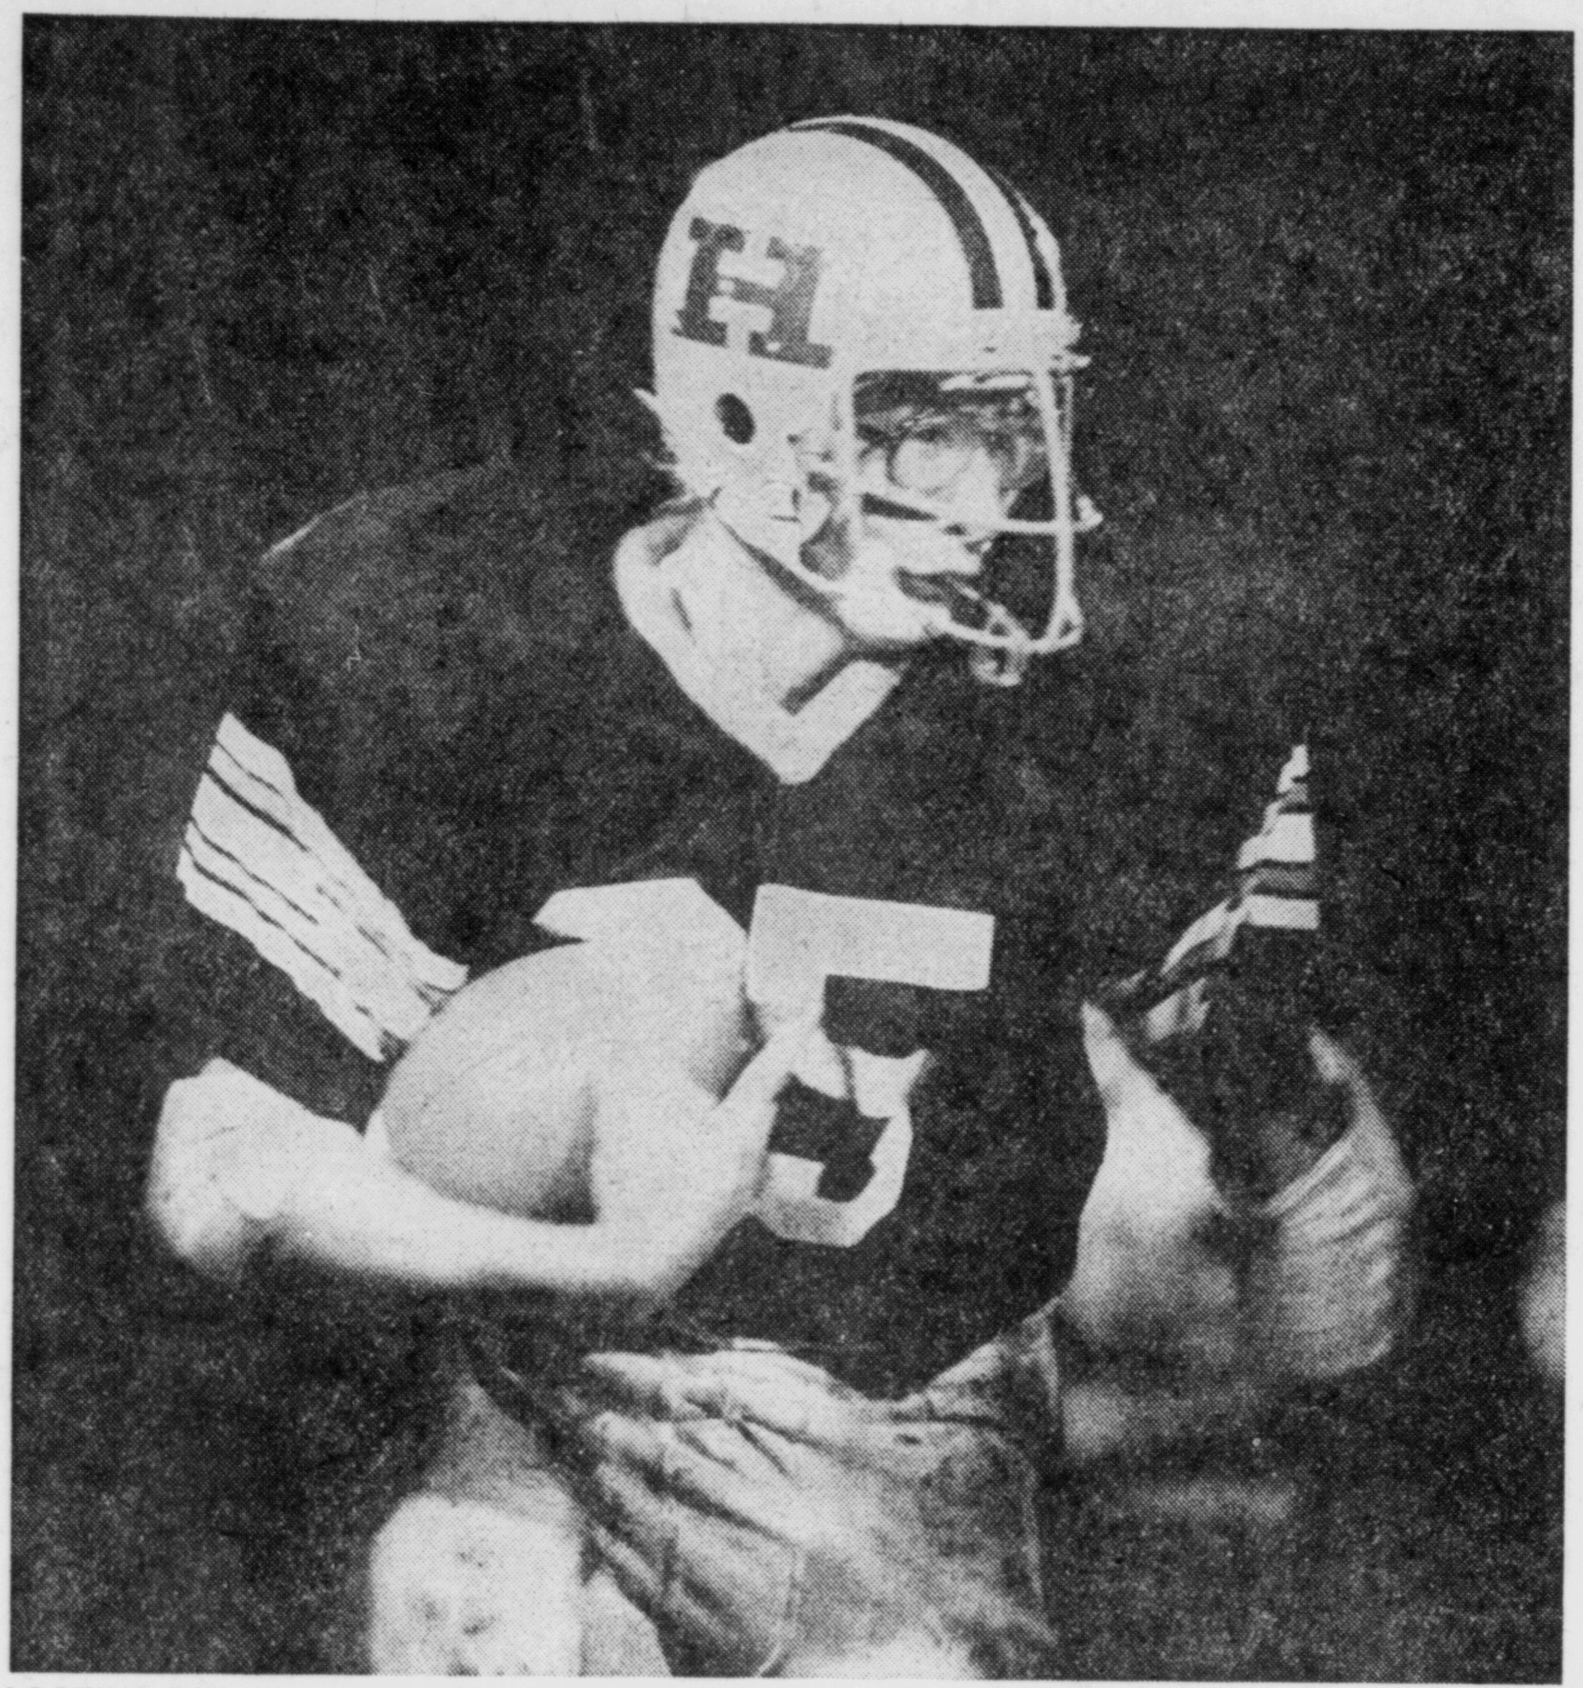
THE RAIN FELL uninterrupted throughout play, and though the officials tried to keep the ball dry it was frequently too wet to handle. When the ball was held, yardage was meager.

Arlington's Greg Sabatello led all Lesniak who had 48 yards in 16 carries His total represented carries in more than half of the Cardinals' plays.

Hersey was led in rushing by John Lesniak who had 48 yards in16 carries before leaving with sore ribs in the third quarter. Teammate Bracy Todd rushed for an additional 36 yards on 21 carries.

Hersey is off to its worst start in the school's history. Winner or co-winner of the last six Mid-Suburban League North Division titles, Hersey is all but eliminated from a chance to make it seven straight.

Hersey is 0-2 in divisional play, while Arlington is 1-1 and 1-3 overall.



LOOKING FOR running room is Hersey's John Lesniak in battle Friday night with Arlington. The visiting Cardinals scored in overtime for a 6-0 victory over the Huskies, handing Hersey its fourth loss of the 1977 campaign.

Conant soaks Palatine

by ART MUGALIAN

All those folks who left after the first 2½ minutes of Conant's 7-0 rain-soaked victory over visiting Palatine saw something that late arrivers did not see Friday.

They saw 100 per cent of the scoring.

There were not any late arrivers, though, unless you count Palatine's defense, which shut down the Cougars after the 60-yard scoring drive, holding them to just 106 total yards after the initial march. Coincidentally, 106 yards was Palatine's offense for the night, too.

"We've seen Conant play the last two weeks and both times they scored the first time they had the ball," said Pirate coach Arv Herstedt after the game. "I don't know how they did it, but they really blew through us."

CONANT WAS just following head coach John Ayres' explicit directions when Cougar upback Al Barnhill went off-tackle-left for eight yards, then 12, and then 10 more following a Palatine encroachment penalty.

Barnhill went left again for nine yards before trying the right side for 11 more. Quarterback Rocky Pugliese snuck it over from the five with 9:33 showing on the clock. The crowd, already thin, began to get thinner.

"We told our offense they had to score right away," said Ayres, whose team is now 3-1, but 1-1 in the MSL South. "We knew it could be the only score of the night."

Barnhill, who with 95 yards rushing now has 323 total for the year, was running behind Conant linemen Ray Hagen, Jack Kerr, Dave Brumm, Steve Herring and Paul Beckman. The five interior Cougar blockers average 213 pounds.

"They were bigger than we were," said Herstedt, "and we were just having trouble holding our ground. But after that first drive I thought we contained them."

THE RAIN became steadier, the cheerleaders reached their saturation point and eventually quit cheering, and the band went home before halftime. Only the players remained, along with a few hardy fans who probably did not have a ride home anyway.

"You put points on the scoreboard early on a night like this and that's the ball game," said Herstedt, disappointed that his Pirates, now 1-3, could not show more of an offense in the miserable weather.

Palatine wasted a few golden opportunities, including the first time it had the ball when they fumbled on Conant's 31-yard-line. Later in the first half, the Pirates drove to the Cougar 18 on some nifty running by Jim Luzinski and Tom Fioretti. But the march stalled when John Comerford dropped a Craig Long pass and, two plays later, Long slipped on the soggy turf and went down trying to throw.

Palatine's Rich Gonzalez ran back the second-half kickoff 45 yards to the Conant 35, but Pugliese ended that threat with an interception at the 10, returning the ball 35 yards.

AFTER THAT, Palatine's wet offense was marred by three quarterback sacks — two of them by John Fidler — and fumble recoveries by Steve Liewald and Frank Herdzina, the latter coming on the game's final play.

"Palatine has good skill players like Luzinski and Long and speedy receivers like (Dave) Kennedy and Comerford," said Ayres. "Our defense just played super."

Ayres' only regret was that his offense did so little for so few.

Barrington drowns Wheeling 25-0

by KEITH REINHARDT

Somebody asked Wheeling coach Gerry Clinnin on the way to his game Friday night if he wanted it to rain. Maybe they should have called for an ark.

What worked for Noah might have been the best escape for Clinnin and his Wildcats. They played instead and were drowned by visiting Barrington, 25-0.

The Broncos capitalized on a cascade of turnovers to poke over three first-half touchdowns and then coasted, or perhaps more accurately floated, to their fourth straight win of the season and their second in division play.

"WE WERE OUR own worst enemy," shrugged Clinnin afterwards. "Believe me, I don't want to take anything away from Barrington. They have a solid defense and a couple of offensive players who would shine through the Johnstown Flood. But we really made it easy for them tonight."

Despite the constant, heavy downpour, Barrington's quarterback Bruce Henricksen had no misgivings about going to the air. He teamed with web-handed Eric Shellenback a half dozen times to spearhead the Bronco attack. Steve Edward and Mike Hughes did the rest of the damage on the water-logged turf in dealing the Wildcats their second setback in a row.

Following a Wheeling miscue on a punt play late in the first quarter, Barrington moved 29 yards in five plays for their first TD, Shellenback pulling in a two-yard Henricksen pass for the score.

In the second quarter Henricksen was intercepted, but the hosts promptly turned the ball right back over to the enemy and Barrington obliged with another lightning-fast scoring attack. Edwards chopped off 23 yards in one gallop and Shellenback eventually scored again on an 11-yard double-reverse play.

A SHORT TIME later Wheeling's poor punt set the Broncos up again in Wildcat territory. This time it took only one flick of Henricksen's wrist and Kirk Kissner hauled in a 40-yard TD pass.

Barrington's final tally came in the fourth quarter on their only legitimate march from their own territory. Henricksen took this one in himself, on a 28-yard scamper.

"What can I say?" Clinnin asked. "We had eight people on the sidelines in casts or crutches before the game even started and then lost two tailbacks after the game started. First (Bob) Steinberg hurt his wrist and then his replacement (Ed Joas) was taken out with cramps."

"Rain was really the worst thing that could have happened," the Wheeling coach said. "I know it's hard to equate this game with a dry field, but Barrington is obviously a wide open team with a great passer.

"WE FELT that the best way to try to stop him would be to put on a good rush and keep him from getting the ball away. We obviously didn't do the job."

The Wildcats finished with only 78 yards of offense compared to 250 for the Broncos. They also turned the ball over six times.

Yanks still fight for title

the Yankees' ace Ron Guidry to snap a 2-2 tie. A single by Aurelio Rodriguez, a walk to Alan Trammell and a sacrifice bunt by Ron LeFlore set up Staub's game-winning hit. The Tigers added an insurance run in the seventh on singles by Trammell, Tito Fuentes and Steve Kemp.

Baltimore went down fighting as it had all year by scoring three runs in the ninth inning. But it wasn't quite enough.

BOSTON MOVED to within two games of the New York Yankees, who were defeated 5-2 by Detroit. The Red Sox can only tie the Yanks if they win their next two and New York loses its two.

Rice, who drove in four runs in Thursday's 7-3 triumph over Toronto, broke a 7-7 tie by lining a single up the middle off loser Scott McGregor, 3-5, to score rookie Ted Cox, who had tripled.

Rice, who now has 114 RBIs, also hit a pair of two-run doubles, one to trigger a five-run third and the other to give Boston a 7-6 lead in the fourth.

IN OTHER American League action Hal McRae knocked in three runs with a homer and two doubles in Kansas City's 8-5 win over the California Angels, giving the Royals their 101st victory of the season, a record by an expansion team.

Rookie Keith Smith singled in the game-winning run and veteran Bert Campaneris knocked in two more for insurance in a three-run seventh-inning that gave Texas a 4-1 win over the Oakland A's.

Cecil Cooper's two-run homer in the fifth inning tied a Milwaukee record for most hits in a season — 189 — and gave the Brewers a 7-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins in a game shortened by rain to 4½ innings.

Tarkanian to remain coach of Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Jerry Tarkanian won a court order Friday to remain head basketball coach at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, in a legal decision that may shake the foundations of the NCAA investigatory procedures.

District Judge James Brennan said Tarkanian had been the victim of star chamber proceedings by the NCAA and trial by ambush.

The court said that at least one NCAA investigator who had sworn to get Tarkanian had an obsession which verged on paranoia.

Tarkanian, who was notified by UNLV he would be severed from the athletic program Sept. 9, filed a complaint seeking a declaratory judgment and permanent injunction against the university to prevent the action.

Brennan, in granting the permanent injunction, in effect prohibited UNLV from carrying out the NCAA demand that Tarkanian be sanctioned. The NCAA placed the basketball team on probation for two years and asked disciplinary action against Tarkanian for allegedly illegal recruiting procedures and preferred treatment of athletes.

Borg whips Tanner for World title

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Sweden's Bjorn Borg fought off a stubborn Roscoe Tanner, 6-4, 7-5, Friday to capture the men's singles final and move into a tie for the point lead in the $220,000 World Invitation Tennis Classic.

Borg, the 1977 Wimbledon champion, had no chance of winning the $50,000 first prize, even though his three victory points tied him with Tanner and Virginia Wade going into the final match of the tournament.

Britian's Virginia Wade won the World Invitational Tennis Classic Friday when she and New Yorker Vitas Gerulaitis rebounded from a mixed doubles deficit of three match points to defeat Roscoe Tanner and Kerry Reid, 6-7, 6-3, 7-6.

Cornelius shoots 72 in Dallas Open

DALLAS — Veteran Kathy Cornelius matched her three bogies with three birdies Friday to finish with a par-72 and take the first round lead in the $50,000 Dallas Civitan LPGA Open golf tournament.

Cornelius, of Phoenix, Ariz., shot 36-36 despite winds gusting up to 35 miles per hour. She held a one stroke lead over 10 others at the Brookhaven Country Club Course.

Kathy Whitworth, who lives only a few miles from the Brookhaven course, missed an 18-inch putt on the 18th hole to miss sharing the lead.

Jones, McLendon share Busch lead

NAPA, Calif. — Grier Jones, who missed winning his first title in five years a month ago at the Hartford Open, shot a four-under-par 68 Friday to tie Mac McLendon for the second-round lead in the $200,000 Anheuser Busch Classic at Silverado.

McLendon, looking for his first victory since winning the Southern Open at the end of the $976 season, had a second-round 69. It left him and Jones with 36-hole scores of eight-under-par 136 and a one-stroke lead over four players.

Miller Barber, who never fails to win a sizable check in this tournament going back to the years it was known as the Kaiser International, shot a six-under-par 66 on the tougher North Course to tie with first-round leader Dale Douglass, Pat Fitzsimons and Jerry Heard with seven-under scores of 137.

NEW YORK — The America nLeague Friday denied the request by the New York Yankees to add Dave Kingman or Dell Alsoton to their eligibility list for the American League championship series.

The Yankees made the request Thursday, hoping to replace Carlos May, the Yankee outfielder who was assigned to the California Angels on a waiver claim Sept. 16.

There are no provisions in the AL regulations for substitution for an eligible player whose contract is assigned from the club between August 31st and commncement of the championship series.

Kings crown Bulls, 102-86

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Guard Ron Boone scored 17 points and center Tom Burleson added 12 to lead the Kansas City Kings to a 102-86 win over the Bulls in a National Basketball Association exhibition game Friday night.

Kansas City took control of the game from the opening tip-off as the Kings defense forced numerous turnovers and poor shooting by the Bulls. The Kings grabbed a 55-32 halftime lead.

A brief flurry brought the Bulls to within 11 points, 49-60, at 7:50 in the third quarter but the Kings defense stiffened again. Leading scorers for Chicago were Wilbur Holland with 17 points and Artis Gilmore with 10 points.

The game was temporarily delayed with 4:11 to go when Kings guard Lucius Allen decked Chicago guard Tate Armstrong. Bulls captain Norm Van Lier then got into an argument with the referees and had to be restrained. Allen was ejected from the game.

Tarkanian to remain coach of Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Jerry Tarkanian won a court order Friday to remain head basketball coach at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, in a legal decision that may shake the foundations of the NCAA investigatory procedures.

District Judge James Brennan said Tarkanian had been the victim of star chamber proceedings by the NCAA and trial by ambush.

The court said that at least one NCAA investigator who had sworn to get Tarkanian had an obsession which verged on paranoia.

Tarkanian, who was notified by UNLV he would be severed from the athletic program Sept. 9, filed a complaint seeking a declaratory judgment and permanent injunction against the university to prevent the action.

Brennan, in granting the permanent injunction, in effect prohibited UNLV from carrying out the NCAA demand that Tarkanian be sanctioned. The NCAA placed the basketball team on probation for two years and asked disciplinary action against Tarkanian for allegedly illegal recruiting procedures and preferred treatment of athletes.

Borg whips Tanner for World title

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Sweden's Bjorn Borg fought off a stubborn Roscoe Tanner, 6-4, 7-5, Friday to capture the men's singles final and move into a tie for the point lead in the $220,000 World Invitation Tennis Classic.

Borg, the 1977 Wimbledon champion, had no chance of winning the $50,000 first prize, even though his three victory points tied him with Tanner and Virginia Wade going into the final match of the tournament.

Britian's Virginia Wade won the World Invitational Tennis Classic Friday when she and New Yorker Vitas Gerulaitis rebounded from a mixed doubles deficit of three match points to defeat Roscoe Tanner and Kerry Reid, 6-7, 6-3, 7-6.

Cornelius shoots 72 in Dallas Open

DALLAS — Veteran Kathy Cornelius matched her three bogies with three birdies Friday to finish with a par-72 and take the first round lead in the $50,000 Dallas Civitan LPGA Open golf tournament.

Cornelius, of Phoenix, Ariz., shot 36-36 despite winds gusting up to 35 miles per hour. She held a one stroke lead over 10 others at the Brookhaven Country Club Course.

Kathy Whitworth, who lives only a few miles from the Brookhaven course, missed an 18-inch putt on the 18th hole to miss sharing the lead.

Jones, McLendon share Busch lead

NAPA, Calif. — Grier Jones, who missed winning his first title in five years a month ago at the Hartford Open, shot a four-under-par 68 Friday to tie Mac McLendon for the second-round lead in the $200,000 Anheuser Busch Classic at Silverado.

McLendon, looking for his first victory since winning the Southern Open at the end of the $976 season, had a second-round 69. It left him and Jones with 36-hole scores of eight-under-par 136 and a one-stroke lead over four players.

Miller Barber, who never fails to win a sizable check in this tournament going back to the years it was known as the Kaiser International, shot a six-under-par 66 on the tougher North Course to tie with first-round leader Dale Douglass, Pat Fitzsimons and Jerry Heard with seven-under scores of 137.

NEW YORK — The America nLeague Friday denied the request by the New York Yankees to add Dave Kingman or Dell Alsoton to their eligibility list for the American League championship series.

The Yankees made the request Thursday, hoping to replace Carlos May, the Yankee outfielder who was assigned to the California Angels on a waiver claim Sept. 16.

There are no provisions in the AL regulations for substitution for an eligible player whose contract is assigned from the club between August 31st and commncement of the championship series.

Kings crown Bulls, 102-86

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Guard Ron Boone scored 17 points and center Tom Burleson added 12 to lead the Kansas City Kings to a 102-86 win over the Bulls in a National Basketball Association exhibition game Friday night.

Kansas City took control of the game from the opening tip-off as the Kings defense forced numerous turnovers and poor shooting by the Bulls. The Kings grabbed a 55-32 halftime lead.

A brief flurry brought the Bulls to within 11 points, 49-60, at 7:50 in the third quarter but the Kings defense stiffened again. Leading scorers for Chicago were Wilbur Holland with 17 points and Artis Gilmore with 10 points.

The game was temporarily delayed with 4:11 to go when Kings guard Lucius Allen decked Chicago guard Tate Armstrong. Bulls captain Norm Van Lier then got into an argument with the referees and had to be restrained. Allen was ejected from the game.

Bears to weather Saints' running game

by BOB GALLAS

The New Orleans Saints come hobbling into Soldier Field Sunday with three key starters, including two wide receivers, scratched from the lineup but the Bears can still expect to cope with Thunder and Lightning in the Saints' backfield.

Thunder and Lightning are the nicknames given to running backs Chuck Muncie and Tony Galbreath, both second-year running backs who are the heart of Coach Hank Stram's attack. They are even more vital in light of injuries that have shelved wide receivers Larry Burton and Tinker Owens for the year. Muncie and Galbreath are expected to give the Bears even more problems than Terry Metcalf and Jim Otis gave them last week when St. Louis whipped the Bears, 16-13.

"They're stronger," said Pardee of the Saints' duo. "Neither is as fancy a runner as Metcalf but they can run right at you and get through. We're playing pretty much the same type team we played last week."

LIKE THE CARDS, New Orleans likes to send their backs out to catch passes and their favorite target so far has been Galbreath, who has snagged eight passes for 68 yards. Muncie has caught only two passes but has gained 138 yards rushing in 31 carries, a 4.4 yard-per-carry average. He's scored all three Saints' touchdowns this season.

New Orleans has been forced to rely more on passing in its first two outings. But Pardee still expects the run, a hallmark of Stram-coached teams.

"They've been sending their backs out and throwing more because they've fallen behind early in the game,' Pardee said. "They have a fine running team."

Last week, in a 23-19 loss to the Lions in Detroit, the Saints got their hands on the ball for only 45 offensive plays, compared to 86 by the hosts. And of those 45, 22 were passes.

NEW ORLEANS quarterback Archie Manning, fully recovered from an arm injury that sidelined him last year, also likes to throw to James Thaxton, a converted tight end. Thaxton has caught six balls for 62 yards, a 10.5 yard average.

Joel Parker and Don Herrman are the starting wide receivers. After that, there's little else besides rookie Rich Mauti, who runs back kicks and hasn't caught a pass all year, and Len Willis, a rookie out of Ohio state just picked up by the Saints this week.

Muncie and Galbreath will have to help pick up the slack left by the absence of Owens and Burton, though Owens hasn't played in the first two regular season games due to his knee injury and Burton had caught only one pass. Muncie and Galbreath will be unknown quantities to the Bears, who fell to the Saints, 20-14 in a preseason meeting in Chicago. Muncie did not play in that game and Galbreath played only sparingly.

New Orleans also has a problem at cornerback, where both starters have been felled since the regular season began. Maurice Spencer, who patrolled the right side, has not played yet because of an injury and Ernie Jackson is out two to three weeks with a dislocated elbow suffered last week.

THAT LEAVES second-year man Clarence Chapman and rookie Craig Cassady at the cornerback spots for a team that has given up 47 points in its first two games.

The Saints did sign veteran cornerback Jim Marsalis this week. Marsalis, a nine-year veteran, was with the team in training camp before being cut. He was attempting a comeback after eight seasons with the Chiefs. He missed all of last season with a knee injury. How much Marsalis can play Sunday is anybody's guess.

But the Bears have been having problems of their own as Pardee has shaken up the team after last week's loss. Wide receiver John Gilliam was cut, rookie Ted Albrecht has switched from backup guard to starting tackle, his college position, ahead of Jeff Sevy. Veteran safety Craig Clemons, a starter for the past five years, has been benched in favor of Terry Schmidt as the Bears seek to beef up their pass defense, rated last in the league.

It is a turning point for both teams. The saints hope to avoid an 0-3 record and the Bears, 1-1, after two games, face two tough teams, Los Angeles and Minnesota, after this weekend. Bears' quarterback Bob Avellini has struggled through two games and could get a mental lift by having a big day against the New Orleans defense.

The Saints have beaten the Bears only once in six regular season games and Avellini remembers their last meeting well. Two years ago as a rookie Avellini completed 15 of 23 passes as the Bears won 42-7. But the Saints are a much improved team under Stram since that time.

BEAR FACTS: A number of Bears cut in the preseason have gone north to Canada . . . Running back Tommy Reamon has looked good in two games for Saskatchewan . . . defensive back Terry Irvin is playing with Calgary . . . Tight end Bob Bruer is negotiating with Saskatchewan and wide received Randall Burks is talking with Winnepeg . . . Rookie wide receiver Gerald Butler has caught on with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Luck o' the Irish spoils St. Viator record, 28-6

by LARRY WATTS

Relying on the big play and continuously giving St. Viator poor field position, St. Patrick surprisingly may have pulled the plug on the Lions' championship dreams.

The Shamrocks splashed past St. Viator 28-6 on the rain-soaked artificial surface at Hanson Stadium. The loss was only the second in four years in the East Suburban Catholic Conference for the Lions.

Not only did the Shamrocks deal the Lions their first defeat in four outings, but the loss also put a cloud over St. Viator's hopes for a playoff bid. St. Viator is one of only three teams to advance to all three state 5A playoffs and no team can be selected if it has two losses.

To accomplish the feat, St. Patrick's defense first had to shut down the potent Lion offense, headed by versatile quarterback John Josten.

PROTECTING A slim 10-7 halftime lead, the Shamrocks never allowed the Lions past the 50-yard line in the second half. After picking up 120 yards total offense in the first half, St. Viator was held to 28 yards and one first down in the final two periods.

Josten, the main cog in the Lion attack, drowned under the sea of Shamrock defenders. He was held to 14 yards in five carries and completed 4 of 12 passes for 51 yards and a touchdown. Josten was intercepted once and lost one of four Lion fumbles.

On the other hand, St. Patrick seemed to have few problems sloshing through the water. The Shamrocks rolled up 78 yards total offense.

Phil Baumgart's 27-yard field goal in the opening period gave St. Patrick its first score. And the lead increased to 10-0 as quarterback Jim Wise ran 48 yards on the last play of the period.

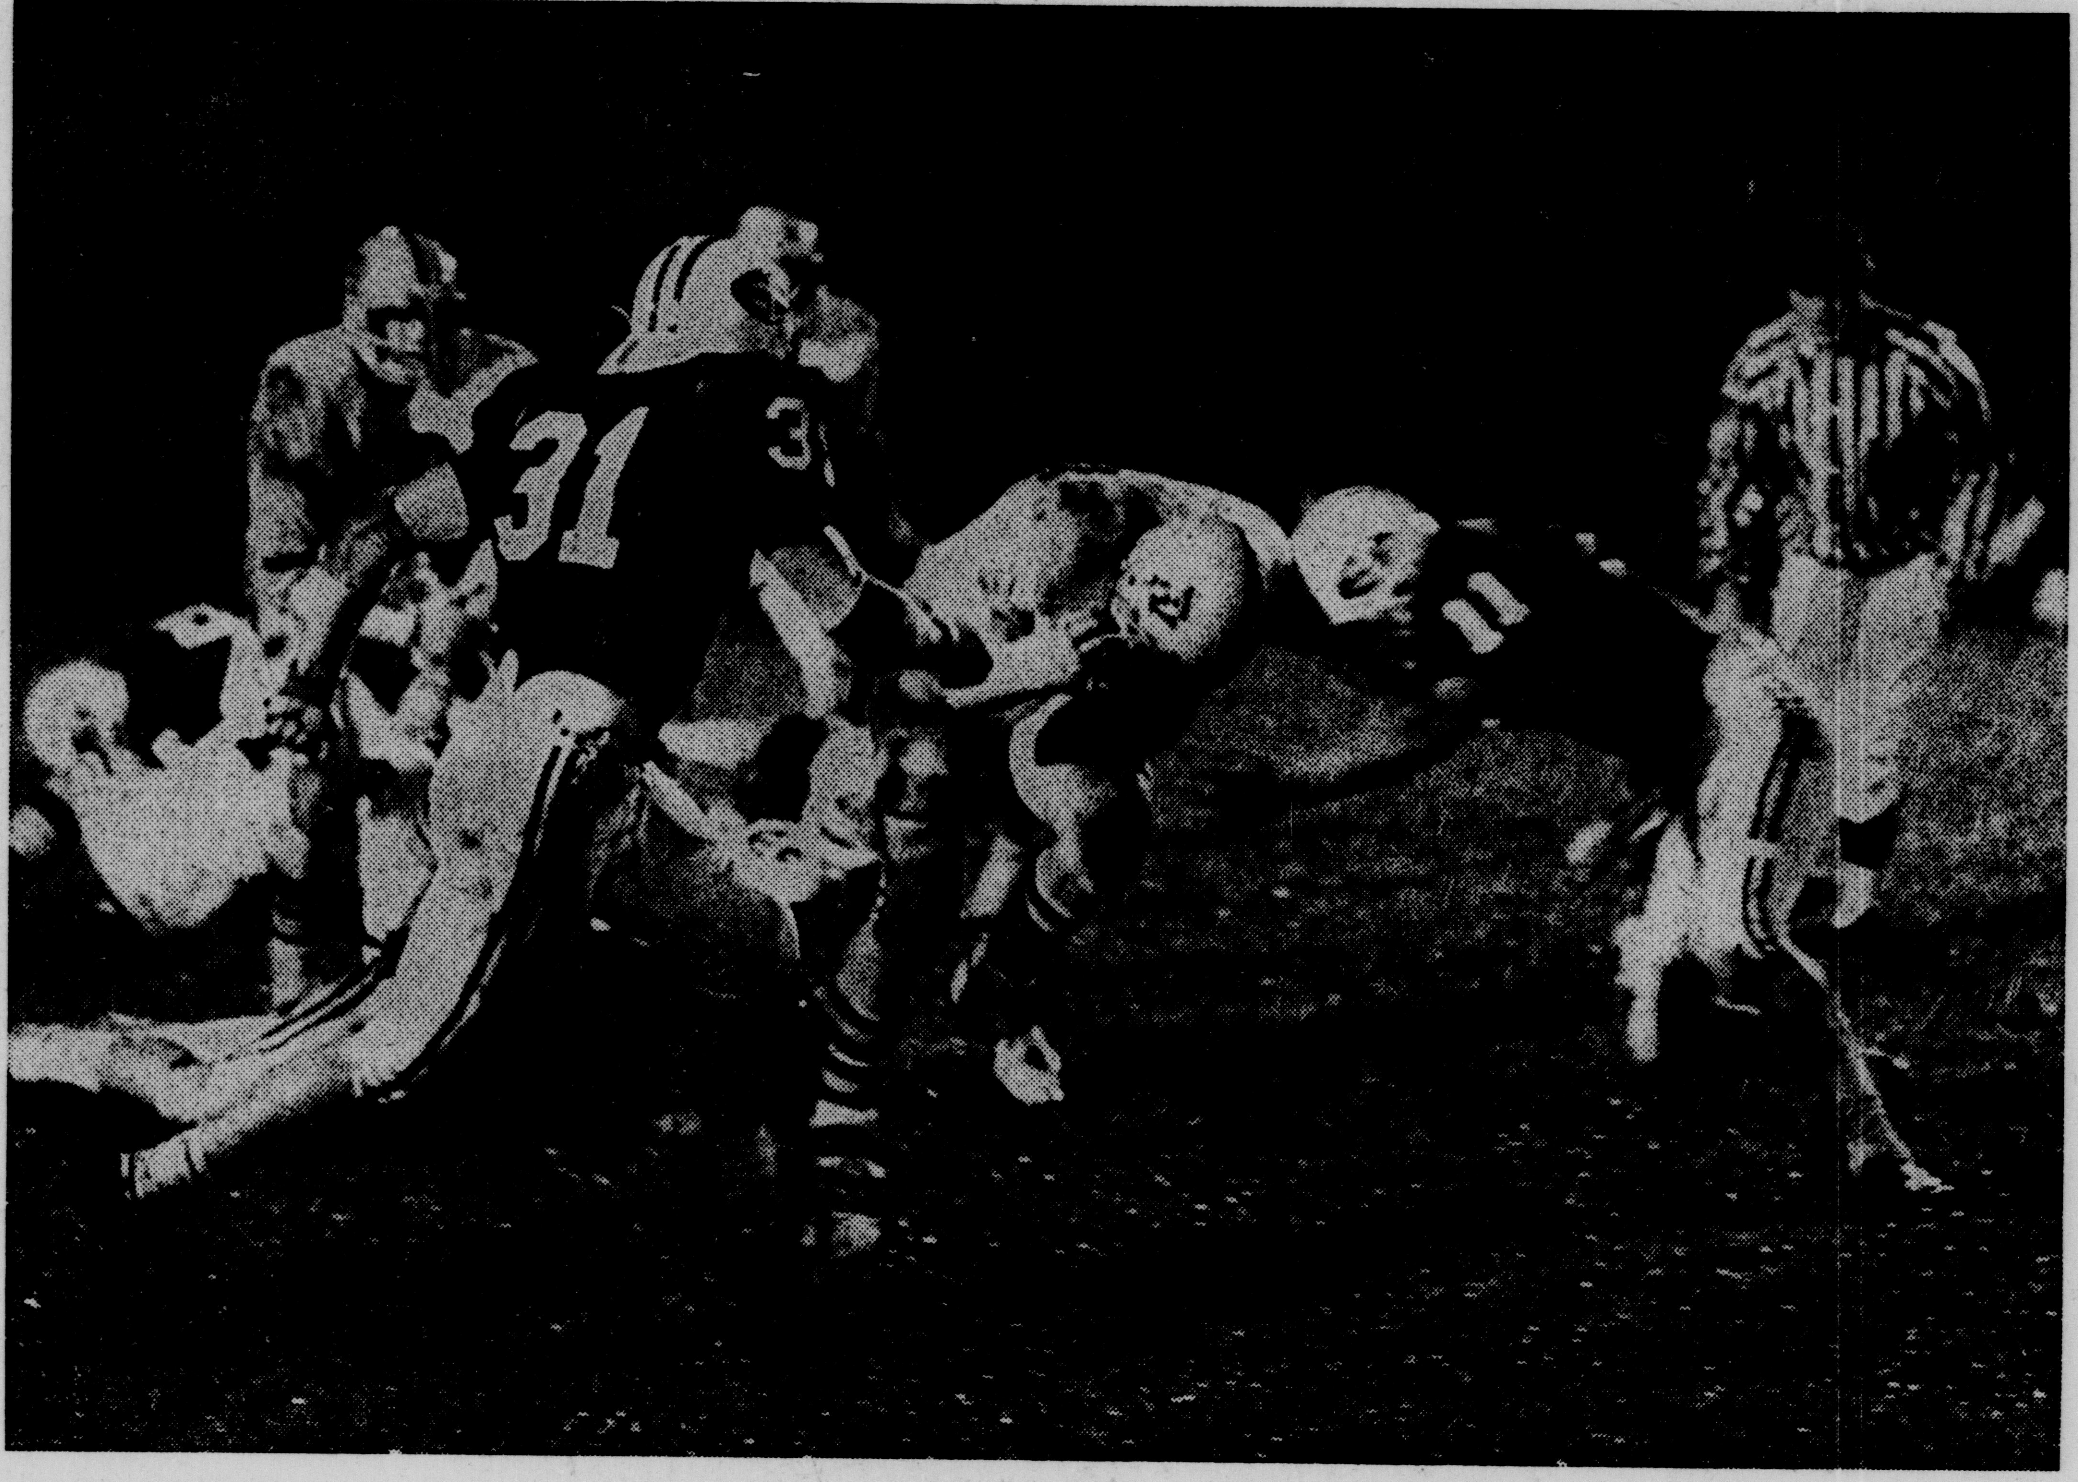
JOSTEN'S ONLY bright moment of the game came as the Lions took their first possession in the second quarter. On a critical fourth-down play, Josten surprised the Shamrocks with a 38-yard touchdown pass to Dan Bucaro.

But the second half belonged entirely to St. Patrick. With halfback Ed Diaz leading the way, the Shamrocks put three more touchdowns on the board. Diaz collected 105 yards rushing in 18 carries.

In just two plays, Diaz provided the Shamrocks with a 16-7 cushion. He went down the right sidelines for 52 yards on his first run and went off left tackle for the final four yards to paydirt.

Wise, who picked up 95 yards rushing, gave St. Patrick its third touchdown of the game. At 10:19 in the fourth period, Wise went around right end for three yards to close a 55-yard drive.

BUT THE PLAY that finally broke the Lions' backs was yet to come. With St. Viator forced to punt, Shamrock John Harty fielded the ball and cut down the right sidelines for a 51-yard touchdown return. Harty also returned a punt 55 yards for a touchdown last week.



PLOWING THROUGH the Elk Grove defense is Forest View's Rick Gardner while closing the hole for the Grenadiers are Jim Meyer (31) and Ralph Souder. Elk Grove performed the big play — a 71-yard pass — to trim the Falcons, 6-0 Friday night.

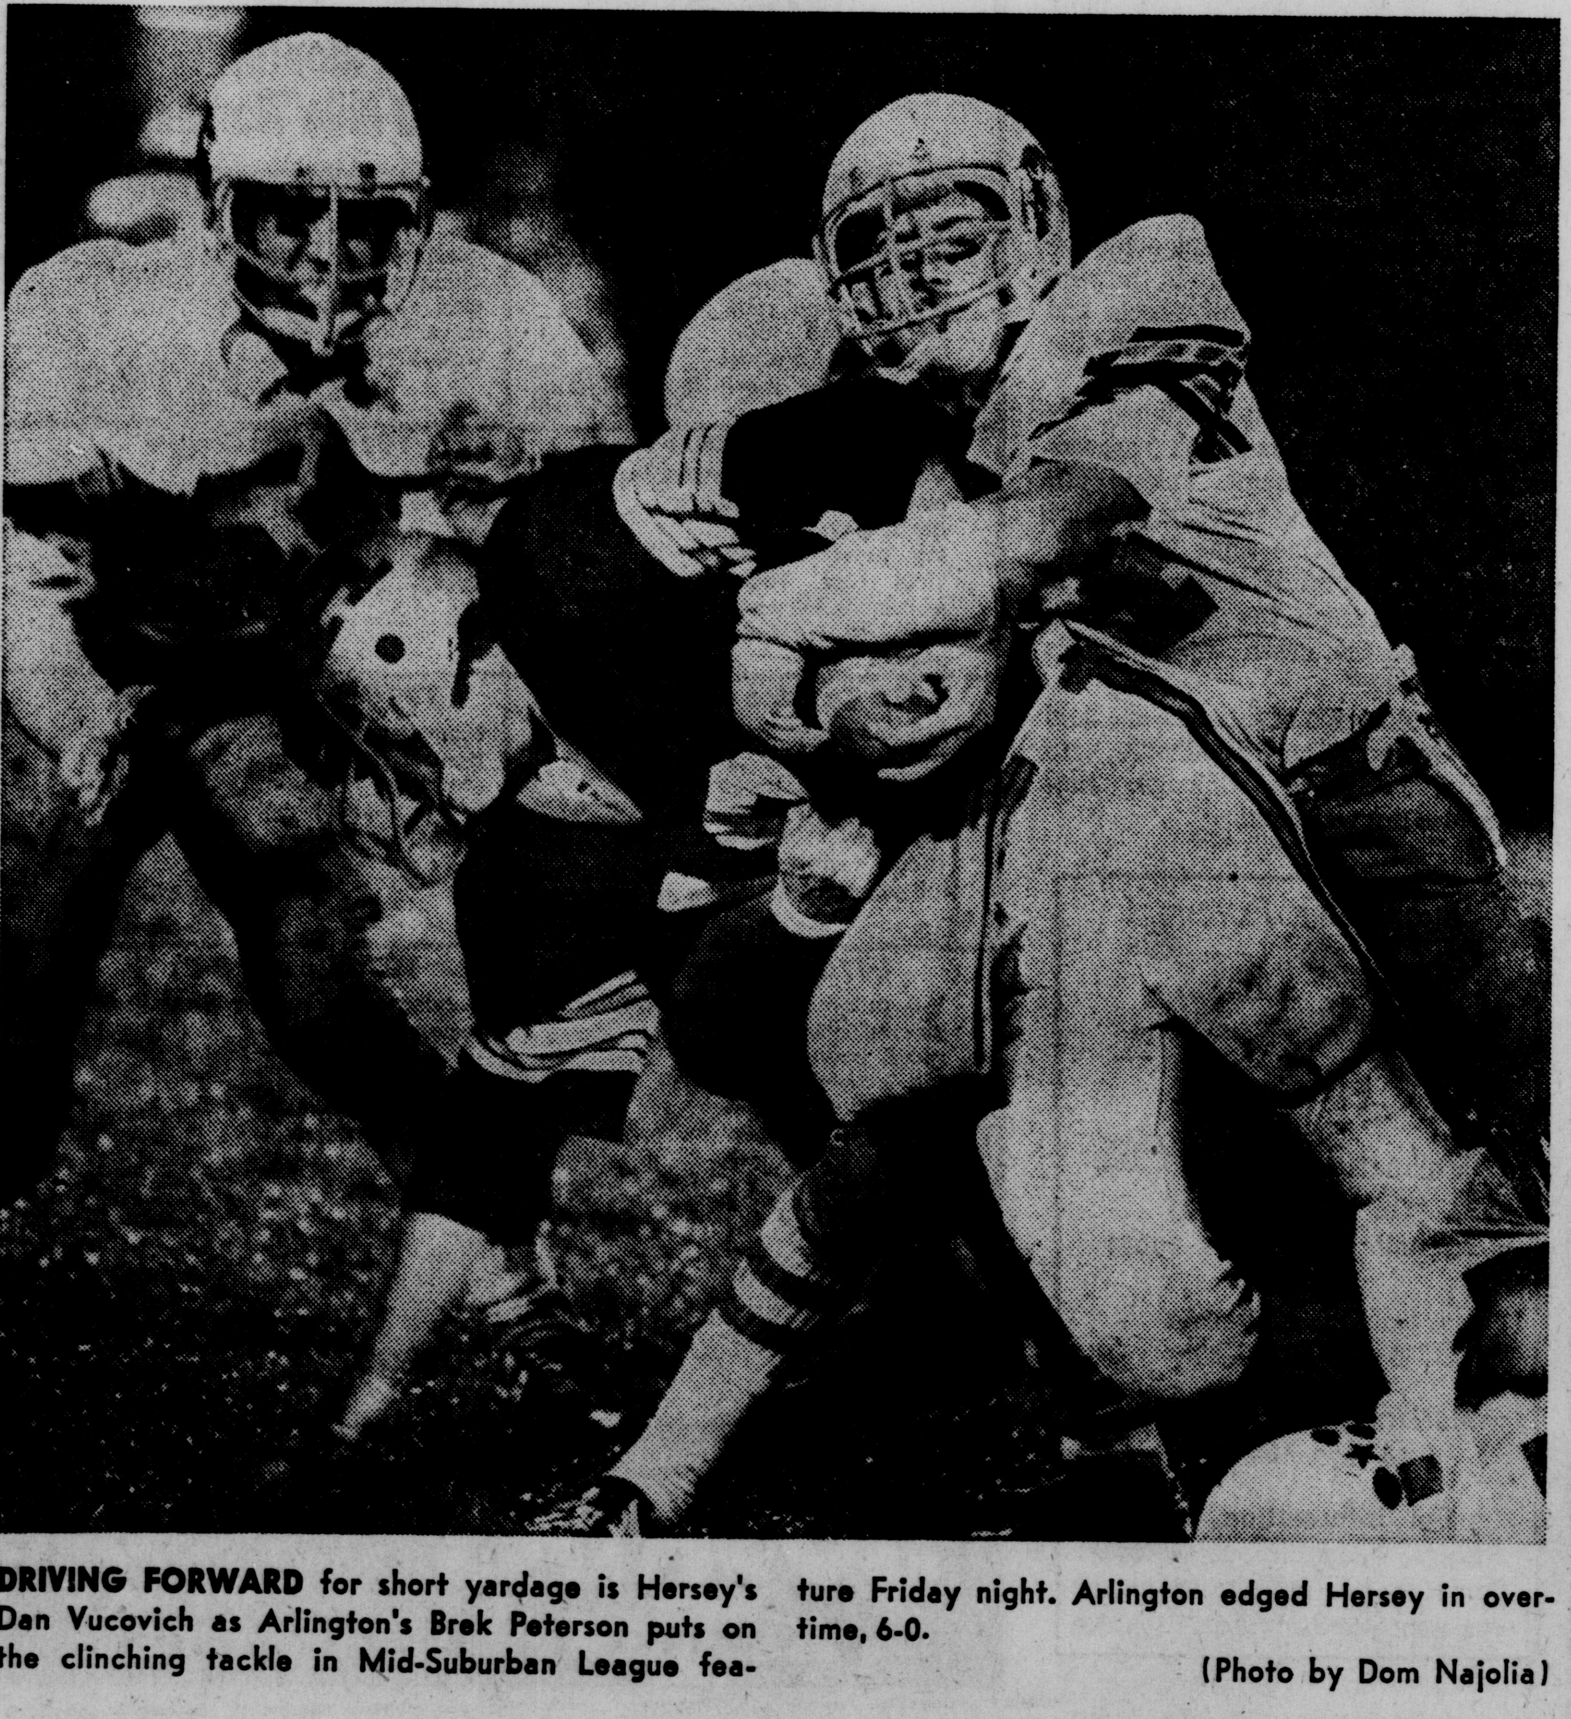
It's hard to win decision: Shavers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Earnie Shavers, who left his job on an automobile assembly for a career in boxing, fought the fight of his career Thursday night in extending Muhammad Ali 15 rounds before losing a unanimous decision.

"It's hard to win a decision against Ali, especially in New York," said Shavers, who said he believed he won the fight. "I knew I had to knock him out. Looking back at it, if I had to change anything I would have put more pressure on him sooner."

Criticized as a plodding fighter with no stamina and a fragile jaw, the 33-year-old Shavers possessed enough endurance to rally late in the fight and almost pull it out. His knockout punch never was questioned. He knocked out 52 opponents in 54 victories entering the fight. But he had never gone more than 10 rounds and had been kayoed by Ron Stander, Jerry Quarry and Ron Lyle.

BUT SHAVERS had enough left to hurt Ali in winning the 13th and 14th rounds and staggered him again in the 15th before the champion hurt Shavers for the first time.



DRIVING FORWARD for short yardage is Hersey's Dan Vucovich as Arlington's Brek Peterson puts on the clinching tackle in Mid-Suburban League feature Friday night. Arlington edged Hersey in overtime, 6-0.

Muncie and Galbreath will be unknown quantities to the Bears, who fell to the Saints, 20-14 in a preseason meeting in Chicago. Muncie did not play in that game and Galbreath played only sparingly.

New Orleans also has a problem at cornerback, where both starters have been felled since the regular season began. Maurice Spencer, who patrolled the right side, has not played yet because of an injury and Ernie Jackson is out two to three weeks with a dislocated elbow suffered last week.

THAT LEAVES second-year man Clarence Chapman and rookie Craig Cassady at the cornerback spots for a team that has given up 47 points in its first two games.

The Saints did sign veteran cornerback Jim Marsalis this week. Marsalis, a nine-year veteran, was with the team in training camp before being cut. He was attempting a comeback after eight seasons with the Chiefs. He missed all of last season with a knee injury. How much Marsalis can play Sunday is anybody's guess.

But the Bears have been having problems of their own as Pardee has shaken up the team after last week's loss. Wide receiver John Gilliam was cut, rookie Ted Albrecht has switched from backup guard to starting tackle, his college position, ahead of Jeff Sevy. Veteran safety Craig Clemons, a starter for the past five years, has been benched in favor of Terry Schmidt as the Bears seek to beef up their pass defense, rated last in the league.

It is a turning point for both teams. The saints hope to avoid an 0-3 record and the Bears, 1-1, after two games, face two tough teams, Los Angeles and Minnesota, after this weekend. Bears' quarterback Bob Avellini has struggled through two games and could get a mental lift by having a big day against the New Orleans defense.

The Saints have beaten the Bears only once in six regular season games and Avellini remembers their last meeting well. Two years ago as a rookie Avellini completed 15 of 23 passes as the Bears won 42-7. But the Saints are a much improved team under Stram since that time.

BEAR FACTS: A number of Bears cut in the preseason have gone north to Canada . . . Running back Tommy Reamon has looked good in two games for Saskatchewan . . . defensive back Terry Irvin is playing with Calgary . . . Tight end Bob Bruer is negotiating with Saskatchewan and wide received Randall Burks is talking with Winnepeg . . . Rookie wide receiver Gerald Butler has caught on with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Luck o' the Irish spoils St. Viator record, 28-6

by LARRY WATTS

Relying on the big play and continuously giving St. Viator poor field position, St. Patrick surprisingly may have pulled the plug on the Lions' championship dreams.

The Shamrocks splashed past St. Viator 28-6 on the rain-soaked artificial surface at Hanson Stadium. The loss was only the second in four years in the East Suburban Catholic Conference for the Lions.

Not only did the Shamrocks deal the Lions their first defeat in four outings, but the loss also put a cloud over St. Viator's hopes for a playoff bid. St. Viator is one of only three teams to advance to all three state 5A playoffs and no team can be selected if it has two losses.

To accomplish the feat, St. Patrick's defense first had to shut down the potent Lion offense, headed by versatile quarterback John Josten.

PROTECTING A slim 10-7 halftime lead, the Shamrocks never allowed the Lions past the 50-yard line in the second half. After picking up 120 yards total offense in the first half, St. Viator was held to 28 yards and one first down in the final two periods.

Josten, the main cog in the Lion attack, drowned under the sea of Shamrock defenders. He was held to 14 yards in five carries and completed 4 of 12 passes for 51 yards and a touchdown. Josten was intercepted once and lost one of four Lion fumbles.

On the other hand, St. Patrick seemed to have few problems sloshing through the water. The Shamrocks rolled up 78 yards total offense.

Phil Baumgart's 27-yard field goal in the opening period gave St. Patrick its first score. And the lead increased to 10-0 as quarterback Jim Wise ran 48 yards on the last play of the period.

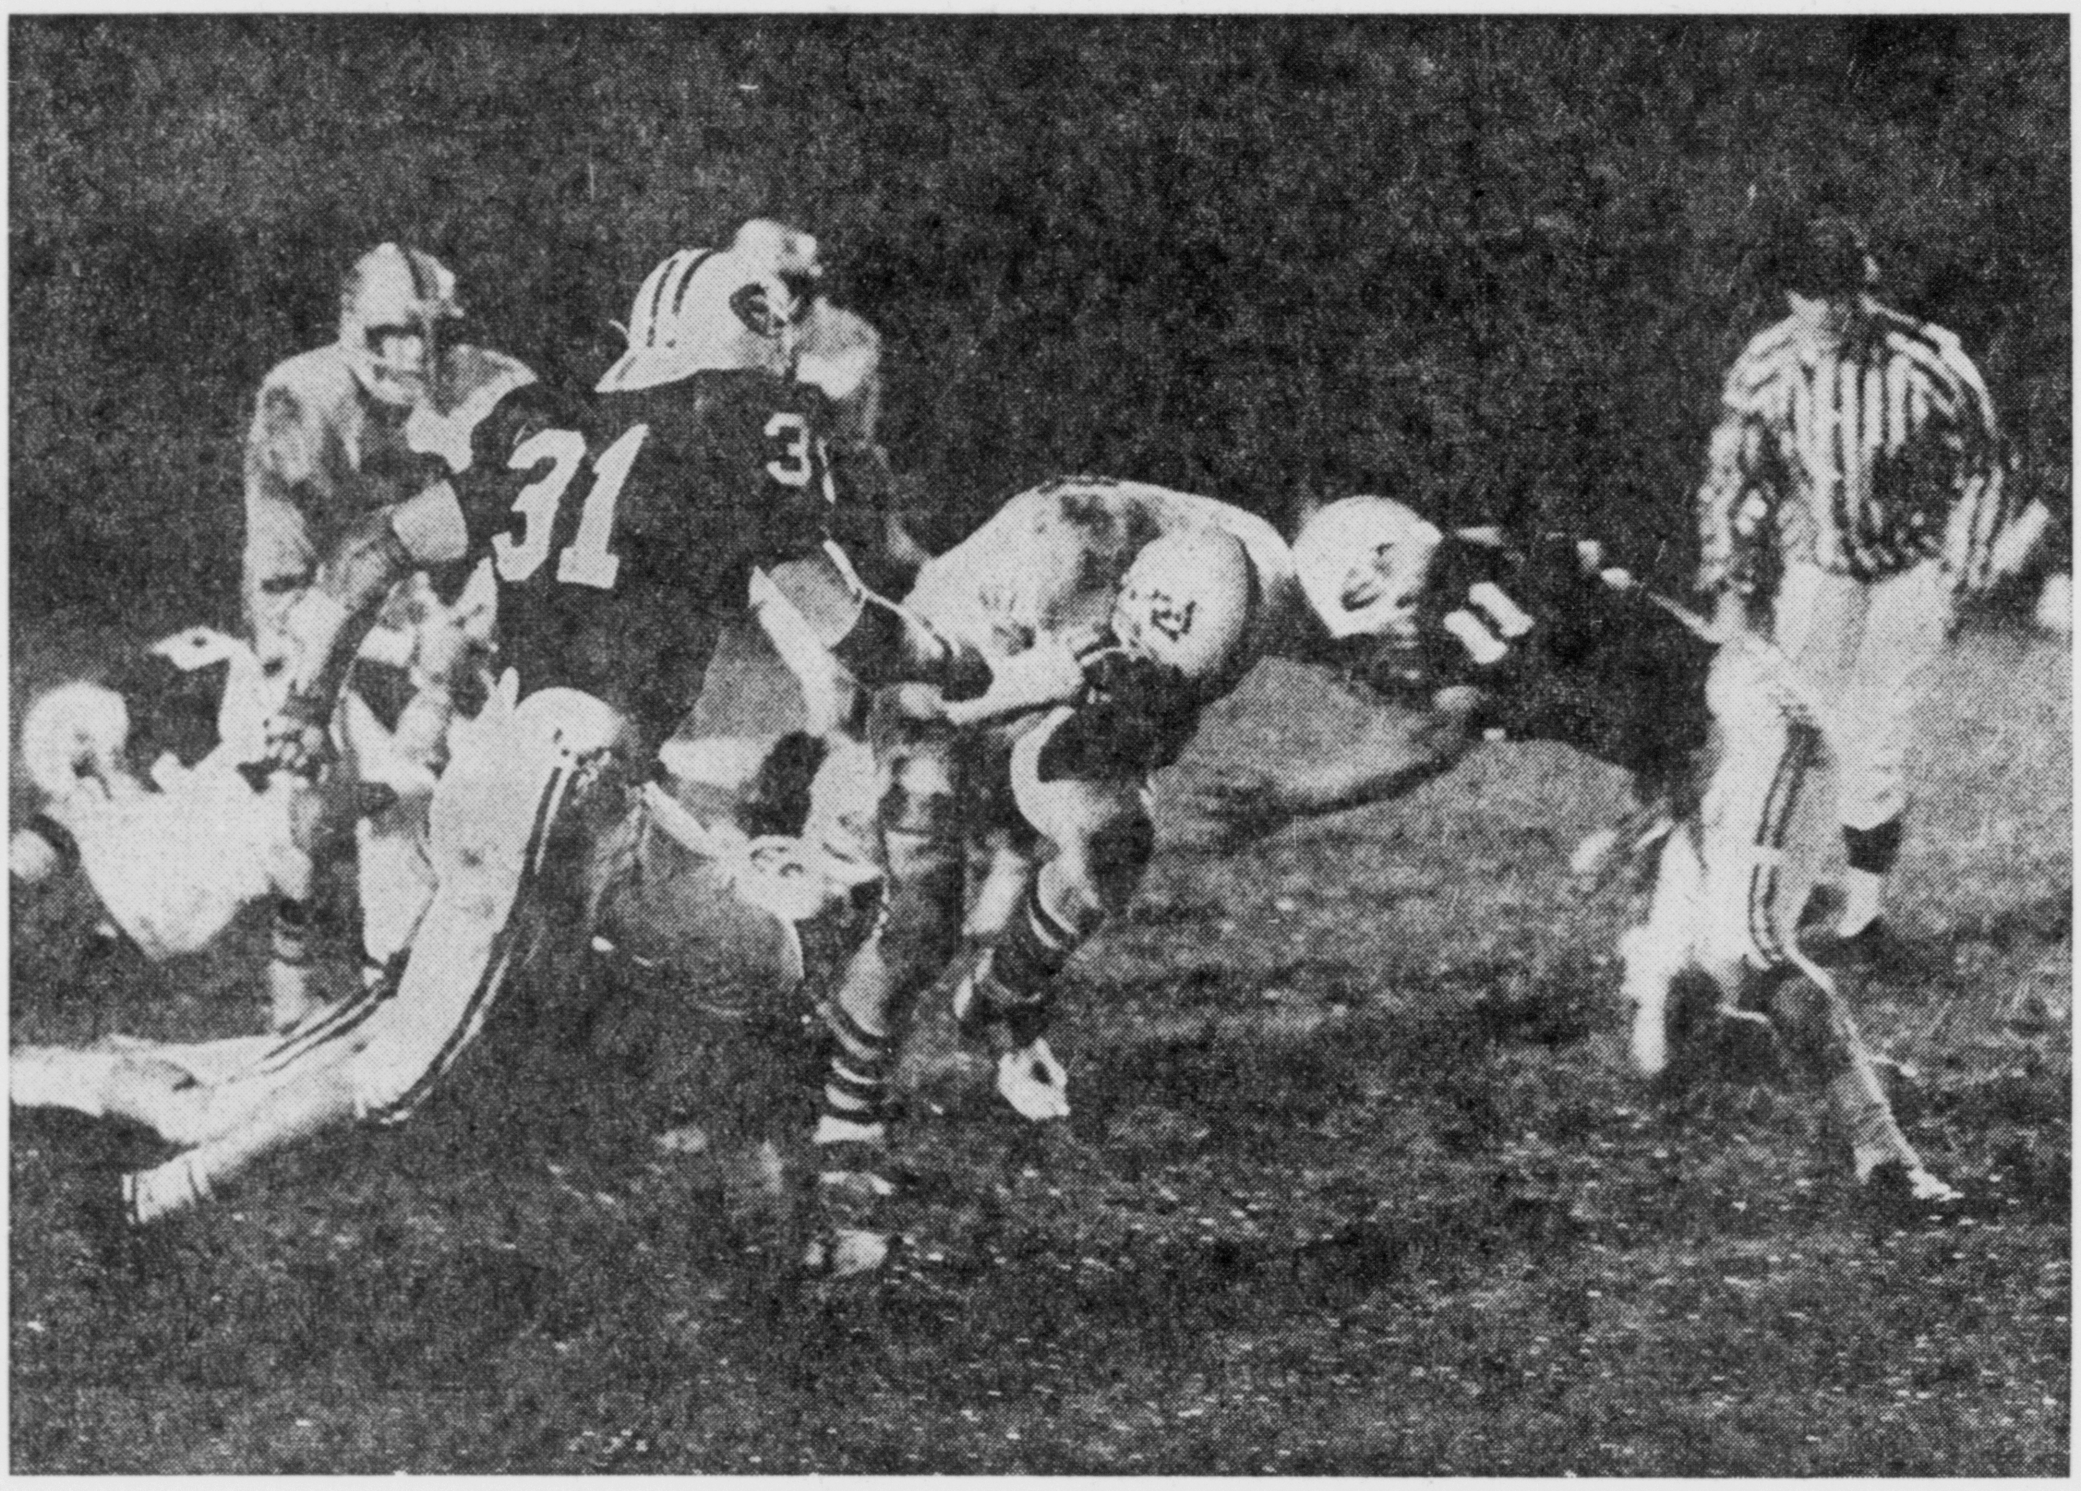
JOSTEN'S ONLY bright moment of the game came as the Lions took their first possession in the second quarter. On a critical fourth-down play, Josten surprised the Shamrocks with a 38-yard touchdown pass to Dan Bucaro.

But the second half belonged entirely to St. Patrick. With halfback Ed Diaz leading the way, the Shamrocks put three more touchdowns on the board. Diaz collected 105 yards rushing in 18 carries.

In just two plays, Diaz provided the Shamrocks with a 16-7 cushion. He went down the right sidelines for 52 yards on his first run and went off left tackle for the final four yards to paydirt.

Wise, who picked up 95 yards rushing, gave St. Patrick its third touchdown of the game. At 10:19 in the fourth period, Wise went around right end for three yards to close a 55-yard drive.

BUT THE PLAY that finally broke the Lions' backs was yet to come. With St. Viator forced to punt, Shamrock John Harty fielded the ball and cut down the right sidelines for a 51-yard touchdown return. Harty also returned a punt 55 yards for a touchdown last week.



PLOWING THROUGH the Elk Grove defense is Forest View's Rick Gardner while closing the hole for the Grenadiers are Jim Meyer (31) and Ralph Souder. Elk Grove performed the big play — a 71-yard pass — to trim the Falcons, 6-0 Friday night.

It's hard to win decision: Shavers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Earnie Shavers, who left his job on an automobile assembly for a career in boxing, fought the fight of his career Thursday night in extending Muhammad Ali 15 rounds before losing a unanimous decision.

"It's hard to win a decision against Ali, especially in New York," said Shavers, who said he believed he won the fight. "I knew I had to knock him out. Looking back at it, if I had to change anything I would have put more pressure on him sooner."

Criticized as a plodding fighter with no stamina and a fragile jaw, the 33-year-old Shavers possessed enough endurance to rally late in the fight and almost pull it out. His knockout punch never was questioned. He knocked out 52 opponents in 54 victories entering the fight. But he had never gone more than 10 rounds and had been kayoed by Ron Stander, Jerry Quarry and Ron Lyle.

BUT SHAVERS had enough left to hurt Ali in winning the 13th and 14th rounds and staggered him again in the 15th before the champion hurt Shavers for the first time.

DRIVING FORWARD for short yardage is Hersey's Dan Vucovich as Arlington's Brek Peterson puts on the clinching tackle in Mid-Suburban League feature Friday night. Arlington edged Hersey in overtime, 6-0.

Plenty to keep a sportsman occupied

Jim Cook

Outdoor editor

It's the time of the year when the ambitious outdoor enthusiast is a walking sporting goods store.

He's toting a shotgun for the opening of public and private shooting preserves, a bow and arrow for the start of the archery deer season and his fishing rod and reel for the king salmon that are piling up in the harbors.

After the long summer, hunters are back in the fields of such clubs as Richmond Hunting Club near the Wisconsin border, Kishwaukee Valley Sportsman's Club near Marengo and Huntley Game Farm between Algonquin and Huntley.

THE PRIMARY target is pheasant, but some clubs release chukar partridge, quail, ducks and even wild turkeys. Memberships are varied, but all ensure good cover and fast action.

The shooting preserve season opens today and extends through March of 1978. More hunters will be turning to the private clubs when they realize the poor pheasant season that has been predicted for the state.

Archers must have applied for a deer hunting permit in May to be eligible for the season that opens today.

Hunting in the counties of Cook, Lake, DuPage and Kane is uninterrupted from today to Dec. 31, but bow and arrow shooting outside these counties is permitted only during the dates of Oct. 1-Nov. 13, Nov. 21 to Dec. 4 and Dec. 12-31.

THE ARCHERY deer season limit is one whitetail although one other may be taken during the shotgun campaign.

By now, the deer hunter should have thoroughly scouted the territory he will be hunting and should have a strategic location predetermined. Hunters must use long or compound bows with a pull of 40 pounds or more and must shoot broadhead barbless hunting arrows.

Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour before sunset. Archers are not required to wear special clothing during the hunt.

Stubborn fishermen will also enjoy mixed action as spawning chinook salmon display their fall finishing kick.

The largest concentrations are headquartered off Kenosha, Wis. in only about 15-25 feet of water. A four-hour charter Thursday produced three fish weighing in excess of 50 pounds in aggregate.

The lure producing the action was the lime green J-Plug — a weaving, darting fish prototype that also enticed four other hits. The lines were set on downriggers about 7-8 feet below the surface of the water.

Snaggers are also doing well off the breakwater from Kenosha to Waukegan.

With three major events occuring simultaneously, there's no excuse for the sportsman and woman not to be involved.

Pilots find thrill in flying midgets

by RICK BAMMAN

Midget pilots gather at the Busse Woods Landing Field in Elk Grove Township for flying on Sunday afternoons. These aren't pilots who are small in physical stature, but who guide model planes that range in size from 2-6 feet in wingspan.

Members of the Chicagoland Radio Control Modelers Inc. make a regular practice of flying their dwarfed airplanes whenever they have a few free hours. Their planes are radio controlled, and the pilots fly them without ever leaving the ground.

The club meets regularly the first Friday of every month, though members may use the airstrip at any time. The landing field, open to the public, is a 1-acre parcel in the Busse Woods Forest Preserve on Higgins Road set aside by the Forest Preserve District for use by the hobbyists. The club paid for the installation of the asphalt landing pad.

ACCORDING TO president Ed Bywalec, of Chicago, the club was founded in 1948 and is the largest and oldest in the area. Membership is now about 150 hobbyists who promote the building and the flying of radio-controlled, scale-model aircraft.

"A beginner would have to invest about $600 to get started," said Bywalec. "After that the sky's the limit." The club has instructors that teach new members maneuvers and stunts. "If the beginners practice several times a week they would require two and a half months to solo," he continued.

For the beginner, kits are priced from $30 to $130. Engines go for $40 to $100. The radio control units are the most costly at $300 to $400. Planes are made of various materials including balsa wood and fiberglass.

Al's Hobby Shop in Elmhurst and Stanton Hobby in Chicago are two suppliers of such kits. The engines of these craft are powered by alcohol with oil and nitromethane. Like their full-sized counterparts, these planes undergo regular maintenance checks, usually once a week.

RADIO CONTROL units, with four channels, enable the pilots to control the motor, the elevator, the ailerons and the rudder. A five channel unit will also handle retractible landing gear.

The FCC has assigned special radio frequencies for use by such hobbyists. Every pilot must have an FCC radio license and club members carry liability insurance.

The club also has a traffic-control system to prevent accidents. Just like regular pilots, they take their turn as instructed by their air-controller.

These tiny planes often attain speeds of 70 to 80 miles per hour, though beginner's craft are much slower. Planes designed for racing travel in excess of 150 mph.

THE FLYING season for most members is from late spring through October. Each year the club holds a contest and meet which attracts modelers from around the country.

"In the winter, most of us spend our time building or rebuilding our aircraft," says Bywalec. "But some pilots, like myself, like to fly in the winter. We just take off the wheels and attach skis when snow is on the ground.

"The real thrill," he continued, "is seeing your own handiwork responding to your command. Taking off, stunting and landing requires practice and knowledge. One thing is certain. If a mistake is made, or the plane or radio malfunctions, the pilot can walk away from the crash with only his pride hurting."

Indoor meetings of the club are held at the Gompers Park Fieldhouse, 4222 West Foster Ave., Chicago. New members are welcome.

Fish Lake hurt by pollutants

The combined winter and summer fish kills this year at Fish Lake were so severe that Illinois Dept. of Conservation fishery biologists were forced this week to kill the entire fish population of the lake before restocking it.

The privately owned 85-acre lake, which is southwest of the town of Round Lake, probably was the victim of extensive fish kills because of excessive amounts of farm fertilizer nutrients that drain into it, officials said. The fertilizer causes deoxygenation of the water, said Harvy Brown, fishery biologist. A sampling of the lake's fish population this summer by Brown netted only 400 baby carp and two bullheads. Normally the lake's 16-foot depth would prevent winter kill problems, he added.

The biologists killed all the fish in the lake with 900 gallons of the fish toxicant rotenone.

"The Little Guy With the Big Discounts"

PELE SAYS SO LONG. The final game today of professional soccer star Pele will feature a unique format. He will play the first half for the New York Cosmos and then switch at halftime and play for Santos of Brazil, the club team he starred with for many years. Pele, making a round of farewell appearances this week, expressed satisfaction with having spread soccer fever to the United States.

Farewell

Pele bows out after spectacular soccer career

by MARTIN LADER

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — On a piece of land that just a few years ago was a garbage dump, in a country that still doesn't call the sport by its proper name, soccer's greatest missionary of good will makes his final adieu to his adoring fans today.

The emotional farewell to Pele will be flooded with tears, ringing with cheers and stark full of symbolism, not the least of which is the fact that thousands of fans were unable to buy expensive tickets for this game, touching off an investigation by the New York State Attorney General.

Before Pele, the Cosmos played their home games in a small stadium hidden under a New York City bridge and their attendance figures were counted in the hundreds. Since the signing of Pele to a $4.75 million, three-year contract on June 10, 1975, the Cosmos have attracted as many as 77,691 fans for a single game and soccer is the new national mania.

Thus, the game Saturday is a testimonial to a single man. Along with a capacity crowd of 76,000 fans in Giants Stadium, there will be an international press corps of some 600 people.

For the slightly-built, soft-spoken center of attraction, it will be the day when he stops being Pele and assumes the identity of Edson Arantes do Nascimento, his name at birth. He leaves behind an unparalleled 22-year career during which time he played 1,362 games in 65 countries, scored 1,230 goals and three times helped Brazil win the World Cup.

Ahead, his heritage is the growth of soccer — known to the rest of the world as football — in the United States.

"I have fulfilled my mission to help make soccer popular in America," said the 36-year-old Pele. "It looks like I have a new son."

The game, which is of far less significance than the individual involved, will match Santos of Brazil against the Cosmos, the only two club teams for which Pele has played. In a unique format, Pele will play the first half for the Cosmos, then will change uniforms at halftime and complete the game with Santos.

"That is a strange situation for me, no doubt," Pele said of the arrangement. "If I have the opportunity to score a goal against Santos, I will. If I have the opportunity to score a goal against the Cosmos, I will do it, no doubt.

"What a beautiful symbol this is, the Cosmos giving me back to the club I played with all my life and where I started my career."

Halftime ceremonies also will include 120 folk dancers in Brazilian costume. Highlights of the festivities will be telecast by ABC as part of its "Wide World of Sports" program between 5 and 6:30 p.m. EDT.

Procon, Sowa rule UOP golf tourney

The first annual UOP Masters Championship was held at Moon Lake C.C. in Hoffman Estates. UOP (Universal Oil Products) has its world headquarters in Des Plaines.

This tournament involved competition between five company leagues and competition between the better golfers of UOP. The victors of this year's tournament were Procon League, the 1977 UOP Championship, and Dennis Sowa (an employee with Procon), the 1977 UOP Masters Champion.

The standings of the tournament were: Procon 80 pts, Riverside 78, Process-Friday 71, Flexonics 70, Process-Thursday 61.

Individual leaders were Dennis Sowa of Procon - 77, Scott Hokanson of Flexonics - 81, Tom Rataczak of Riverside - 82, Bill Tieman of Process - 83, Bob Munson of Procon - 85, and Jeff Potter of Riverside - 85.

The golfers on the Procon team were: Tom Kopf (18 pts.), Joe Tuszynski (16), Bud McLeod (14), Jack McCarthy (9), Bob Munson (8), Bill Caslin (7), Dave DuPree (6) and Bert Rodin (2).

Bo worries as Aggies make visit

by ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer

The Big Ten, winners of 12 of 20 non-conference football games this season, gets a chance today to possibly post its best record since 1963 against intersectional opponents, and perhaps its No. 1 team, Michigan, won't participate in the success.

The Woverines, who until a week ago were ranked No. 1 nationally, fell to No. 3 despite a win over Navy last week, and Saturday host No. 5-rated Texas A&M, which Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said "possibly may be the best team in the country."

Michigan was a slim one-point favorite and, on the basis of Schembechler's expressed fears of the Aggies, that could be a mistake.

"I'm surprised we're ranked above Texas A&M," he said. "They play the wishbone and we don't see the wishbone day in and day out. It'd be a problem stopping their fullback. He's big and nifty and he can get moving quickly and make that short cut. More than one guy has got to be there to meet him."

College football

The Aggie fullback is George Woodard, who weighs 265 pounds, and Schembechler feared other facets of the Aggie offense as well, notable running back Curtis Dickey and quarterback David Walker.

"You can't bunch inside to stop Woodward and let Dickey run outside on you," he said, "and Walker is diversified. He can throw the pocket pass with a lot of receivers out and can run too."

But his major concern was the Texas A&M placekicker, Tony Franklin, who has kicked field goals on 10 of 19 attempts over 50 yards and has three of 60 or more to his credit, including one of a record 65 yards.

"One advantage they have that we can not match is that kicker," Schembechler said. "He's the greatest in the country, college or pro. Other than trying to put pressure on him and block the kick, I don't know how you stop him.

"Anytime they cross midfield they've got three points and that's an unbelievable advantage."

The Big Ten game will be Northwestern at Wisconsin and the Badgers were heavy favorites, although Wildcats Coach Johnny Pont said his team has the capability "to beat some teams in the Big Ten."

It might not be Wisconsin, though, as Pont said the Badgers have the "quickest defense I've seen at Wisconsin" as well as a winged T and misdirection offense which "spreads you out. We've got to get untracked and stop them outside, inside and passing. They're very solid."

Big Ten teams were favored in five of the eight nonconference games with Indiana an underdog at Nebraska, UCLA at home the choice over Iowa, and Notre Dame at home the pick over Michigan State. Illinois entertains Syracuse, Minnesota will be at home against Washington, Ohio State travels to Southern Methodist and Wake Forest plays at Purdue in other contests. The Ohio State and Iowa contests were night games.

Working with Angels a heavenly job

By Vernon Scott

David Doyle, who stars with the three beauties of "Charlie's Angels," says, "If I lived the fantasies of male veiwers I'd be dead in 14 weeks."

If Doyle chuckles and laughs a great deal, it's because he fully appreciates holding down television's most joyful job. His costars are Jaclyn Smith, Kate Jackson and Cheryl Ladd — all young, gorgeous and nubile.

In the show's premiere season his cup almost ran over. Last year Farrah Fawcett, America's darling, was part of the cast.

Doyle maintains his good humor no matter how often he's asked his reaction to being surrounded by television's most attractive trio. He replies that he goes home to another wonderful pair, wife Anne and daughter Leah, 16.

But when he gets down to cases — and he earned a law degree — Doyle says acting is work whether it's with three pretty girls or three dirty old men.

"The fact that I'm involved professionally every day with three charming and beautiful women doesn't make that much difference in my personal attitude toward work," he said.

"They are fellow performers, just as a group of men would be. It makes the scenery prettier, of course, and the jokes cleaner."

Doyle is a committed Roman Catholic and deliriously happy in his marriage. Still, he's a youthful 47 and not altogether inattentive to the constant exposure to full bosoms and well-turned legs.

Of his day-to-day proximity to his costars Doyle says, "It's a catalyst to the concupiscence that we are all born with." Figure that out.

"Ninety-five per cent of the time our contact is restricted to working conditions, so I rarely think of the girls on a personal level.

"Oh, I appreciate their femininity all right. I'm as aware of their charms as any healthy male would be. I wake up every morning delighted by the prospect of going to work."

He doesn't consider himself a father image on the show, much less a paternal figure to the girls when the cameras stop turning. He thinks of his Bosley role as more avuncular than anything else.

Only one cloud shadows Doyle's blue-sky approach to his job. In a recent magazine story he was asked whether "Charlie's Angels" would survive Farrah's highly publicized departure from the detective series.

Doyle opined that the second season would be as good or better than ever.

"It's come back to me that Farrah was hurt by my remark," Doyle said, displaying a rare frown.

"I wouldn't hurt that wonderful girl's feelings for the world. I'm terribly fond of her. What I meant to say was that we had four months more to work on scripts and the producers were better prepared this season.

"After all, I'd never say the opposite — that the show probably would be as good but not better. I wouldn't say that about any project I was connected with.

"And I know damned well Farrah would like to see the show keep improving and get higher ratings. She is a sweet, unselfish girl.

"Last year the girls were honored on 'The People's Choice Awards.' As they made their way to the stage, Farrah insisted I join them. I wouldn't have been a part of it all without Farrah's thoughtfulness. Of course I miss her."

Doyle was the first to make Cheryl feel at home when she joined the cast. Cheryl, like Jaclyn and Kate, are high in praise of him as an actor and chum.

"I'm friendlier with the girls than any group of performers I've ever worked with on stage or television," he said. "I was deeply touched not long ago when I missed a day at work because of the flu.

"It was the first time I'd not been able to report because of illness. Each of them, individually, checked in on the phone to see how I was getting along. You can't beat that kind of friendship anywhere."

Friendship aside, there is the ever-present peril that Doyle could be lost in the shuffle of the show. The scripts are written to display as much of the ladies as possible.

"You have to be a good actor to hold your own with three beautiful girls," he said. "But there is genuine rapport, affection and respect among us.

"Equal import is given all three actresses in each episode. I don't know of a show that has three equal leads.

If David Doyle chuckles and laughs a great deal it's because he enjoys starring with the three beauties on "Charlie's Angels," at 8 p.m. Wednesdays on Channel 7.

"So it gets harder and harder to add a fourth element of equality — me: I'd like to see Bosley do more on the series. I requested that he not be made to look like a dumbbell. I see him as a Robert Benchley type, in tune with the younger generation but not necessarily in agreement.

"Maybe someday Bosley will have his own show. It's something to think about."

Debbie Allen

Could you please tell me as much as you can about Debbie Allen, who appeared on “3 Girls 3” not too long ago?

D.C.

Debbie's career rests on a winning combination of luck and talent. During her childhood in Houston, Texas, she studied dance. Her mother, whose own aspirations for a show business career were thwarted, never failed to encourage Debbie. At Howard University, Debbie studied drama and speech; later she taught at the Duke Ellington School for the Performing Arts.

Her big break came when, all in a day, she shot two commercials--one in which she describes her headaches--and auditioned for the role in “3 Girls 3.”

I really love that little dog “Benji,” and I enjoyed the last movie he was in. Will we be seeing any more of him?

C.M.T.

Benji

You bet. Benji has nuzzled into the hearts of so many people that he has been called a “phenomenon.” In fact, there will be a special dedicated to the cuddly canine, to be aired on ABC in February, 1978. Called “The Phenomenon of Benji,” it will originate from the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville. Benji's guests will include Charlie Rich, Linda Kay Henning, Edgar Buchanan and Frank Inn, Benji's trainer. The show should be a real treat for all Benji buffs.

* * *

What ever happened to the actors in the series “Star Trek”? And will there be a new “Star Trek”?

T.T.

Take heart, all you “trekkies”--there is a very strong possibility that William Shatner will resume his role as Capt. Kirk in the new series “Star Trek.” Nimoy is still “negotiating” about becoming Spock once more. As of now the plans are not settled--so keep watch for further developments.

Debbie Allen

Could you please tell me as much as you can about Debbie Allen, who appeared on "3 Girls 3" not too long ago?

D.C.

Debbie's career rests on a winning combination of luck and talent. During her childhood in Houston, Texas, she studied dance. Her mother, whose own aspirations for a show business career were thwarted, never failed to encourage Debbie. At Howard University, Debbie studied drama and speech; later she taught at the Duke Ellington School for the Performing Arts.

Her big break came when, all in a day, she shot two commercials--one in which she describes her headaches--and auditioned for the role in "3 Girls 3."

I really love that little dog "Benji," and I enjoyed the last movie he was in. Will we be seeing any more of him?

C.M.T.

Benji

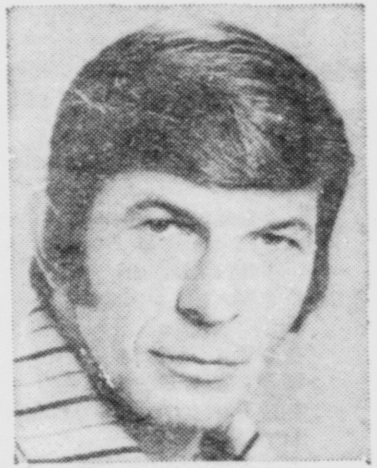
You bet. Benji has nuzzled into the hearts of so many people that he has been called a "phenomenon." In fact, there will be a special dedicated to the cuddly canine, to be aired on ABC in February, 1978. Called "The Phenomenon of Benji," it will originate from the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville. Benji's guests will include Charlie Rich, Linda Kay Henning, Edgar Buchanan and Frank Inn, Benji's trainer. The show should be a real treat for all Benji buffs.

* * *

What ever happened to the actors in the series "Star Trek"? And will there be a new "Star Trek"?

T.T.

Take heart, all you "trekkies"--there is a very strong possibility that William Shatner will resume his role as Capt. Kirk in the new series "Star Trek." Nimoy is still "negotiating" about becoming Spock once more. As of now the plans are not settled--so keep watch for further developments.



Leonard Nimoy

Editor's note . . .

You've seen them. The rumpled old men sitting in the animal houses at Lincoln Park Zoo, a chess or checker board — maybe even a gin rummy hand separating them. Or maybe you haven't noticed them sitting contentedly on a bench or deep in conversation with a keeper. But they're there. Zoo personnel call them "regulars" and some show up every day at the same time in the same place. They are special people with a special story to tell. Page 6.

Another special person is John Kyritsis. His father, Mathon, owned and operated the famed Waukegan restaurant of the same name until his death four years ago. John is taking up where his father left off, operating the business and carrying on Mathon's tradition of forecasting the weather by the perch in Lake Michigan. Page 4.

I was six when my family took the mighty Santa Fe Super Chief to California. I remember two things: sitting on actor Pat O'Brien's lap in the dining car (he just happened to be on board) and gazing out at the magnificent scenery of an unfolding West. Amtrak is trying to revive the days of cross country train travel, offering special packages with special prices to lure a nation back to the rails. Page 10.

John Kyritsis has inherited a heavy responsibility since the death of his well-known, widely-respected father. The 25-year-old Greek operates his family's Waukegan restaurant, carries on his father's twenty-year search for Venus de Milo's arms and predicts the weather by the habits of the perch, carrying on...

THE TRADITION OF MATHON

Story by Debbe Jonak Photography by Dave Tonge

The perch are swimming deep this month. It will be another frigid winter.

From a family-owned seafood restaurant a block off the harbor in the bowels of Waukegan's industrial district came that prediction.

The forecast is a tradition, begun fifteen years ago by Mathon Kyritsis, the city's own old man of the sea and late owner of Mathon's Restaurant, 6 E. Clayton Dr.

Four years after his death, the custom is carried on by his wife and a son — his father's alter ego, long-time friends swear.

John Kyritsis, 25, and his mother Christine, 53, now listen to the fishermen's tales each fall and determine whether a mild or frigid season lies ahead.

If they tell of good perch fishing in shallow water close to Lake Michigan's shores, then it's a mild winter for sure. But if the perch are swimming deep, cold weather is forewarned.

THE TRADITION OF MATHON

Story by Debbe Jonak Photography by Dave Tonge

The perch are swimming deep this month. It will be another frigid winter.

From a family-owned seafood restaurant a block off the harbor in the bowels of Waukegan's industrial district came that prediction.

The forecast is a tradition, begun fifteen years ago by Mathon Kyritsis, the city's own old man of the sea and late owner of Mathon's Restaurant, 6 E. Clayton Dr.

Four years after his death, the custom is carried on by his wife and a son — his father's alter ego, long-time friends swear.

John Kyritsis, 25, and his mother Christine, 53, now listen to the fishermen's tales each fall and determine whether a mild or frigid season lies ahead.

If they tell of good perch fishing in shallow water close to Lake Michigan's shores, then it's a mild winter for sure. But if the perch are swimming deep, cold weather is forewarned.

"The perch are in very deep water," said John, 25, sitting slender, well-dressed and easily in a restaurant chair. "It's going to be an extremely cold winter. About the same or worse than last year."

"I don't think it could be any worse than last year," his mother shuddered.

They have been wrong just once in the past five years, a testimony to their age-old method. Indeed, they contend 94 per cent of Mathon's predictions were on the head.

The method has been passed on through generations of Greeks. Mathon, born on the Greek island of Melos in 1901, learned it there. He stowed away on a ship, then immigrated to Waukegan in 1920, where he gained local fame as a restaurateur, a lobbyist for better lake conditions and an archeology buff.

But his forecast abilities did not become well-publicized seasonal events until 1942, following a casual conversation with a reporter friend.

"My dad was telling him how cold the winter was going to be," John said. "He asked, 'how you can tell?' My dad said by the depth of the perch."

The reporter was skeptical, but printed the prediction anyway in a Chicago daily.

"It was right, so the reporter asked him to predict it again the next year," he said.

"From then on every year he was asked," Mrs. Kyritsis said. "He had a terrific average."

But when he was wrong, he was not spared, John said.

Shortly after predicting a mild winter in 1961, the Kyritsis' left for a Caribbean cruise. The day they left, an exceptionally frigid cold spell hit the area.

The newspapers announced the apparent mistake, along with news of the Kyritsis' flight to warmer climes.

"Somewhere they burned my father in effigy," John laughed, adding the rest of the winter was mild as forecasted.

Predicting the winter weather is probably the least difficult task John has assumed since his father's death. Waukegan mourned in 1973, when Mathon succumbed to a long battle with cancer.

He and his mother must operate the restaurant, a job neither was prepared to deal with at Mathon's death.

The restaurant had grown from a one-room fish and chips diner in 1938 to a thriving, well-known business with three large dining rooms.

Mathon opened the restaurant after scrimping and saving for eighteen years. He worked at odd jobs around the city, then fishing.

He attempted a career of fishing with his brother Louie in the early 1930s, trolling the choppy waters of Lake Michigan with their own small commercial fleet.

"But that didn't last too long — he got seasick," Mrs. Kyritsis smiled.

Finally in 1938, he gathered together enough money to open Mathon's, which grew quickly in size and fame.

Local and national politicians and celebrities have been regular customers — former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ed McMahon of Tonight Show fame, radio personality Howard Miller and Waukegan's answer to Mayor Richard Daley — former Mayor Robert Sabonjian.

The cast of "The Wedding," filmed earlier this year in Lake Forest, ate there so often one said he felt like family.

Many celebrated seafood restaurants have shunned the coarse atmosphere of the fishing district, trying to replace it with a few sterile artifacts on the walls. Unlike others, Mathon's has remained in the homely end of town.

The building itself is homely — but virtually a trademark of Waukegan, with its white clapboard exterior and aqua-trimmed windows shaped like portholes.

It rests alongside the railroad yards, the towering silos of Atlas Cement, the smokestacks of the Johnson Outboards factory.

To the east, the masts of docked sailboats pierce the horizon and the occasional groan of a ship's horn is sounded from somewhere on the water.

It is where a seafood restaurant belongs. It is where John grew up and where he remains — though he is not a fisherman himself.

He lives in a small, white house across the street from the restaurant — where he grew up. His mother has since moved to a larger home in a residential area of Waukegan.

"I'm not a fisherman. When I was a kid, I used to go out on a boat with them. I'd take a bamboo pole and sit and catch perch," John said, slowly stroking the beginnings of a beard.

His upbringing was a mixture of the earthy, brash world of seamen and the esthetic, cultural influences of his well-learned father.

He recalled his neighbors as "hard-working, hard-living people."

"They were all nationalities — Greeks, Germans, Poles. They were quick tempered, they'd fight a little. Then ten minutes later they'd be best of friends.

"Mike used to go down to the shanty and play old Greek songs on the violin. Pete the Greek would get up — he'd be drinking — and do the dance. They were a very fun-loving people, but a real dichotomy. One moment they'd be very full of life and happiness and the next they'd show great sorrow and pain."

Since that time, the fish supply in Lake Michigan has dwindled, as have the commercial fishermen. There are only three commercial fleets licensed by Illinois left on the lake. The old salts have retired or taken their tall tales to the factories.

A different sort hang around the harbor now. The white collar crowd, with uncalloused hands and pockets full of money.

They talk of stocks or plays or art or politics, as they board their yachts and sailboats. John can mix as easily with them.

His father saw to it that he earned his college degree in art, Spanish and history. He taught him to appreciate many different subjects.

Mathon valued education highly. Though he could not afford a college education in his youth, he mastered many subjects through his own studies.

"He was a real Renaissance man," John said. "He enjoyed archeology, icthyology, escatology, opera, theology and history."

"He was a tremendous person. A knowledgeable man," Mrs. Kyritsis nodded. "He could converse on just about any subject."

One subject which consumed his interest in the past twenty years was the Venus de Milo, the ancient, armless Greek statue unearthed by a farmer in 1820 on Mathon's native isle.

To find the arms of Aphrodite was his dream — a dream which he shared with John. Mathon had met the grandson of the farmer in the late 1950s, who told him the arms were still somewhere around Melos, either in the sea or buried on his grandfather's land.

Mathon took John along on a dozen digs and deep sea diving expeditions at the island in an attempt to relocate the arms, then coerce France into returning the statue to Greece. The statue rests at the Louvre in Paris.

Mathon died without ever seeing his dream realized. But John intends to carry on the search through his lifetime, if that's what it takes.

Searching for Venus' arms, running a seafood restaurant, predicting the season's weather — John is carrying a heavy load of traditions which are far from his once-held aspirations of being a psychiatrist or race car driver.

But he expresses no resentment in taking on the work nor insecurity about meeting the tasks.

He is proud to be compared to a man who was knowledgeable, traveled, driving and dignified, yet never too far from his humble roots in the sea.

"He could tell where the fish were swimming just with his nose. He'd been out on the lake so many years, it was like an instinct with him. It seems like in the civilization process, man has lost that type of instinct with nature," John said.

A slow smile crossed his face, for he was satisfied that Mathon had come close to touching that same instinct which drives the fish to deep water when a cold winter is in nature's scheme. Maybe someday he will too. §

Most are aged, lonely people who fill the void in their lives with daily visits to Lincoln Park Zoo. There they can chat with the keepers, feed a select few animals, play a game of checkers and feel a part of things once more.

You can see them any day of the year.

Look past the joggers, the strolling young man and woman holding hands, the balloon man dwarfed by the baffoon shapes of giant air bags, the children running ahead of their parents toward the sea lion pool and the monkey house and the bear grotto.

They are there faithfully, day in and day out, coming to visit their "animal friends," carrying a bag of peanuts for the squirrels and prairie dogs and birds.

Some would call them eccentric. Others who see them might say they are a bit lonely. But only the ones who really know them understand why they come.

They come because they are Lincoln Park Zoo's "regulars," the unique few who come to the zoo virtually every day to idle away otherwise empty hours in a place they have come to regard as almost a home.

Most of them are senior citizens, some known by name to the zoo keepers and attendants, others familiar simply by sight.

Outside the walkways of this isolated animal world on the edge of Lake Michigan, they are faceless individuals in the crowded streets of Chicago.

But here, where tigers and camels and gorillas live surrounded by skyscrapers and buses and traffic jams, they are true neighbors, as much a part of the zoo scene as the animals they come to see.

In the winter, when the icy winds off Lake Michigan bring bone-chilling shivers, the regulars of Lincoln Park Zoo make their way to the Lion House or the new Ape House. In the summer, when shady spots are at a premium, the park benches are their resting spots.

Often there is a checker board between them. Or a bag of popcorn or peanuts to fling to the creatures around them. Always is the knowledge that they will be there, rain or shine, winter or summer.

Why do they come? Partly because Lincoln Park Zoo is easily accessible by public transportation, partly because at least for the time being, the zoo is a free attraction.

But equally important is the intangible quotient of love that these handful of senior citizens and special adults feel for the 2,200 species kept here.

Janice Zimmerman has worked for more than a year at the zoo, tending to the book store counter in the Lion House. She knows the regulars well.

"The people who are regulars here are usually senior citizens. They come here every day to see their animals.

"What's funny is the regulars don't come here just because it's free. They just really love their animals. They're here every single day.

"They're interesting people. They eat their lunch here. They feed the squirrels outside the Children's Zoo. Some of them are lonely. You could come here in the winter and see every bench in the Lion House taken. Some have come here because they have no place else to go."

So much a part of the zoo are the regulars that at Christmas time the zoo even holds a special party for them, Janice says. "They have coffee and donuts for them."

Most of them are known only by their first names. Adam is one. So is Evelyn the babysitter who regularly brings her charges to the zoo for visits and Kenny who gets wild squirrels to sit on his shoulder and take peanuts from him.

"They feed the squirrels and ducks," Janice says. "Once in a while they will feed the baby elephant in the Children's Zoo. The keepers will let them because they know them." Feeding is otherwise prohibited at the zoo.

Two among the regulars stand out. They are the two that the zoo keepers tell you about, the two best known to the zoo staff and animals alike.

"Coca Cola Bob and Tom," Janice says. "They're the two who are here every single day."

Coca Cola Bob is Robert Ironside, a young retarded man whose handicap has not lessened his love for animals.

Tom is Tom Lutsch, a 75-year-old who has visited the zoo each day for the past two years.

The Lion House is usually their meeting place. There Bob will spend time watching the Afghanistan leopard the zoo named after him.

Today he has arrived ahead of Tom, but he has found the Lion House is closed temporarily while a vet tends to an ill cat.

"He knows everything there is to know about the animals," Janice says of Bob. "He'll stand here and ask people questions, asking them if they belong to the zoo society. He'll tell you be belongs to the society."

And so he does, proudly displaying the membership card that bears his name.

His nickname he tells you, comes from the jacket he sometimes wears that carries the soda pop's emblem, he says.

He takes you past his leopard, calling to it to emerge from the enclosure within its outdoor cage. The animal seems to respond to Bob's voice. Leopard Bob knows human Bob, he says. "The lions know me by voice."

On the walk to the Children's Zoo, Bob shows you newspaper pictures of a cheetah. Lincoln Park Zoo doesn't have cheetahs, he says, but Brookfield Zoo does and he would like to see them. One of the keepers has offered to take Bob to the suburban zoo on his day off, he tells you.

Near the Children's Zoo he spots Tom sitting on a bench, waiting for the keepers to open the gates to the outdoor section where the baby animals reside.

For Tom, Lincoln Park Zoo is a place "with nice people" and the animals he loves.

"I like to feed the animals," he says. "I feed the prairie dogs and squirrels. I feed Squeeky over there," he says, walking to the cage holding a little blind lemur.

The little animal knows Tom's voice and will rub against the side of his cage to feel Tom's gentle, aged fingers.

Tom and Bob will make the rounds to the other animals in the Children's Zoo, to Herman the cockatoo who literally comes down from his lofty perch to hang upside down for Tom's peanut and affectionate rub, to Bosie the elephant who comes to the sound of Bob's voice, to Mike the raven, Miki-Luk the polar bear, Crackers the macaw and Maggie, the goat with the broken horn.

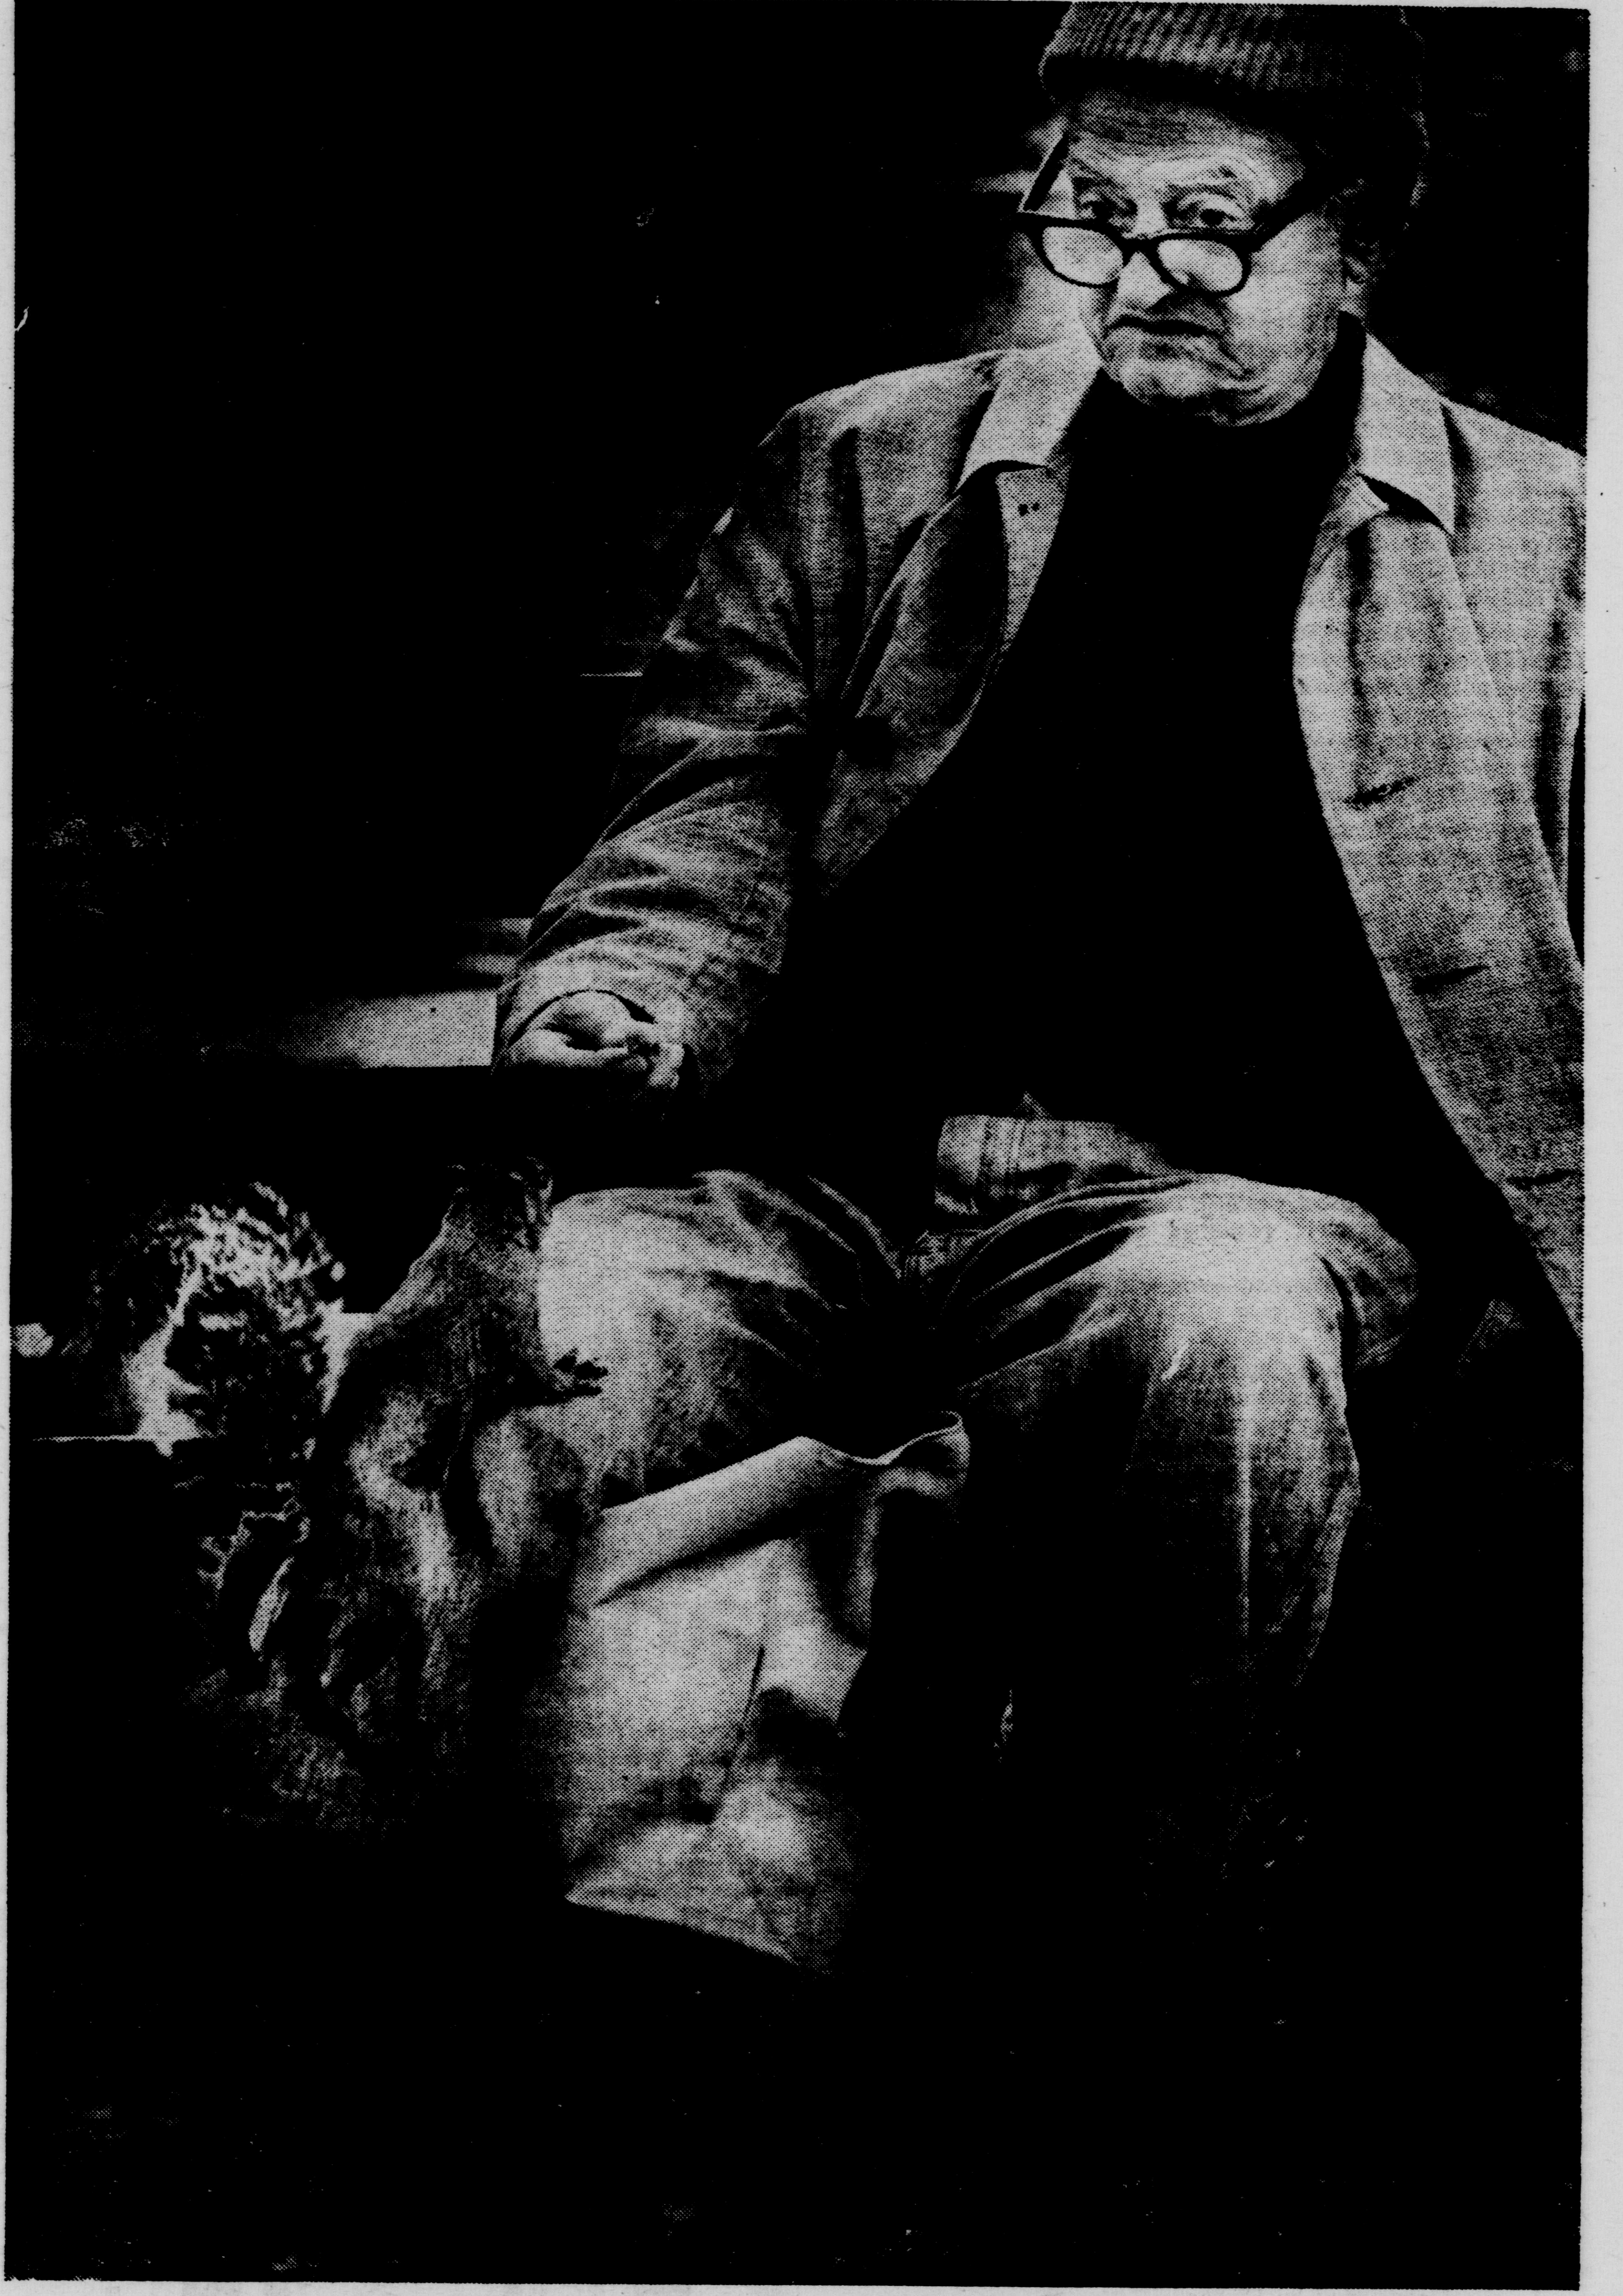
Tom will explain that the animals in the Children's Zoo usually have been rejected by their mothers. "One out of fifty will take care of their young (in captivity)," he tells you.

And he will tell you the importance of knowing how to feed an animal, be it a friendly goat or a wild squirrel. "You have to know the animals. You can't scare them. You have to keep your hands in. I tell people that.

"You see, little kids hold a peanut in their hand and when a squirrel grabs for it, he might nip their finger. You have to hold the peanut out to them."

And then he demonstrates the technique in a fascinating few moments near a grassy section outside the Children's Zoo where squirrels cautiously, then quickly, scurry up to his hand to collect the morsel.

Bob will stand nearby watching Tom, sometimes pointing to a leery creature who hesitates approaching and then comes after a little coaxing.



"We did have one we named," Tom says of the squirrels. "We called him Growler because he would always grunt and make noises at us. But some kids killed him. They threw things at him."

That kind of thing upsets Bob and Tom because they know that sometimes people will take advantage of the squirrels' trusting habit of approaching for food, taunting them only to get them close enough to abuse.

"We got two squirrels out of that big trash bin the other day," Tom says. He and Bob heard the animals thrashing in the bin where they apparently had been lured by youths.

"I don't know why people hurt animals," Tom says almost wistfully. "They're so gentle if you're only kind to them. You get attached to them, you really do. It's like kids."

It is that kind of love that has brought Bob and Tom and the regulars like them to Lincoln Park Zoo day after day.

"It's a nice place to come," Bob says. "I like the zoo."

"I came to the zoo and got to like it and I came back," Tom says. "What the heck? It's the cheapest place to go and it's nice. You meet a lot of friends." §

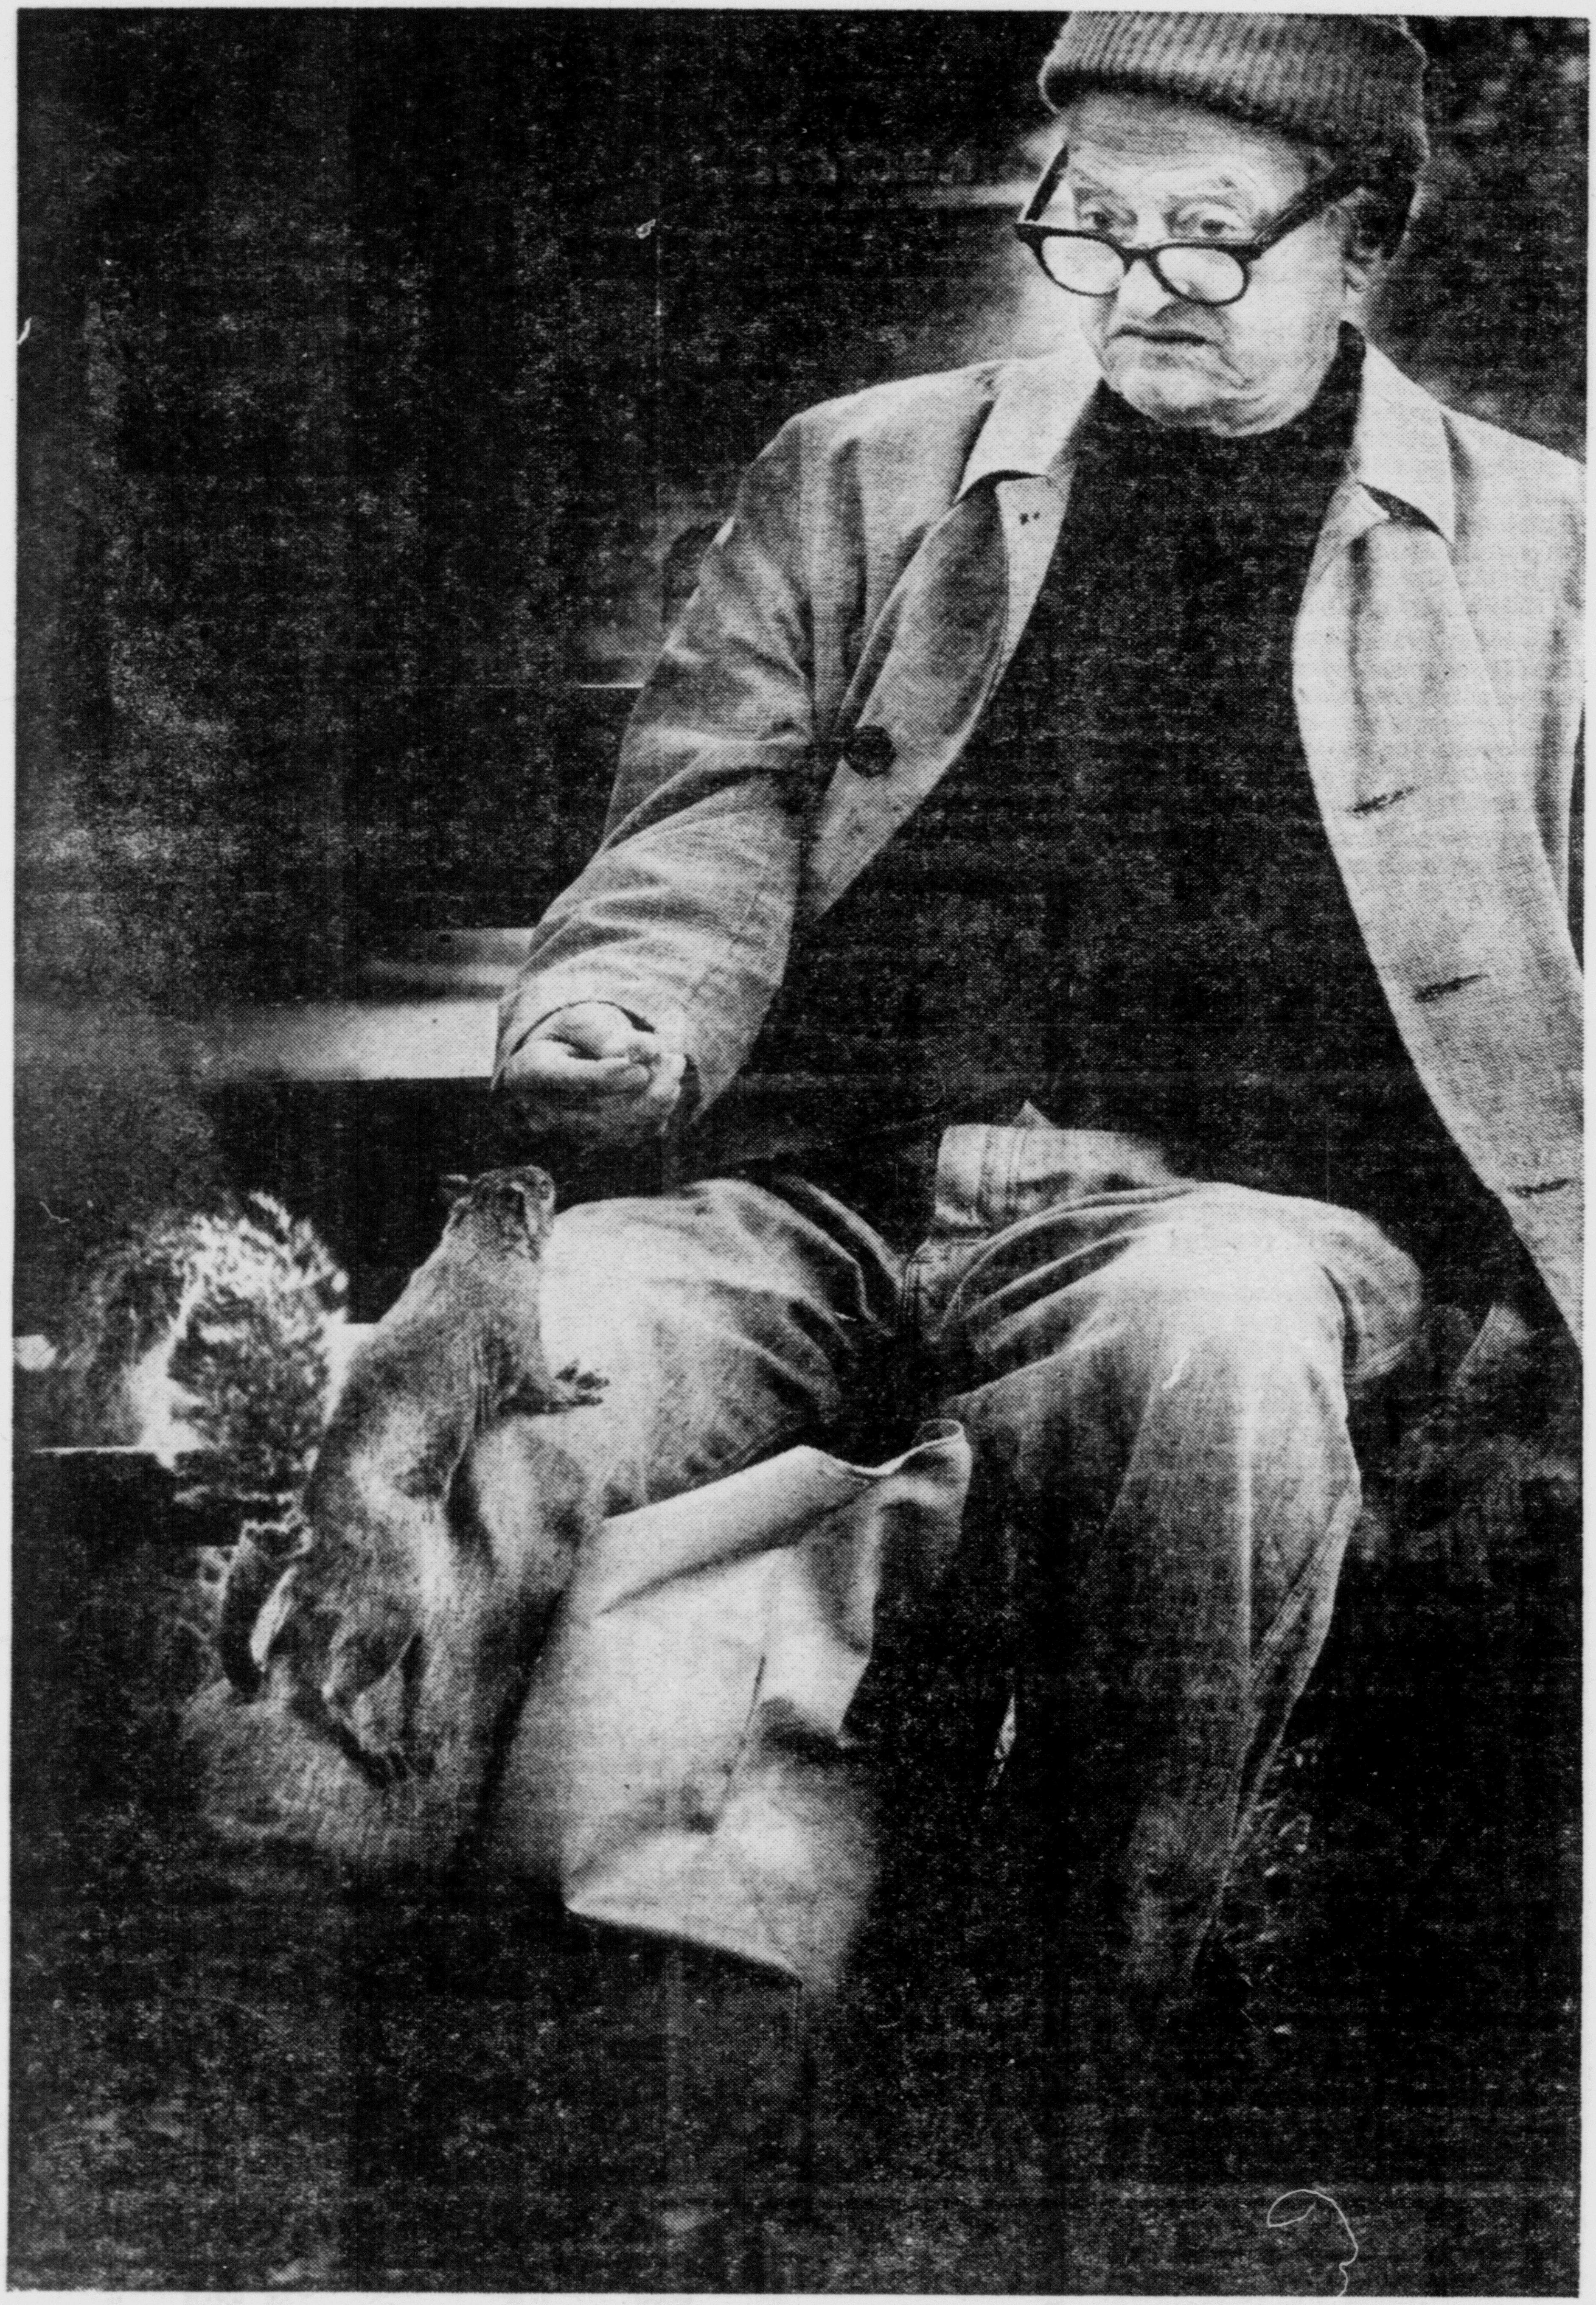
And then he demonstrates the technique in a fascinating few moments near a grassy section outside the Children's Zoo where squirrels cautiously, then quickly, scurry up to his hand to collect the morsel.

Bob will stand nearby watching Tom, sometimes pointing to a leery creature who hesitates approaching and then comes after a little coaxing.



"We did have one we named," Tom says of the squirrels. "We called him Growler because he would always grunt and make noises at us. But some kids killed him. They threw things at him."

That kind of thing upsets Bob and Tom because they know that sometimes people will take advantage of the squirrels' trusting habit of approaching for food, taunting them only to get them close enough to abuse.

"We got two squirrels out of that big trash bin the other day," Tom says. He and Bob heard the animals thrashing in the bin where they apparently had been lured by youths.

"I don't know why people hurt animals," Tom says almost wistfully. "They're so gentle if you're only kind to them. You get attached to them, you really do. It's like kids."

It is that kind of love that has brought Bob and Tom and the regulars like them to Lincoln Park Zoo day after day.

"It's a nice place to come," Bob says. "I like the zoo."

"I came to the zoo and got to like it and I came back," Tom says. "What the heck? It's the cheapest place to go and it's nice. You meet a lot of friends." §

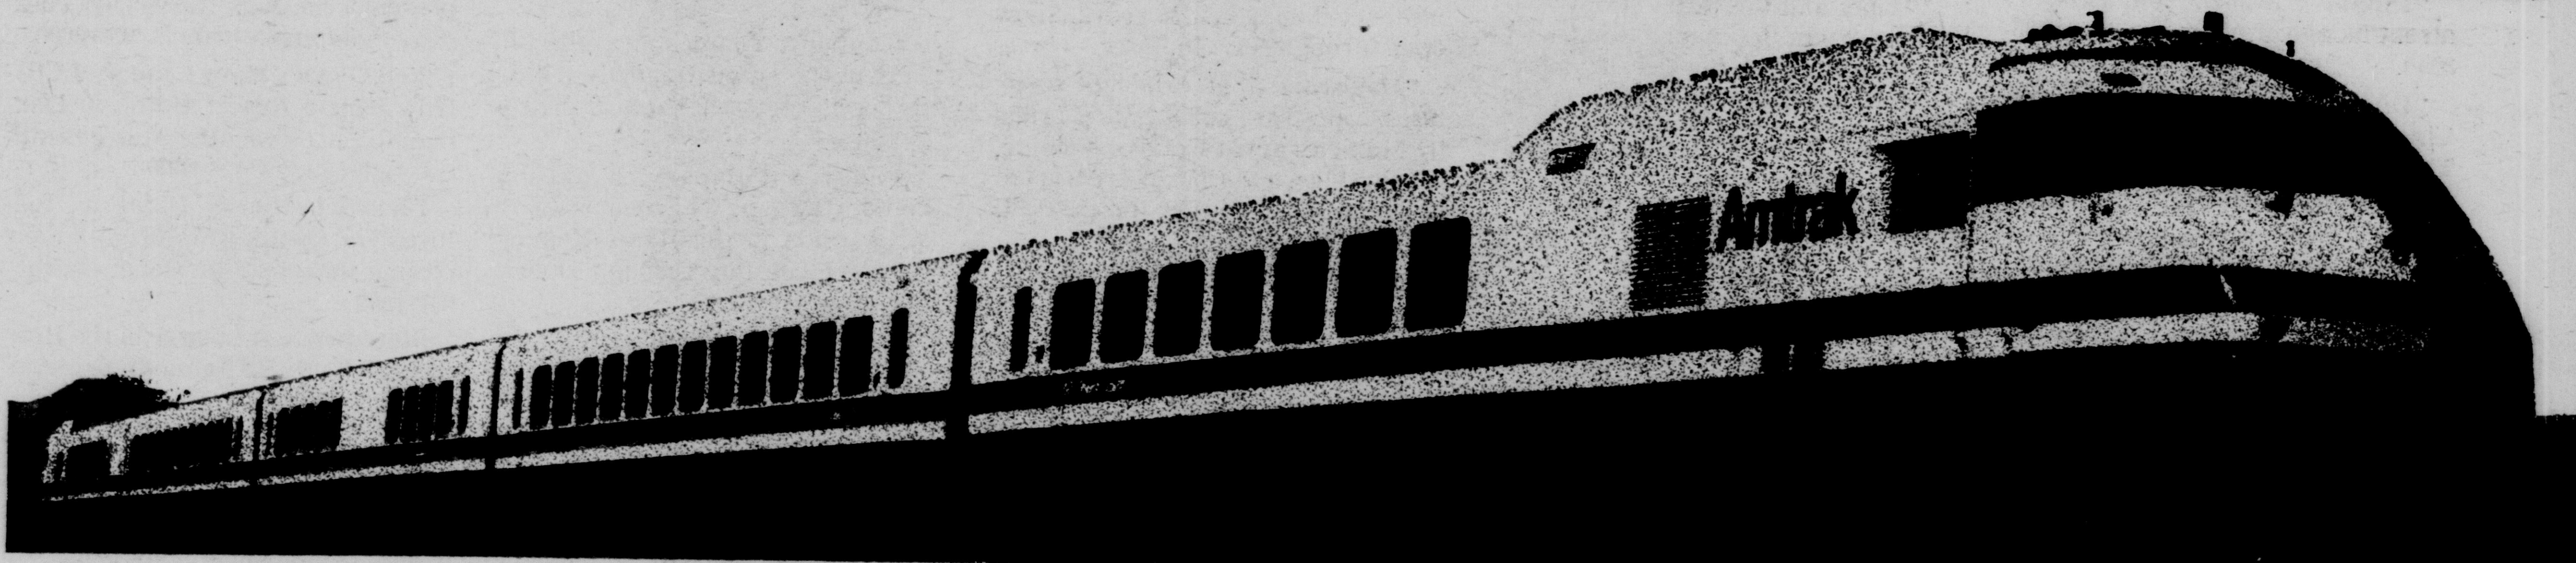
Motor Coach Connection
June 1, 1977



by Katherine Rodeghier

In the good ole days trains were the way to travel.

Big time industrialists of the 19th Century traveled across this country in private railroad cars with all the luxurious appointments of a fine hotel.

Lincoln traveled to Washington on a train and during the Civil War, railroad cars often became temporary military headquarters.

And there are a few historians who believe that Harry Truman's cross country campaign from the back of a railroad car won him the Presidential election.

But as air travel began to catch on, people became preoccupied with the idea of getting where they were going as fast as they could and the plane replaced the train just as the tin lizzy replaced the trusty steed. The Iron Horse was put out to pasture.

Today train travel is making somewhat of a comeback on Amtrak, the creature of the National Railroad Passenger Corporation. Amtrak handles almost all long distance passenger service in the country and since its creation in May 1971, it has steadily increased its number of riders — an increase of 11 per cent in 1972, 25 per cent in 1973, 15 per cent in 1974, a decline of 3.9 per cent in the recession year of 1975, and then an increase of 7.3 per cent last year. But although 19 million people a year are now riding Amtrak, train travel still accounts for only 1 per cent of all intercity transportation compared to 10 per cent for air travel and 87 per cent for automobile travel.

Most of Amtrak's gain in passengers comes from people normally traveling by private automobile, said Bob Casey, Amtrak spokesman in Chicago, and there are indications that it will continue to pull passengers from this sector of the transportation industry. Amtrak can never hope to compete with the airlines in terms of speed but it is wooing travelers away from highways and gas stations.

A train is faster than a car especially now with the 55 mile per hour national speed limit. With the rising price of gasoline train fare is becoming more reasonable every day. Riding a train is also less tiring and more comfortable than car travel. You leave the driving to the engineer up front and instead of being strapped into your car seat for hours on end you can relax in a lounge chair or your own private bedroom. You are also free to roam around the train — the dining car, snack lounge, observation deck.

There is something special about traveling on a train. Call it nostalgia. Listen to the old clickety-clack of the wheels on the rails as the train speeds like a bullet over rivers and mountains and prairies. There's nothing much to do but look at the scenery, read a book, talk to the guy across the aisle.

Train travel isn't like air travel where scenery usually consists of cloud formations. It isn't like car travel either because there are no traffic jams and you need never worry about making the wrong turn or running off the road while trying to catch a glimpse of the passing scene.

Amtrak

The mode of transportation it is most often compared to is the ocean cruise. You can have your own private room, meals on board, and like a cruise, people on a train mingle, talk a bit, get to know each other. No one would ever take a cruise if he were in a hurry to arrive at his destination. The "getting there" is supposed to be part of the fun.

Train travel appears to be most popular with two sectors of the population — young adults and families with children.

Backpackers and skiers are particularly fond of traveling through the wide open spaces on a train. They stow their gear on board and usually opt for an economical seat in coach. Many families like the private bedrooms or roomettes with individual restrooms. The advantages of having privacy and the ability to move freely through the train should be obvious to anyone who has driven across country with a carload of kids whining "I'm hungry," "I have to go to the bathroom," "Are we there yet?"

Amtrak does have its disadvantages, however. The problems faced by Amtrak when it took over the nation's aging and decaying railroads, has been widely publicized in the media. Delays on Amtrak are frequent and are caused by three factors: track that is in bad condition making it necessary to reduce speed, repair crews on the tracks, and breakdown of old equipment inherited from the railroads.

This year trains running from Chicago east have been about an hour late because of construction on the tracks. Westbound trains, however, have been very close to schedule because these tracks were in relatively good condition when Amtrak took over. In May 1976, 80.4 per cent of Amtrak's trains were on time but in May 1977 the figure dropped to 67.3 per cent as a result of more repair crews on the tracks.

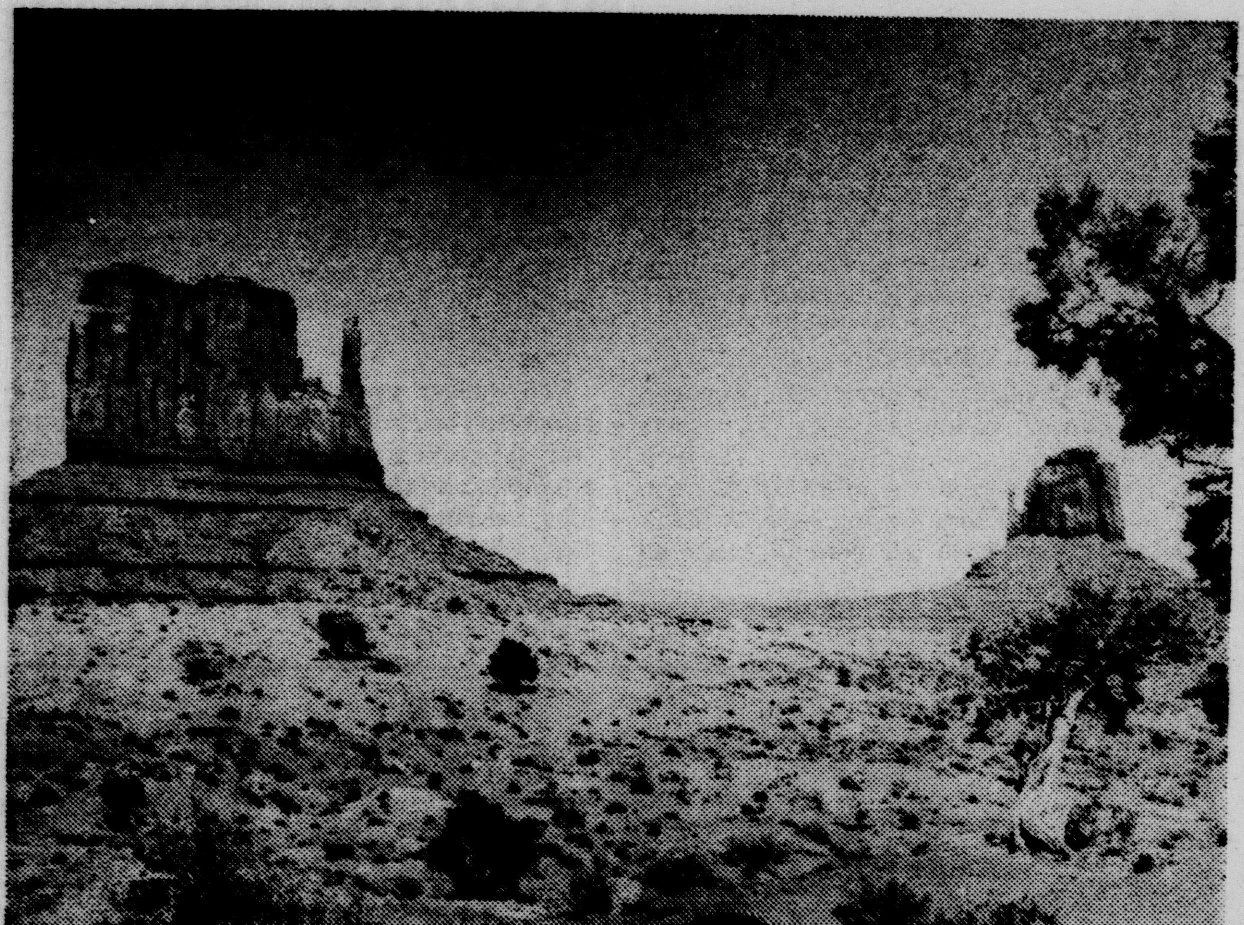
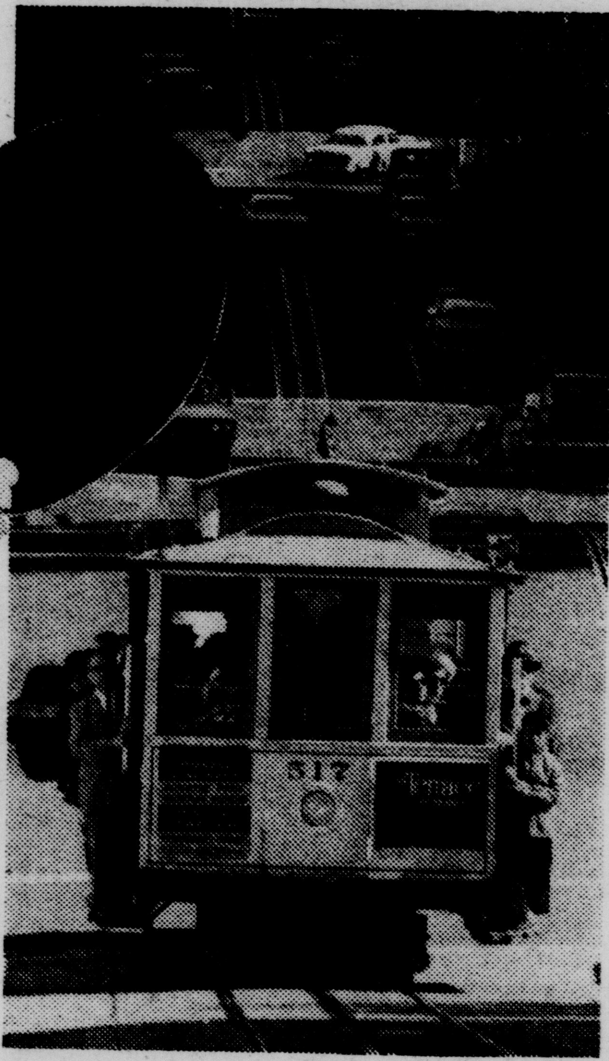
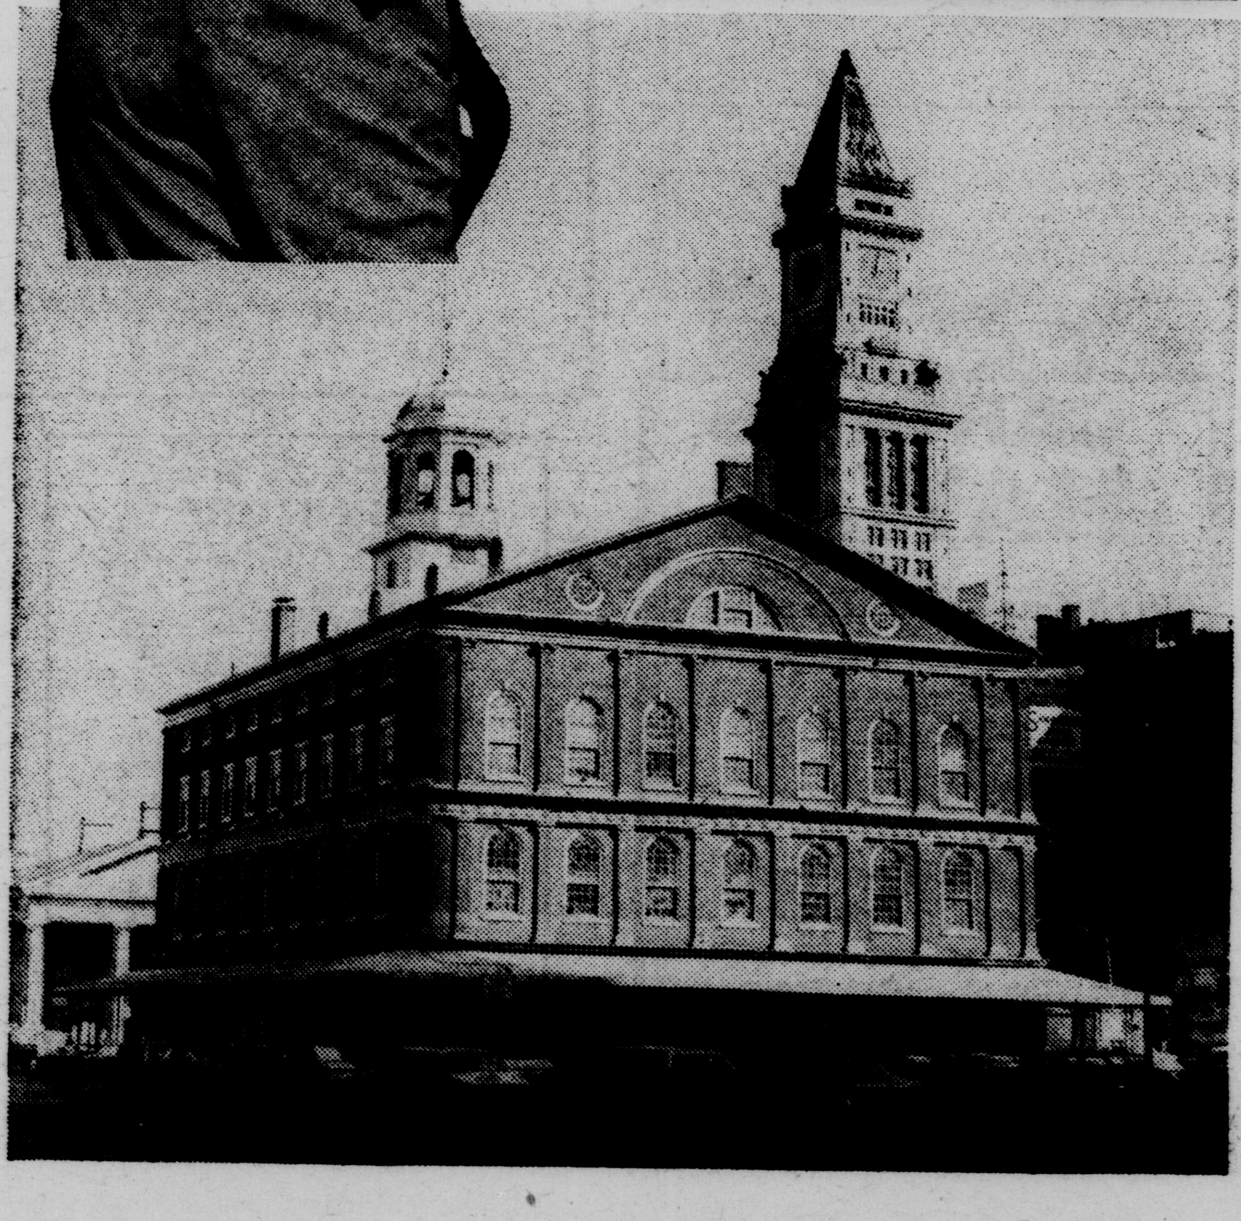
Rediscover train travel on one of Amtrak's tours







From the deserts of the Southwest to the cable cars of San Francisco, the fantasy of Walt Disney World and the history of Boston, Amtrak has a package tour for you.

More and more people are taking advantage of a new idea in vacation travel — Amtrak tours.

Bookings on Amtrak tours have more than doubled during the past year because of an expansion of the tour program itself and America's rediscovery of train travel.

Amtrak's 1977 vacation booklet lists more than eighty Amtrak tours in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Some are escorted tours with transportation, meals, accommodations and sightseeing included in one price. Some are independent tours packaging hotel, rental car and attractions.

Many tours, especially those taking in national parks, are offered only during the summer months when most families take their vacations. A few, however, continue through October and some are available all year long. Information on all tours using Amtrak is available from travel agents and Amtrak in Chicago. Phone 786-1333.

These are a few of the tours still available for 1977:

THE SOUTHWEST

Two popular Amtrak tours take in the Southwestern states highlighting the Grand Canyon, Indian reservations and desert scenery.

A 7-day tour from Chicago includes round-trip transportation to Flagstaff, Ariz., all meals, sightseeing by motorcoach with a guide and four nights accommodation at the Little America Hotel in Flagstaff. Rates are $655 in coach, $757 bedroom and $768 roomette. Included in the sightseeing are the Grand Canyon, the Navajo and Hopi Indian nations, Oak Creek Canyon, the artists colony at Sedona, and Montezuma Castle, a 13th Century pueblo built into a sheer cliff.

The 9-day tour contains most of these sightseeing features plus sightseeing in Albuquerque, N.M., Durango, Color., Mesa Verde National Park, and Monument Valley. Package prices are $666, $750 and $757 and include rail transportation from Chicago to Albuquerque and Flagstaff to Chicago, ten meals, six nights accommodations and sightseeing by motorcoach with a guide.

CALIFORNIA

A 14-day deluxe escorted tour combines the highlights of Northern and Southern California starting at $1,059 in coach, $1,195 bedroom and $1,208 roomette including rail transportation from Chicago to San Francisco and Los Angeles to Chicago, meals, three nights accommodations in San Francisco, two in Yosemite, one in Monterey/Carmel, one in Pismo Beach and two in Los Angeles plus sightseeing by motorcoach with guide. The tour takes in San Francisco sights including a one-hour harbor cruise, Yosemite National Park, San Simeon, Beverly Hills with accommodations at the Beverly Hills Hilton, a day in Disneyland, and a tour of Universal Studios.

Shorter tours geared to specific California sights are also available. For example, a 4-day package plan for San Francisco includes hotel accommodations and sightseeing tours for $45 plus rail fare (about $119 one way). A four night package for Disneyland is $118 based on double occupancy including accommodations, transportation — transfers from the station to the hotel and to Disneyland, admission to Disneyland and tickets to attractions, and a tour of Universal Studios. Rail fare is extra (about $115 one way).

MEXICO

A 16-day tour of Mexico takes in Acapulco, Mexico City, Cuernavaca, Taxco, Old Monterrey and San Antonio, Tex. and is priced

Amtrak is gradually replacing old equipment with modern, roomy cars. Scheduled to go into service from Chicago to points West sometime this winter are the newest pieces of equipment, the Superliners. Heated by electric power, the Superliner's bi-level sleeping cars will have deluxe bedrooms which can sleep two adults and a child and private restroom. Economy rooms will sleep two adults with no individual restroom, and an economy family room will extend the full width of the car's lower level and sleep five.

When you begin to talk about price, Amtrak may come as a shock to some folks who may be under the misimpression that train travel is a lot cheaper than air travel. In fact, there are instances where the train fare may be more than the air fare particularly now with charter flights and the new bargain fares proposed by the airlines.

The one way fare from Chicago to Los Angeles, for example, is $115 on Amtrak while airlines are proposing $89 one way bargain fares and there are charters for as low as $149 round trip. In contrast the fare between Chicago and Miami is lower on Amtrak than on an airline. The nightcoach flight runs about $180 round trip while Amtrak is now offering a special one way fare of $60 coach (the normal fare is $82). If you are heading East it's cheaper to go Amtrak. An excursion fare from Chicago to New York is now about $130 round trip while a one-way coach fare on Amtrak is $54.

When comparing prices between Amtrak and other means of transport remember that on Amtrak your accommodations are included. If you are driving a long distance you will probably need accommodations for a night or two. If you fly and arrive before the train you will also be paying for more nights of accommodations.

Amtrak has several special discount fares. Under the family discount plan the head of the family pays full fare while the spouse and children ages 12 through 21 get a 25 per cent discount and children age 2 to 11 save 62½ per cent. Children under age 2 usually travel free.

The U.S.A. Rail Pass is a very popular discount program that allows an individual to travel anywhere on Amtrak for 14 days for $185, 21 days for $250 and 30 days for $295. The plan is especially popular with retired persons and students on summer and winter vacations.

From time to time Amtrak also offers special fares on various routes at various times of the year. The Chicago to Miami discount fare is one example. Check with travel agents or with Amtrak ticket information in Chicago — 786-1333. §

The one way fare from Chicago to Los Angeles, for example, is $115 on Amtrak while airlines are proposing $89 one way bargain fares and there are charters for as low as $149 round trip. In contrast the fare between Chicago and Miami is lower on Amtrak than on an airline. The nightcoach flight runs about $180 round trip while Amtrak is now offering a special one way fare of $60 coach (the normal fare is $82). If you are heading East it's cheaper to go Amtrak. An excursion fare from Chicago to New York is now about $130 round trip while a one-way coach fare on Amtrak is $54.

When comparing prices between Amtrak and other means of transport remember that on Amtrak your accommodations are included. If you are driving a long distance you will probably need accommodations for a night or two. If you fly and arrive before the train you will also be paying for more nights of accommodations.

Amtrak has several special discount fares. Under the family discount plan the head of the family pays full fare while the spouse and children ages 12 through 21 get a 25 per cent discount and children age 2 to 11 save 62½ per cent. Children under age 2 usually travel free.

The U.S.A. Rail Pass is a very popular discount program that allows an individual to travel anywhere on Amtrak for 14 days for $185, 21 days for $250 and 30 days for $295. The plan is especially popular with retired persons and students on summer and winter vacations.

From time to time Amtrak also offers special fares on various routes at various times of the year. The Chicago to Miami discount fare is one example. Check with travel agents or with Amtrak ticket information in Chicago — 786-1333. § from $1,293 to $1,398 including accommodations, 77 per cent of all meals and sightseeing. Rail fare from the departure point of Houston to the return point of New Orleans is also included. (Chicago to Houston fare is an additional $73 and New Orleans to Chicago is $52).

Amtrak tours:

NEW ENGLAND

Both escorted and independent tours are available in New England.

A 7-day escorted tour takes in Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire for $399 not including rail fare. (One way between Chicago and Boston is about $63). Included in the price are accommodations, meals, motorcoach transportation and sightseeing.

The 8-day independent tour starts at $179 not including rail fare and takes in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont, Connecticut and Rhode Island. The price includes eight days use of a rental car, seven nights accommodations at your choice of more than sixty New England Inns, and admission to two tourist attractions.

CITIES OF THE EAST

A number of tours are available to the larger cities on the East Coast. A three day New York City package starts at $46 not including rail fare ($54 one way between Chicago and New York). Accommodations and some sightseeing attractions are included. Similar package plans are available for Philadelphia and Washington D.C. An 8-day package taking in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Washington D.C. is also available from $299 not including rail fare from Chicago.

FLORIDA

All of the Amtrak tours to points in Florida are independent tours packaging accommodations, rental car and sightseeing. For example, a 4-night package for Lake Buena Vista includes accommodations, tickets for Walt Disney World, rental car, and a trip to Cypress Gardens or the Kenneay Space Center. Rates start at $158 for double occupancy not including rail fare. Packages are also available for Miami Beach and Ft. Lauderdale.

NEW ORLEANS

A 4-day independent package for New Orleans is available starting at $58 not including rail fare (one way between New Orleans and Chicago is about $52). The package includes accommodations, a tour of the city and dinner at "The Court of the Sisters" restaurant.

A special 7-day Mardi Gras tour is available from Chicago on Feb. 3 next year. A Dixieland band presents a concert on the station platform while boarding in Chicago and then hops on the train to play en route to New Orleans. The package includes accommodations, sightseeing, some meals, a paddlewheeler cruise on the Mississippi, and rail transportation. Rates start at $499.

SKIING

Special ski packages have been prepared for the winter season at major ski resorts in the Rockies and New England — as well as ski centers here in the midwest. According to a special tour basing fare, Amtrak passengers get a 40 per cent discount on roundtrip rail fare if they purchase a ski package.

For example, the special fare from Chicago to Denver would be $82 round trip and a one week ski package at Beaver's Lodge in Winter Park Colo. would start at $195 for quad occupancy and $217 for twin occupancy. The package includes 7 nights accommodations, lift tickets for 6 days and all breakfasts and dinners.

To limber up for the big slopes of the Rockies you can purchase weekend packages for ski centers in La Crosse, Wis. for less than $70 and Kalamazoo, Mich. for less than $50 including rail fare, accommodations and lift tickets. — K.R.

Which are Amtrak's most scenic routes?

According to a poll of Amtrak executives, who would be presumed to know the routes best, the Top Ten scenic spots on Amtrak are:

- 1. Through the High Sierra, between Reno and Sacramento, on the Chicago — originating San Francisco Zephyr.
- 2. Skirting the Pacific shore for 113 miles between Ventura and San Luis Obispo on the Los Angeles-Seattle Coast Starlight.
- 3. Crossing the Raton Pass (7,588 feet) on the Colorado-New Mexico state line riding on the Chicago-Los Angeles Southwest Limited.
- 4. Through Glacier National Park, 56 miles of soaring peaks with glaciers, on the Seattle-Chicago Empire Builder.
- 5. Following a trail blazed by Lewis and Clark, as the Chicago-Seattle North Coast Hiawatha twists through Montana's Homestake Pass.
- 6. For 142 miles, New York City to Albany-Rensselaer, running beside the mighty Hudson River on the Lake Shore Limited.
- 7. On the Adirondack, beside the Hudson, too; then alongside Lake Champlain on its daily daylight run between New York and Montreal.
- 8. Some of the East's most beautiful mountain scenery, through West Virginia, from the Shenandoah, linking Washington and Cincinnati.
- 9. The Great Horseshoe Curve, near Altoona, Pa., aboard the eastbound daylight National Limited or Broadway Limited.
- 10. A dramatic cityscape — Manhattan's towers, as seen gliding into the city, crossing Hell's Gate Bridge, aboard an Amfleet train from New England.

Fall festivals continue in rural Illinois

Weekend travelers should take note of two autumn events planned today and tomorrow in two Illinois communities.

One is the "Autumn on Parade" festival in Oregon, Ill. The other is the annual "Jordbruksdagarna," a tongue twister of a fall festival in the historic Swedish community of Bishop Hill.

Bishop Hill's harvest time celebration highlights a selection of frontier craft demonstrations, dancing and music — all set against a historic backdrop of what was once one of America's most successful pioneer communal colonies.

Weekend

The first settlers of Bishop Hill arrived in 1846, victims of religious persecution in their native Sweden which made it impossible for them to follow their stern, bearded "prophet" Erik Jansson.

Jansson thought himself to be a direct chosen disciple of God. He and his flock spent their first Illinois winter huddled in primitive dugouts gouged into a raw hillside outside present day Bishop Hill. Within six years, however, the ragged colonists nurtured their patch of empty prairie into a thriving 14,000-acre farming community.

Now a state memorial, the tiny Bishop Hill hamlet offers visitors a chance to browse through antique shops and restored buildings.

While there visit Bishop Hill's most dramatic structure — the Steeple Building. Currently home to the Henry County Historical Society's colonial exhibits, the former hotel, school and apartment house has thirty-eight rooms and a first-floor craft shop which sells local handiwork and Scandinavian imports.

Bishop Hill is about a 3-hour drive from the Northwest suburbs. Take I-80 to Rte. 78, proceed south to Rte. 34 then southwest on Rte. 34 to Bishop Hill.

Oregon's Seventh Annual "Autumn on Parade" Festival will feature a variety of old and new activities during the peak of fall colors along the scenic Rock River.

Illinois' Kantorie Singing Boys will perform in choir formation and in dramatic settings with costumes. The performance is scheduled for 7 p.m. tonight at the Oregon High School Auditorium. Tickets are $2 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Five homes will be opened to the public today between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Two stately homes built in the 1800s, one modern home incorporating Florida architecture, and two homes constructed in the early 1900s will be shown.

The farmers' market and a craft fair, consisting of more than forty-five booths around the Courthouse Square, open at 8 a.m. today and 10 a.m. tomorrow.

One of the featured attractions of the weekend is the opening of Stronghold Castle one mile north of Oregon across from Blackhawk Statue. The castle will be open with guided tours starting at 10:00 a.m. both days. Camp Fuller, an organization of Civil War buffs, will be camping nearby and will hold a skirmish re-enactment following the Sunday parade.

A drive-yourself tour is suggested, with a prepared map available at the Information Booth, for those who want to enjoy the beautiful fall scenery of Rock River Country. Or, if you prefer, take a leisurely pontoon boat ride on the Rock River.

Most of tomorrow's activities will begin at 10 a.m. A big Sunday parade will start at 2 p.m. with more than 100 units already entered. Fifteen trophies will be awarded to the outstanding entries.

Oregon is located on Rte. 64 (North Avenue) and is about a 2½-hour drive from the Northwest suburbs.

Service guides available for travelers

The Illinois Department of Transportation is now distributing the "Motorist Services Guide" which details service available to travelers along the state's interstates.

The brochure details auto, dining, lodging and camping services as well as points of interest at all interstate exits on most interstate highways outside the Chicago area throughout the state. The free-of-charge directory is keyed to interchange numbers along the interstate system. In Illinois interchanges are numbered consecutively from generally west to east and south to north.

Copies of the Motorist Services Guide will be available at businesses along the routes. They may also be obtained by contacting the Illinois Department of Transportation, Bureau of Traffic, Springfield, Illinois, 62764, as well as at the department's nine district offices around the state.

The nearest office is District One, 1000 Plaza Dr., Schaumburg, 60196.

Take the 'Pleasure Chest' to San Juan

A "Long Weekend Pleasure Chest" package to San Juan, Puerto Rico, is now available featuring roundtrip airfare from Chicago, accommodations for three nights at any of three Hilton International hotels in San Juan, and added features which vary by hotel.

The package is priced from $274.50 per person, double occupancy on the European Plan (meals are additional). Included in the package price are the various features of Puerto Rico's "Le Lo Lai" festival, a series of party events and cultural attractions. The package is available until Dec. 15 with a $5 increase in airfare effective Oct. 15.

The airfare is available any day of the week with a nominal surcharge for arrivals or departures on Saturday or Sunday. Another special value — a dine-around — is available on the Modified American Plan (breakfast and dinner daily). M.A.P. guests at any of the three San Juan hotels can choose to dine in any of the hotels' eight restaurants.

For reservations for the new Long Weekend Pleasure Chest package, contact any travel agent or Eastern Airlines.

The SAS Night Life Tour leaves Chicago every Thursday beginning Oct. 6 through May 25, 1978. Total cost is $899 which includes continental breakfast, all nightclub tours, and deluxe hotels.

In Copenhagen optional excursions can be arranged to Tivoli Gardens, the Royal Theatre, Frederiksborg Palace, Fredensborg Palace, Kronborg Castle, as well as daily city tours to Amalienborg Palace, Rosenborg Castle, Christiansborg Palace, Nyhavn, the "Little Mermaid" statue, and the Glypothek and Thorvaldsen's Museum.

Transportation to West Berlin is by train, and, again, full time is at leisure. Optional sightseeing tours are recommended, including West Berlin, crossing into the German Democratic Republic at Checkpoint Charlie and touring East Berlin and/or departing by motorcoach to Potsdam.

The glorious German countryside is in full view by train from Berlin to Hamburg. Three days in Hamburg, full time at leisure. Enjoy a "Hamburg by Night" tour any evening at 8 p.m., seeing the lighted city and two nightclubs.

TV writer Thompson turns to fiction

by Valerie Berg

For author Gene Thompson, writing is more than just a vocation. It's an avocation.

After years of churning out successful TV scripts by day for a living and unpublished novels by night for fun, Thompson finally is receiving recognition for his first love: fiction writing. His novel, "Lupe," about a woman on trial for murder by witchcraft and the mysterious young boy who actually is responsible, was published this summer — the first of Thompson's novels to break into print.

"I have a peculiar gift, for what it's worth, for writing dialogue and structuring drama," Thompson said, "but I prefer writing fiction."

Given Thompson's ability to write drama, it's not surprising his roots are in Hollywood. As a star-struck 16-year-old, he trekked to the movie capital in hopes of becoming an actor. And in the best Hollywood tradition, the daughter of Groucho Marx brought the unsuspecting teen-ager home for lunch one day.

That lunch turned out to be the start of a long-time acquaintance with the famous comedian. Groucho steered the young man away from movie stardom by encouraging him to attend college, and later assisted Thompson's career by sending some of his manuscripts to New Yorker magazine.

Author Gene Thompson

After a stint writing advertising copy (and novels in his spare time), Thompson began to write television comedy scripts for celebrities such as Lucille Ball, the Smothers Brothers — and, of course, Groucho. He later switched to writing scripts for dramas such as "Cannon" and "Baretta."

It was during this time that Thompson conceived the idea for "Lupe," without any prior interest in or knowledge of the occult.

"I had no idea it would take me two years of research," he admitted. "I'd always been a complete skeptic. I'm not a credulous man and the things I found astounded me." These well-documented but unexplainable events, such as persons catching fire spontaneously and burning to death within minutes, or persons scoring amazingly accurate results on ESP tests, provided vital material for the novel.

After two years of research, Thompson holds mixed beliefs about the occult. He is skeptical, for example of "witches" accounts of flying on broomsticks (a hallucinogenic trip, he says), but believes some persons may possess paranormal powers. "But I don't know what these powers are," he added hastily.

But whether or not these supernatural events are true, they have provided profit-reaping material for the makers of chillers such as "Rosemary's Baby," "The Exorcist" and "The Omen." Thompson attributes the appeal of the supernatural to the public's distrust of science and resentment of technology.

"It's like a rebellious child who perceives his parents saying one thing and doing another," he said. "Science tends to dictate to Americans and Americans are tired of being dictated to. Interest in the occult is a way of fighting back, an attempt to one-up science."

And although the occult probably won't creep into his future novels, Thompson hopes to tell some more intriguing stories with vivid characters like Lupe.

"Unless the character is vivid, the story doesn't really happen — that's what makes the story work," he said.

"Not every idea speaks to everyone — that's a thing I think you have to learn from practice. You have to know what's in your reach and what is not."

That practice may take time, but Thompson finds the effort worthwhile.

"There's no relationship that has the peculiar intimacy between author and reader," he said. "The author, if good, shows his whole heart without defense, and the reader can give his whole heart to reading it."

Chills and nightmares from 'Lupe'

LUPE by Gene Thompson (Random House, $8.95).

Reviewed by Valerie Berg

It's only fair that prospective readers be warned about "Lupe": Do not read this book alone, or late at night. You are liable to suffer nightmares or lie awake listening for strange noises — if you can put the book down long enough for a night's sleep.

The chills begin when Dr. David Blake and his wife, Emily, move into a dilapidated home in San Francisco, and strange things begin to happen to Emily. She hears unaccounted for noises and voices speaking to her. She sees dishes fall off counters for no reason.

David, meanwhile, begins an affair with a patient, Jennie Ludlow, and Emily soon finds out. To help the distraught Emily find a few answers to the odd happenings, a friend takes her to visit Lupe, a foulmouthed, sexually precocious 11-year-old boy with alleged psychic powers. Lupe terrorizes Emily by appearing before her several times and making sexual advances.

When David's mistress Jennie is found dead — her body burned for no apparent reason — Emily is charged with her murder . . . by witchcraft.

To make matters worse, Lupe, the only person who can prove Emily innocent, supposedly has died of diphtheria. Or has he? Lupe keeps appearing to Emily during the trial while evidence against her mounts.

The story climaxes in a chilling scene in the Blakes' attic, where Emily, David and Emily's attorney, Cade, destroy the demonic boy's spirit in an exorcism of sorts. Afterwards the Blakes take on assumed names and move to another city to peacefully await the birth of their first child, whom Emily has carried throughout the trial. Or so they think.

Author Gene Thompson has crafted a suspenseful story. The supernatural occurrences in "Lupe," based on factual evidence, are intriguing enough to keep even skeptics flipping the pages.

But after the last page is turned, a few questions remain. Just what is wrong with the Blakes' marriage? What makes Emily snatch a lock of Jennie's hair from the beauty parlor floor — hair that later is used in the death-spell on Jennie? And if the public and the prosecuting attorney go so far as to believe Emily a witch, why can't they check out the activities of a spooky 11-year-old, too?

A weakness lies in the book's characterizations. One finishes "Lupe" without really getting to know the major characters at all. David comes off as a shallow skeptic who can do little more than croon "I love you Emmy" while he attempts to pack her off to a shrink. Emily's personality is difficult to figure out. Even before the troubles start, one gets the impression that she merely acts like a timid little girl most of the time.

And although the author claims otherwise, there are great similarities between "Lupe" and its psychic predecessors "Rosemary's Baby" and "The Exorcist," with only a few more sex scenes added. Having read those two books, it is not difficult to figure out most of the ending of "Lupe" a good deal in advance.

But chances are most readers won't think of these flaws until after finishing the book. Most will be too absorbed in the story to stop and think.

'Lemon-Aid' helps the car buyer beware

LEMON-AID: THE BOOK THE AUTO INDUSTRY COULD NOT SUPPRESS by Phil Edmonston (McKay, $4.95).

Reviewed by Rod Covey

Did you know that new-car sticker prices are 10 to 27 per cent above the dealer's cost? That his profit on optional equipment usually is 50 per cent above cost? That a budget-minded consumer can save hundreds of dollars on a new car by bartering?

That new-car prices are lowest during the first three months of winter? That the best time to buy a car is late in the evening, because a tired dealer will be more flexible, and near the end of the month, since salesmen must achieve monthly quotas for special sales bonuses?

That auto mileage ratings published by the Environmental Protection Agency are 20 per cent higher than what you can expect when buying a new car? That Ford, Chrysler and American Motors all have been caught illegally tampering with cars' engines to get super EPA test results?

"Lemon-Aid" by auto critic Phil Edmonston lays bare all these facts and everything else you need to know before making one of the largest investments most every American must face: buying a car.

Arming yourself with a copy of "Lemon-Aid" before walking into the showroom is like playing high-stakes poker with see-through cards. All the bluffing, guesswork and mystery are taken out of the game.

The author is no novice to the field of auto criticism. Edmonston is head of the Automobile Protection Association, a non-profit consumer group, and has written eleven bestsellers on the automobile industry, which he carefully inspects under a new, harsh light:

"(I)t is still a maverick industry where some honesty and full disclosure of essential consumer information has come only through very recent federal legislation in the United States. So, with inadequate legislation for protection, the average new-car buyer can only arm himself with solid facts, patience, and the suspicious nature of a Sherlock Holmes."

A thorough reading of the book would be painfully depressing for a person who recently purchased a new car, which is a very bad investment, the author says. A new car selling for $4,000 will be worth only half that much two years from now. And manufacturers' guarantees, ostensibly the main reason for buying a new car, are relatively worthless.

Owners of General Motors' cars average only $25 to $35 worth of free repairs during the first year a new car is guaranteed, and industry spokesmen at congressional hearings "have repeatedly admitted that warranty work is refused by dealers because manufacturers fail to pay adequate for warranty repairs." Nonbelievers, Edmonston suggests, should talk to any Vega or Astre owner, because GM did nothing about engine defects and fender rusting on those models until three years after purchase, and that was only after a mass consumer revolt.

On the one hand, "Lemon-Aid" is a consumer's "how to" manual. For the individual who discovers he has bought a defective automobile, a chapter on the art of com-

FAIRYTALES by Cynthia Freeman (Arbor House, $8.95)

Reviewed by Bernadine M. Rechner

One comes through "Fairytales" with mixed emotions — a kind of admiration for a credible plot and a feeling that a good re-write would have straightened out the kinks.

Cynthia Freeman, in her second novel, creates two characters — Dominic Rossi and Catherine Posata — and imbues each of them with a traditional Italian concept of family responsibility. She joins them in holy wedlock and sets them on a tempestuous journey through thirty-two years of marriage and seven children.

Catherine is the grand Southern belle. Born to a family which was never accepted into New Orleans society, she bears the burden of that injustice all her life and with it, though she loves Dominic, the feeling that she has married beneath her. She is willful, petulant, domineering and often foolish, but she is always devoted to her home and her children.

Dominic is no less adamant but he is also the provider who pursues success as an attorney and then, contrary to his wife's wishes, in political life as well. He is irate when Catherine uses her money to buy some of the things his income will not cover. When she buys a house without his knowledge and consent, he is outraged.

As Dominic's success increases, Catherine's feelings of neglect also grow. Dominic comes to believe she is holding him back.

The Rossis fight, make love, fight again, separate. Dominic takes a mistress.

Though the marriage is dead, or at least fatally ill, the Rossi youngsters, in their teens, need a father's guidance and Dominic is acutely aware of his obligations to the children he has sired.

There is a reconciliation of sorts when word comes of an errant son missing in Europe and they set off together to find him. While abroad, Dominic's opportunity for elected office arises and there are decisions to be made.

"Fairytales," is one of those stories that could have been trite and somehow, happily, isn't. Though it's a good yarn, it it not the easiest thing to read.

Early on, there should have been some heavy editing. The reader is confronted by long sentences of up to ninety-nine words, none of which work. Some of Freeman's phrases stop the reader dead in his tracks — "... from which he graduated first in the top ten, magna cum laude." A preponderance of three dot punctuation (. . .) throughout the book generates a nagging feeling that commas and periods have somehow become obsolete, or worse, that something important has been left out of the text. Flashbacks interrupt the narrative flow; there are too many bad transitions, too many wandering pronouns that must be identified to make sense of the script, some streams of consciousness that are downright dull — all interrupt the pacing of the story.

Still, Freeman has devised an interesting story, spun it out and made it work, in spite of her writing style. Her characters are fully believable, fully dimensional, acting and reacting within the scope of their personalities and the world in which they live. None of them enkindle grand passion — either love or hate — but you can sympathize with them, only because they are so childish, so almost stupid, so almost human.

The Rossi's have everything — money, power, influence. Yet they lack an understanding of each other's needs and a willingness to compromise. In one sense, they could be typical — a man who can live neither with nor without his own family, a woman struggling to cope as her family grows away from her.

"Fairytales" is a good story that could only have benefited from one more revision.

Ammons joins the confessors with his poetry

THE SNOW POEMS by A. R. Ammons (Norton, $12.50).

Reviewed by Victor Howes

A. R. Ammons's twelfth book of verse is a fat volume that could profit by judicious slimming. The winner of the 1973 National Book Award for his "Collected Poems," Ammons here joins the confessional school of Sexton and Lowell, not with their intensity, but with their urge to let it all hang out.

"Snow Poems" is a kind of snow country almanac, or a read-over-the-poet's shoulder diary. While the poet goes about his daily rounds, rising at 6:30 a.m., making the family's breakfast, observing nature through frosted windows, taking his walks, teaching his classes, visiting his neighbors, he mediates, stores up impressions, writes his poems:

> ... Phyllis and I had a > great lunch composed of > soup with turkey strippings
> in it, I mean we added the > turkey, it was delicious, a > delicacy, and I didn't write
> a word the whole time ...

Why should anyone but the poet and his wife care? There is, of course, a lot of verbal hijinks along the way:

> forecasts
> einem thunderstormen may > blusterbufferoomen through ...

and there is some laconic wit and wisdom:

> those who
> have nothing
> have nothing

but it comes along with the poet's recall of friends and father, daily doings merged with cosmic nature-walks and much, much else.

What emerges is a full-length portrait of the artist as a fifty-year-old man. In the course of his talky, bluff and breezy book, we come to know Ammons like another self. It's a generous impulse, I suppose, this desire to tell all, but is there really all that much we want to know? I for one would rather read some tighter poems, along the lines of his early and great "Corson's Inlet."

When congressmen filibuster, they sometimes read recipes for Aunt Sarah's black-eyed peas into the Congressional Record, but at least they don't imagine anyone is listening. I wish Ammons had stopped just once in a while and asked himself, "Does anyone really care if Phyllis and I had turkey strippings in the soup?"

A poignant journal of jury duty

CALL THE FINAL WITNESS by Melvyn Bernard Zerman (Harper and Row, $8.95).

Reviewed by John A. Iams

Some people face jury duty with dread, but New Yorker Mel Zerman turned it into a deep human experience.

When he was impaneled to hear a murder trial involving a 17-year-old black charged with killing a delivery truck driver, Zerman decided to keep a journal.

Although he is employed by a publishing house, Zerman is not a professional writer and did not at that time plan to turn his journal into a book.

But, because of the case itself, Zerman decided to share his experience.

"Call the Final Witness" is an in-depth first-hand look at the American jury system.

"The People v. Darrel R. Mathes" is the case in point. During the trial, Zerman kept a journal describing each day's events. At the end of the trial, he interviewed the defendant, his lawyers, his jailers, the police and the prosecution.

The ensuing book weaves together the interviews and the journal. The result is top-notch reading that imparts a sense of trust in the jury system. But, as in society, there are flaws in the system.

Zerman knows this, he has been there. In his book, he gives the reader a valuable insight into a big city jury. Since it is our duty to serve on juries, "Call the Final Witness" can let us know in advance what to expect. (UPI)

THOUGHTS ON A MATTRESS

How many coils should there be in a good innerspring mattress? Some stores would lead you to believe that the more coils the better the mattress. This is somewhat of a misrepresentation to put it mildly.

If this is true, then why do almost all of the major mattress manufacturers use an innerspring unit in the 308 to 322 coil range in the best mattress they make? Because the have determined from years of experience that an innerspring unit in this coil range, combined with the right gauge of wire in the coils, makes the most comfortable and the most durable mattress.

The fact is that the more coils you put in a mattress, the smaller the coil you must use. The smaller the coil, the lighter gauge wire you must use. The result is a softer coil and softer unit. Or in other words, less support and less durability.

Some day maybe someone will make a mattress with 5,000 coils in it. It may not be very comfortable and may not last very long, but it will have lots of coils.

In the meantime we will just keep making good, comfortable mattresses like they used to make them.

Now, if you are thoroughly confused by all this conversation about coils, come in and let us show you the actual innerspring units that we put in our mattresses. Maybe we can deconfuse you.

Still, Freeman has devised an interesting story, spun it out and made it work, in spite of her writing style. Her characters are fully believable, fully dimensional, acting and reacting within the scope of their personalities and the world in which they live. None of them enkindle grand passion — either love or hate — but you can sympathize with them, only because they are so childish, so almost stupid, so almost human.

The Rossi's have everything — money, power, influence. Yet they lack an understanding of each other's needs and a willingness to compromise. In one sense, they could be typical — a man who can live neither with nor without his own family, a woman struggling to cope as her family grows away from her.

"Fairytales" is a good story that could only have benefited from one more revision.

CALL THE FINAL WITNESS by Melvyn Bernard Zerman (Harper and Row, $8.95).

Reviewed by John A. Iams

Some people face jury duty with dread, but New Yorker Mel Zerman turned it into a deep human experience.

When he was impaneled to hear a murder trial involving a 17-year-old black charged with killing a delivery truck driver, Zerman decided to keep a journal.

Although he is employed by a publishing house, Zerman is not a professional writer and did not at that time plan to turn his journal into a book.

But, because of the case itself, Zerman decided to share his experience.

"Call the Final Witness" is an in-depth first-hand look at the American jury system.

"The People v. Darrel R. Mathes" is the case in point. During the trial, Zerman kept a journal describing each day's events. At the end of the trial, he interviewed the defendant, his lawyers, his jailers, the police and the prosecution.

The ensuing book weaves together the interviews and the journal. The result is top-notch reading that imparts a sense of trust in the jury system. But, as in society, there are flaws in the system.

Zerman knows this, he has been there. In his book, he gives the reader a valuable insight into a big city jury. Since it is our duty to serve on juries, "Call the Final Witness" can let us know in advance what to expect.

Ammons joins the confessors with his poetry

THE SNOW POEMS by A. R. Ammons (Norton, $12.50).

Reviewed by Victor Howes

A. R. Ammons's twelfth book of verse is a fat volume that could profit by judicious slimming. The winner of the 1973 National Book Award for his "Collected Poems," Ammons here joins the confessional school of Sexton and Lowell, not with their intensity, but with their urge to let it all hang out.

"Snow Poems" is a kind of snow country almanac, or a read-over-the-poet's shoulder diary. While the poet goes about his daily rounds, rising at 6:30 a.m., making the family's breakfast, observing nature through frosted windows, taking his walks, teaching his classes, visiting his neighbors, he mediates, stores up impressions, writes his poems:

> . . . Phyllis and I had a > great lunch composed of
> soup with turkey strippings
> in it, I mean we added the > turkey, it was delicious, a > delicacy, and I didn't write
> a word the whole time . . .

Why should anyone but the poet and his wife care? There is, of course, a lot of verbal hijinks along the way:

> the forecaster for today
> forecasts
> einem thunderstormen may > blusterbufferoomen through . . .

and there is some laconic wit and wisdom:

> those who > have nothing
> have nothing
> to lose.

but it comes along with the poet's recall of friends and father, daily doings merged with cosmic nature-walks and much, much else.

What emerges is a full-length portrait of the artist as a fifty-year-old man. In the course of his talky, bluff and breezy book, we come to know Ammons like another self. It's a generous impulse, I suppose, this desire to tell all, but is there really all that much we want to know? I for one would rather read some tighter poems, along the lines of his early and great "Corson's Inlet."

When congressmen filibuster, they sometimes read recipes for Aunt Sarah's black-eyed peas into the Congressional Record, but at least they don't imagine anyone is listening. I wish Ammons had stopped just once in a while and asked himself, "Does anyone really care if Phyllis and I had turkey strippings in the soup?"

THOUGHTS ON A MATTRESS

How many coils should there be in a good innerspring mattress? Some stores would lead you to believe that the more coils the better the mattress. This is somewhat of a misrepresentation to put it mildly.

If this is true, then why do almost all of the major mattress manufacturers use an innerspring unit in the 308 to 322 coil range in the best mattress they make? Because the have determined from years of experience that an innerspring unit in this coil range, combined with the right gauge of wire in the coils, makes the most comfortable and the most durable mattress.

The fact is that the more coils you put in a mattress, the smaller the coil you must use. The smaller the coil, the lighter gauge wire you must use. The result is a softer coil and softer unit. Or in other words, less support and less durability.

Some day maybe someone will make a mattress with 5,000 coils in it. It may not be very comfortable and may not last very long, but it will have lots of coils.

In the meantime we will just keep making good, comfortable mattresses like they used to make them.

Now, if you are thoroughly confused by all this conversation about coils, come in and let us show you the actual innerspring units that we put in our mattresses. Maybe we can deconfuse you.

Ring Lardner biography is the best yet

RING by Jonathan Yardley (Random House, $12.95).

Reviewed by Richard Gronald

This is an affectionate biography of Ring Lardner, a baseball writer who became a second-rank novelist and short story writer. Like many other writers of his generation, his life was as interesting as his works, maybe more so.

Maxwell Perkins, editor of the lost generation and others of the 1920s and '30s, wrote, "Ring was not, strictly speaking, a great writer . . . But he was a great man."

Lardner grew up enjoying the best that Niles, Mich., had to offer. He almost stumbled into baseball writing and perhaps no one has done it better. He went on to columns, short stories and novels that are enjoying a renaissance among the professors and some students.

Author Yardley narrates the life of a man who drank too much, a big man who fell into ill health and died at 48, a cult figure to the Algonquin smart set and a family man whose children inherited much of his literary talent.

Yardley doesn't really explain Lardner, the drinking and the sensitive ear, the Middle West morality and the partying. But it's the best job done so far on Ring Lardner. (UPI) plaining lists addresses of state and national consumer groups to whom he can write for help, and it describes in detail the remedial steps he should take, from suing the vender to small-claims court to painting lemons on his car and parking it in front of the dealership. But on the other hand, the book is an enlightening piece of investigative journalism.

For example, Edmonston delves into the auto industry's secret warranty extensions which, in addition to the 12,000-mile guarantees applied to new cars, cover certain faulty models for up to five years or 50,000 miles, no matter how many times the title has changed hands. Manufacturers deny the existence of these special slush funds, which are used with discretion by dealers as "goodwill" measures to compensate owners for defects in design and manufacture of certain models beyond the one-year warranty period.

Probably the most valuable portion of the book for an individual thinking about buying a used car is the chapter which rates major domestic makes and models from 1970-77, and imports from 1970-75. Each car is pitted against others of similar design, and the comparisons include safety defects, frequency of repairs, rusting trends and approximations of what the car is worth today.

However, the ratings, which are based on garage interviews, test results and volumes of consumer complaints, are not infallible. Just because the author rails at one particular model doesn't necessarily mean that every car of that model line has the same problems. There is only one sure way to judge an individual automobile before buying it. In Edmonston's words, "If every consumer had each car verified by an independent mechanic before purchasing it, most used-car lemons could be avoided. Unfortunately, few consumers take this simple precaution."

Parts of the book are repetitive. Others are cumbersome, such as the section "Legal Rights and Wrongs," which details recent court decision on product liability in the auto industry. And, unfortunately the book is not indexed which would have allowed much easier reference to specific passages.

For the most part, however, Edmonston is able to make a potentially dry subject matter palatable through his wry sense of humor. For example: The GM Vega/Astre, one of the worst cars on the market because of numerous engine, rusting and safety-related defects, says Edmonston, is "the perfect car for . . . shy drivers wishing to meet people along the road."

CANCER DETECTION
HEART ATTACK PREVENTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication '76 Cancer Facts and Figures.)

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division.

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood presure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well-known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January, 1977 Issue of FORTUNE "if one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty-five and thereafter, directed at postponable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams."

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes:

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a baseline for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found.
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome.

This meticulous 3 hour, low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self-examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holter monitor, and echocardiography are available as options.

BLACK WINS A PIECE

One of the very best U.S. chess writers is Irving Chernev. Two of his books, "Winning Chess" (co-authored with Fred Reinfeld) and "Logical Chess Move by Move," have been particular favorites with hundreds of my students. And "Invitation to Chess" has set sales records for an introductory chess book.

Personally, I have always admired his ability to isolate the most important concepts and present them with lucidity and flair.

Irving Chernev's most recent book, "Wonders and Curiosities of Chess" — Dover 1974, is a repository of anecdotes, oddities and historic games, as the following samples will indicate:

CHESS AND INSANITY

In 1850 an old passion for chess awoke in Szechenyi (founder of the Magyar Academy) and took an insane character. It became necessary to pay a poor student to play with him for ten or twelve hours at a time.

Szechenyi slowly regained his sanity, but the unfortunate student went mad!

BALD HEADS WIN MATCH

In 1891 a team match was played at the Manhattan Chess Club between the bald-headed members and the full-haired members. The bald heads won 14-11.

In 1891 a team match was played at the Manhattan Chess Club between the bald-headed members and the full-haired members. The bald heads won 14-11.

THE STAUNTON KNIGHT

The Staunton pattern knight is modelled from the famous Greek horse of the Elgin Marbles in the British Museum.

WHO WAS WORLD CHAMPION?

Steinitz and Zukertort were once present at a dinner where a toast was proposed to the Chess Champion of the World.

Both players stood up in response!

In SOLVE-IT is a game by 13-year-old Joel Benjamin (the youngest U.S. master in chess history) against Bruce Rind, Elo rating 2350. After 26 RxR! QxR; 27 NxB PxN (26 . . . BxR allows 27 R-Q1!), he expertly exploited black's weaknesses.

Olga knows

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have many fine qualities, Ari, but subtlety is not one of them. No, you forge ahead with directness and energy, tackling tasks that others consider nigh impossible. Whether in love or business you consider subtle maneuvering as a time-wasting exercise in frustration. Busy week ends on key of B, for blunt. What else?

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): "Comfortable as an old shoe" is how others often refer to you, Taurus. Well, this may be just the week to shake that stodgy image. Maybe you, "old shoe," should kick up your heels this week. A change of pace is good for the heart and the soul.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You, Gem, are irresistible, irrepressible and slightly irresponsible. You are the butterfly of the Zodiac; colorful but difficult to pin down. This week, however, clever (and patient) lepidopterist is on your trail. So don't dally too long, Gem, at any one flower. Unless, of course, you want to get caught!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Because you are so giving, Moonbaby, you are one of the favorite lovers of the Zodiac. Like the Crab (your sign), your soft inner body of vulnerability is protected by a hard outer shell of what appears to be casual indifference. Week ideal to come out of your shell and mingle with the throngs. Don't worry, no one will dare kick sand in your face.

LEO (July 23-August 22): You, Leo, are an attention-getter as well as an attention-needer. Preening your magnificent self in front of a mirror is one of your favorite indoor sports. This week you may meet one who will ruffle that lovely mane of yours. Furthermore, Leo, you'll adore every crazy minute!

VIRGO (August 23-September 22): You are polite and pleasant, Virgo, but you are NOT a pushover. You can be reached best through reason; never through force. Associate gets this message. At last! Week ends on key of C, for couple, cork and cuddle.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): You are known among many of your associates as Libra the Lover, a title which you take very seriously. Politcs of the Heart and Advanced Seduction are your two favorite subjects for study. This week you should meet your match, and a re-match sure to be scheduled.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): You are ready for bed any old time, Scorp, but sometimes all that romantic energy is just too much for partner/mate. Contrary to popular opinion, moderation is a virtue. Mood changes have you on emotional trampoline this week. Last day finds you full of bounce.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): You are the traveler of the Zodiac, Saj, and happiest when planning a trip. Others may have been born with silver spoons in their mouths, Saj, but you were born with an airline ticket in your tiny fist. If you go flying this week, do let lover tag along.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19): The Goat (that's you, silly!) climbs in only one direction and that is UP. You aim high and usually accomplish your goals with self-dicipline. Oh, once in a while you fudge on your responsibilities, but afterward you work like the devil to make up. This week you can reach new plateau. The view is divine.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18): Routine is an anathema to you, Aquari, for you are constantly looking for the new, the novel, yea, even the daring! Your threshold for boredom is lower than a snake's belly. This week you hear juicy gossip. Button your lip.

PISCES (February 19-March 20): You are the dreamer of the Zodiac, Pisces. You spend a good deal of time drifting about in your own private world. When it appears that you are doing nothing, that's when you are working the hardest. "Creating," you know. Right? Right.

Bernadine M. Rechner

Stamp notes

The U.S. Postal Service on Oct. 6 will mark the 50th anniversary of Talking Pictures with the release of a 13-cent commemorative stamp.

First day ceremonies, which mark the 1927 Broadway opening of "The Jazz Singer" will be held at KTLA in Hollywood, near the former site of Warner Brothers Studio where Al Jolson filmed the famous movie.

Commonly accepted as the first commercial features film with synchronized dialogue, it was the linking of Jolson's personality plus the dramatic feature and sound which caught the public's fancy where previous talkies had not. Within a year, every picture of importance was produced with at least some sound and, by 1930, silent films were a thing of the past.

The Talking Pictures adhesive is a companion stamp to the Centennial of Sound Recording stamp issued earlier this year. Both were designed by Walter Einsel of Westport, Conn.

The stamps will be printed by offfset-intaglio method with fifty stamps to a pane and one plate number.

Customers affixing their own Talking Pictures stamps to covers may submit them to "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Hollywood, Calif. 90028" for cancellations. No remittance is required.

Collectors wishing the Postal Service to affix the new issue adhesive may submit self-addressed envelopes to "Talking Pictures Stamp, Postmaster, Hollywood, Calif. 90028." Enclose the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

All requests for first day cancellations must be postmarked no later then Oct. 21.

On Oct. 14, the U.S. Postal Service will release a 9-cent post card honoring Nathan Hale, the Revolutionary War hero who was hanged as a spy by the British in 1776.

It is the latest in the Patriots post card series and will be issued in Coventry, Conn. where Hale was born in 1755.

The card will be printed, in single and double reply-paid forms, by letter press at the Government Printing Office with a green indicia on white stock.

Requests for first day cancellations should be sent to "Nathan Hale Post Card, Postmaster, Coventry, Conn. 06238." Single cards are 9-cents each and double reply cards are 18-cents each. Please enclose return address labels or self-addressed envelopes large enough to contain the post cards.

Orders must be postmarked no later than Oct. 14.
